Senate Adopts Controls Compromise

Bill Permits Price Boosts If Costs Rise

House Probably Will Act Monday

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate shouted approval of a new economic controls bill tonight, permitting some price rollbacks but assuring retailers and wholesalers of their "customary percentage margins over costs."

The voice vote stamped approval on the work of a Senate-House conference committee which has been laboring since Wednesday to adjust Senate and House bills. The House probably will act Monday, since the present controls law expires Tuesday at midnight.

The compromise would extend controls, although sometimes in limited form, over wages, prices, credit, rent and materials. It would run through next June, as compared with the two years President Truman asked.

Most important of today's decisions by the conferees was agreement on a plan to permit rollbacks on non-farm commodities to pre-Korea levels — provided increased costs since then are taken into account in setting price ceilings.

Some "Roll Forwards"

Some price "roll forwards" would also be permitted under the requirement that new costs be considered. One Office of Price Stabilization observer predicted informally it could mean a boost of 10 per cent in the price of automobiles.

If a manufacturer can prove his case, he can get his ceiling lifted, Sen. Robertson (D-Va) commented. "Why shouldn't he?" he asked.

Sens. Maybank (D-SC) and Capehart (R-Ind) both saw the plan as one that would protect those who have held their prices down to reflect no more than their new costs. They said it would punish "gougers" and "chiselers" who have shoved up prices unduly, and under the plan would have to pull them back.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala), said he thought President Truman would sign the compromise even though it falls far short of what he said he needed to combat inflation.

No Slaughtering Quotas

The bill would continue the President's general stabilization and mobilization powers, including priority and allocation control over scarce materials, although denying him many of the new powers he asked.

While the administration had sought a free hand on rollbacks, and had opposed the plan of assuring the customary retail and wholesale markups, there was no immediate comment from stabilization officials on the conference agreement.

Nationalist Army Strikes 65 Miles Inside Red China

Refugees Operate From Burma Base

RANGOON, Burma, July 27 (AP)—A Chinese Nationalist army force has struck 65 miles into Red China from its refugee base in Burma and seized a 100-mile-long frontier strip in Yunnan province.

The Nationalists have captured one airfield and are reported trying to build another.

Fighting South Of Kunming

The fighting is about 200 miles west and slightly south of Kunming, the Red-held Yunnan capital.

Although the Nationalist penetration is relatively small-scale it is regarded as the most effective action on the mainland this year by forces linked with President Chiang Kai-Shek's Formosa island regime.

The Nationalist force was authoritatively said to number about 15,000 regular troops in three columns. They are commanded by Li Mi, displaced Nationalist governor of Yunnan and one of Western China's best known generals.

Going On Three Months

Li's sortie has been going on quietly for three months.

He and his troops had come to Burma as refugees fleeing from the Red Chinese.

His three columns fanned out northeast of Lashio, a big transfer point inside Burma on the old Burma Road to China.

The north column took the Reds' Kengma airfield. The southern columns ranged about 100 miles south and seized Menghai. First resistance was reported light.

Venizelos To Resign

ATHENS, Greece, July 27 (AP)—Premier Sophocles Venizelos said tonight he would resign tomorrow.

The Premier told newsmen he was quitting regardless of the outcome of a meeting of the crown council with King Paul tomorrow to consider the current confused political situation.

$50,000 Bail Set For Reds Nabbed In San Francisco

Bond Cut For Men, Raised For Women

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (AP) — Bail of $50,000 each was set today for seven persons arrested here in the government's three-city roundup of 12 secondary leaders of the Communist Party.

The 12, arrested yesterday here, at Los Angeles, and New York, comprise the newest batch of Communist leaders charged with teaching and advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman set the bail of the seven defendants here at $50,000. The bail of four male defendants originally had been $75,000. The $50,000 was a drastic increase in the bail of three women, two of whom had been released under $2,500 bail and one under $7,500. Defense counsel said the $50,000 was 10 times what any of them could raise.

Government Objects

Over the government's strenuous objection, Judge Goodman ruled the women could remain at liberty under the original bail until tomorrow noon.

Judge Goodman held up ordering the three women to the U. S. marshal's custody after a fervent plea by their attorney.

Richard Gladstein, the attorney, asked Judge Goodman to hold up the matter until he could see whether the circuit court judge would overrule Judge Goodman.

In arguing for the legal maneuver, Gladstein stressed that the three women defendants had come to court voluntarily today.

Judge Goodman, in making the unusual withholding order, noted this fact. Then he said he had "ample precedent" for his delay because the women had appeared.

"Doors Always Open"

Judge Goodman also remarked that "the doors are always open" for an attorney to go to a higher court and ask for a lower bail.

During the hearing, Chauncey Tramutolo, U. S. attorney for the Northern California district, read a telegram from Ernest Tolin, U. S. attorney for Southern California.

The telegram said that Mrs. Loretta Starvus Stack, one of the three women allowed to remain at liberty, was "considered the second most influential Communist in California."

Chauffeur Is Willed $250,000 In Stocks

CINCINNATI, July 27 (AP)—Mrs. Louise A. Slimer, who died July 19, left Norman F. Bearhs, her chauffeur, more than $250,000 in stocks, it was disclosed today when the will was filed for probate.

Mrs. Slimer, 86, left the 62-year-old driver the money for "faithful and unfailing service to me for many years."

Bearhs was left 600 shares of A. T. & T. stock; 2,500 of Proctor and Gamble stock, a motorboat and a high priced automobile.

Senate Confirms Navy Secretary

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed Dan A. Kimball as secretary of the Navy.

The chamber also approved promotion for more than 100 generals and admirals in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Kimball has been undersecretary of the Navy and was appointed to succeed Francis P. Matthews who stepped out to become U. S. ambassador to Ireland.

The Senate also confirmed Walter G. Whitman of Massachusetts as chairman of the Research and Development Board, succeeding William Webster, resigned.

Five Army generals won four-star rank on the military promotion list, including Wade Hampton Haislip, recently retired as vice chief of staff.

Chandler Wins Case

VERSAILLES, Ky., July 27. (AP)—After 18 years away from the bar, Attorney A. B. (Happy) Chandler went into court yesterday and won acquittal for seven negro men accused of crap-shooting.

Chandler's absence from his law office was brought on by a turn in his career that carried him to governor of Kentucky, United States senator and commissioner of baseball.

President Leads Nation In Last Salute To Shermar

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Adm. Forrest P. Sherman was buried today in Arlington Cemetery with President there to say goodbye for the nation.

For the Admiral who also was a statesman and airman, there gathered in the sun-lit marble amphitheater the ambassadors and ministers of Washington's embassies. Overhead, as the cortege made its slow march across the Potomac to the cemetery, was the high thunder of warplanes flying their salute.

In the long column of men from all the armed forces which followed the casket, borne on a gun caisson, were two platoons from the Naval Academy. Sherman was a midshipman there a little more than 30 years ago.

Mr. Truman sat in the hot sun of the amphitheater, flanked by Secretary of State Acheson and by Secretary of Defense Marshall. They joined in the responses in the Episcopal service. The President looked across at the bronze casket, draped by the flag, glanced occasionally out over the audience.

In Sherman's passing the President lost not only a friend but also his chief of naval operations and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Sherman, 54 years old, died last Sunday after a heart attack in Naples Italy.

House Votes To End War With Germany

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The House today voted 376 to 0 to end the formal state of war with Germany more than six years after the shooting stopped in May, 1945. The war began Dec. 11, 1941.

The resolution, requested by President Truman, now goes to the Senate.

Although there was no opposition, Rep. Sabath (D-Ill) told the House he hopes that now the war is about over, the Germans won't start preparing for a new war of conquest of their own.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) also commented that Western German business firms are helping Communists by sending them strategic materials.

400,000 Yanks Due In Europe, Marshall Says

Increased Figure Causes Confusion

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall threw top Pentagon officials into considerable confusion tonight with his testimony on Capitol Hill that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

The figure given by Marshall was nearly twice as great as previous official estimates.

Highest defense authorities at the Pentagon told newsmen after hours of frantic checking and double-checking that they were unable to explain or clarify the basis for Marshall's statement.

Marshall himself could not be reached. Aides said he left immediately after attending the funeral of Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, who died of a heart seizure in Italy last weekend.

Slip Of The Tongue?

There was some belief that Marshall may have made a slip of the tongue. Top aides said as far as they knew there was no change in present plans to limit the size of U. S. forces in Europe to six combat divisions totalling approximately 200,000 troops.

Newsmen pressed the top brass for an explanation shortly after Marshall came up with his surprise figure in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this forenoon.

Hours passed. From time to time, reporters were told that the matter was being "checked" and "investigated."

Finally, the answer came: There just wasn't any explanation of what Marshall meant.

Marshall also disclosed that U. S. allies in Europe have promised they will have 2,500,000 men under arms next year and will be able to throw 5,000,000 men into the field within 90 days after the outbreak of any new war.

Pleads Against Letdown

Marshall made the disclosure in voicing a plea against any letdown in American defensive spirit resulting from the Korean armistice talks and against any congressional cuts in U. S. military aid to Western Europe.

The five-star General said he was deeply shocked at what he termed the "tragic" reaction of the American people now that peace appears in prospect in Korea.

Declaring that Korea is "only an incident" in the world struggle against Communism, Marshall told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"I am more shocked by what has happened in recent days that I have been at any time since I have been in Washington."

Senate Approves Farm Fund Bill

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) —The annual Agriculture Department supply bill carrying more than a billion dollars for farm programs won Senate approval today by a vote of 65 to 6.

Several efforts to cut large items failed. In the end more than $120,000,000 was added to the total approved by the House.

Differences between the two versions will be composed by a conference committee unless the House accepts the Senate changes.

The six opposing Senate votes were cast by Republican Sens. Bennett (Utah), Dirksen (Ill.), Ferguson (Mich.), Hendrickson (N. J.), Ives (N. Y.), and Williams (Del.)

Senators disagreed as to the exact amount voted in the bill, which is for department operations in the fiscal year that started July 1.

There was no question that the Senate had approved $727,000,000 of new cash, or about $110,000,000 more than the House. It also was agreed that $262,000,000 of loan funds were voted, an increase of $10,750,000 above the House total.

Bt senators disagreed on whether such items as permanent appropriations, administrative expense limitation, and note cancellations should be counted in the new total.

State Of War Ended

BONN, Germany, July 27. (AP)—The state of war between Turkey and Germany was ended July 24, the German government announced today.

Pentagon Snafu?

Defense Dept. Washes Its Hands Of Officer's Report Of Enemy Buildup In Korea

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — The high command of U. S. armed forces publicly washed its hands tonight of a Pentagon officer's statement that while U. N. forces have halted their offensive in Korea the Communists have taken advantage of the cease-fire talks to make a "tremendous buildup" of their strength.

Clayton Fritchey, information director for the Defense Department, told reporters that the statement given out earlier by a briefing officer does not reflect official policy or views.

The whole affair assumed the proportions of a snafu of large-scale proportions.

Up to tonight the earlier statement had been regarded as an official one inasmuch as the briefing officer, departing from custom, had told newsmen they were at liberty to quote his remarks directly.

The timing of his statement was surprising. It came shortly before U. N. and Communist negotiators as Kaesong resumed talks on the touchy question of setting up a buffer zone between the opposing forces in Korea.

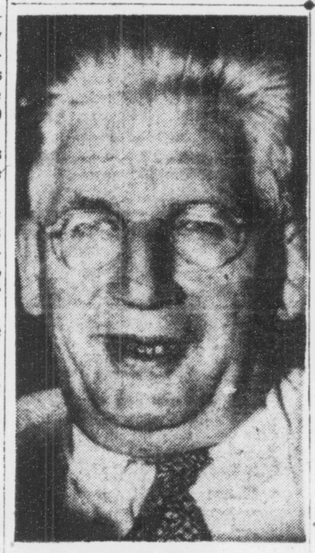
The briefing officer pointed to what he termed the "tremendous buildup" of Communist strength since preliminary truce talks started, and expressed hope this was not evidence of "bad faith."

Proof of the "good faith" of the U. S. and its United Nations partners, he said, was presented when they let the truce talks halt their advance at a time when the Reds were "hanging on the ropes."

The officer drew a sharp contrast between the increase of Communist troops, weapons and supplies and the U. N. reaction to the truce talks. He let it be known that the U. N. command, instead of building up, has pulled one sizeable unit out of the battle line since the talks started and has sent it to Japan.

This was the first indication that any U. N. forces had been withdrawn. Up to now high officers had been giving the impression that everything was being kept ready for a hard-hitting campaign if the peace talks should collapse.

Predictions were heard that today's developments here would lead to reverberations in Congress. Apparently with this in mind, among other things, Fritchey declared that the unusual on-the-record statement "should not be construed as a defense policy or a change of policy, or a policy by the Army Chief of Staff" (Gen. J. Lawton Collins).



SAYS HE'LL FIGHT — Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) announces at the Capitol that he will fight two federal judge appointments made by President Truman. He and the President are at odds over two nominations for Illinois judgeships. (AP Wirephoto)

Douglas To Fight Truman Choices For Judgeships

Senator Invokes "Obnoxious" Rule

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A battle royal which may become historic is in prospect as the result of a decision today by Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) to oppose confirmation of two of President Truman's nominees to the federal bench.

Douglas invoked the unwritten "personality obnoxious" rule in a statement saying he would fight the nominations of two men for district judgeships in Northern Illinois.

Under the law, the President nominates, but his selections must be with the "advice and consent" of the Senate. And when a senator from a nominee's home state declares the nomination personally obnoxious, the Senate rarely votes for confirmation.

Douglas' decision underscored an apparent coolness that has developed lately between the President and the freshman legislator, who himself is sometimes mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee.

But in his statement the Senator said he was "loathe to become engaged in a struggle with the President, for whom I have a genuine respect and who, in most major matters is, in my judgment, doing well."

Douglas said his opposition to the nominations of Joseph J. Drucker and Cornelius J. Harrington had been strengthened by bar association polls.

He took the unusual course of asking the Chicago and Cook County bar groups to poll their members on the relative qualifications of Drucker and Benjamin P. Epstein, and upon Harrington and William H. King, Jr.

Douglas had recommended Epstein and King about six months before the other nominations went to the Senate July 13.

Steel For Cars Is Slashed Again

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Steel for passenger car output was cut another five per cent by the government today, effective Oct. 1, to meet heavy demands for the defense program.

Other consumer items such as refrigerators, washing machines and household electrical appliances also will get about five per cent less than now.

The additional cut for passenger cars came as something of a surprise to car makers, many of whom had believed an easing in the Korean tension would permit more steel for auto production. Some forecast a hastening of an eventual new car shortage.

Under today's order by the Defense Production Administration, auto output in the October-through-December quarter will be reduced to 60 per cent of the level before the Korean war started.

This will mean a production of a little more than 1,100,000 cars, or about 100,000 less than in the present quarter and 400,000 under the April-June quarter.

Steel for household appliances in the final quarter will be about 65 per cent of their pre-Korea tonnage, compared with 70 per cent now.

Malik Tells Quakers USSR Ready To Negotiate Issues

MOSCOW, July 27. (AP)—A delegation of British Quakers said here today that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik had told them Russia is ready for "business-like" negotiations on world issues and is not interested or engaged in exporting revolutions.

The Quakers had their interview with Malik, just returned from his United Nations post in New York, last night. All information on the interview thus far has come from the Britons. Western diplomats here are waiting with interest to see whether Malik's statement will be published in the Soviet press.

The substance of what he told the delegation was made available to American newsmen in the form of full notes taken by one of the Quakers present.

Before coming to Moscow the Quakers said they conferred with British Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison and received his assurances the British government aims at peace with all governments, including the Soviet Union.

A seven-point program outlined by the Quakers to Malik included the dropping of anti-Western propaganda in the Soviet press, non-interference in the affairs of non-Communist countries, planning for drastic world disarmament and a meeting of chiefs of state

Reds Probably Favor Buffer Zone Along 38

Allied Views Are Outlined By Joy

U. N. ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, July 28 (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators resumed talks today on the touchy problem of a cease-fire buffer zone in Korea—with the Reds probably arguing for a line centered on parallel 38.

Today's session—the twelfth—began promptly at 10 a. m. (7 p. m., EST Friday).

An Army announcement said the conference recessed 45 minutes later until 1:30 p. m. (10:30 p. m. EST Friday).

The announcement gave no details of what transpired at the opening session.

It was believed that the establishment of a three-mile naval neutral zone offshore also was tied to the agenda item as a U. N. proposal.

The Allies regard the present battle line—based on ridges—as a good defensive one in case the armistice talks break down and serious fighting is renewed.

Desultory Fighting

Fighting Friday was of a desultory nature. Intense Red artillery and mortar fire blocked Allied patrols seeking to seize hills on the eastern front near Yanggu. Allied planes continued to attack North Korean supply lines.

The Red view on a buffer zone was released in a broadcast Red statement at the outset of the Kaesong talks. It called for a cease-fire zone 12½ miles wide, centered along the 38th parallel.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. delegate, Friday gave the Reds a 52-minute outline of the Allied view on a line of demarcation.

He handed two colored maps, illustrating these views, to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, senior Red negotiator. Nam acepted the maps and acknowledged the Allied view without comment.

The present frontline dips south of the 38th parallel only in the extreme west. There it is below Kaesong, the conference site, which is three miles south of 38. The line is 20 miles north of the old political boundary on the central front and 35 miles north on the eastern front.

Old Defense Line Below 38

While Allied military men prefer the ridgeline defensive system they now generally hold north of 38, there is an old defense line south of the parallel. Its positions were originally laid out in 1945, shortly after the Japanese surrender, when U. S. troops occupied south Korea and the Russians occupied the north.

Yesterday's talks lasted only 72 minutes. The first 18 minutes were utilized in settling procedural matters—the mechanics of how to take up the four major points on the agenda.

The four are, in order: The buffer zone; mutual inspection behind the lines; exchange of prisoners; and "recommendations to the governments of the countries concerned on both sides"—a broad issue presumably embracing Reds demands for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Hopefuls Brave Choppy Channel

DOVER, Eng., July 27 (AP) —The English Channel was as popular today as the old swimming hole, despite choppy seas.

A young British girl failed by five miles in her attempt to make it across from France, A Swede was still in the water in a similar attempt and three other persons were poised on the English coast waiting to take the plunge.

In addition, six Egyptians set off for France in a motorboat, determined to swim back across to Folkestone, Eng. And two English swimmers, Doris Fell, 17, and Phil Rising, 41, a Yorkshireman, said they would have a try at the chilly channel the same time as the Egyptians.

Kathleen Mayoh, 18, British factory worker, was pulled from the water by her parents after she had swum about 16 miles in 15 hours and 20 minutes from Cap Gris Nez, France. Her parents said she was too tired and the seas too rough. Kathleen herself insisted on continuing, pulling away from her parents' small boat. However, they caught up with her and pulled her in.

Lars Warle, 31, a bank clerk from Karlskrona, Sweden, was unreported somewhere in the channel tonight. He had left Cap Gris Nez several minutes before the Mayoh girl.

VERSAILLES, Ky., July 27. (AP)—After 18 years away from the bar, Attorney A. B. (Happy) Chandler went into court yesterday and won acquittal for seven negro men accused of crap-shooting.

Chandler's absence from his law office was brought on by a turn in his career that carried him to governor of Kentucky, United States senator and commissioner of baseball.

Bond Cut For Men, Raised For Women

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (AP)—Bail of $50,000 each was set today for seven persons arrested here in the government's three-city roundup of 12 secondary leaders of the Communist Party.

The 12, arrested yesterday here, at Los Angeles, and New York, comprise the newest batch of Communist leaders charged with teaching and advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman set the bail of the seven defendants here at $50,000. The bail of four male defendants originally had been $75,000. The $50,000 was a drastic increase in the bail of three women, two of whom had been released under $2,500 bail and one under $7,500. Defense counsel said the $50,000 was 10 times what any of them could raise.

Government Objects

Over the government's strenuous objection, Judge Goodman ruled the women could remain at liberty under the original bail until tomorrow noon.

Judge Goodman held up ordering the three women to the U. S. marshal's custody after a fervent plea by their attorney.

Richard Gladstein, the attorney, asked Judge Goodman to hold up the matter until he could see whether the circuit court judge would overrule Judge Goodman.

In arguing for the legal maneuver, Gladstein stressed that the three women defendants had come to court voluntarily today.

Judge Goodman, in making the unusual withholding order, noted this fact. Then he said he had "ample precedent" for his delay because the women had appeared.

"Doors Always Open"

Judge Goodman also remarked that "the doors are always open" for an attorney to go to a higher court and ask for a lower bail.

During the hearing, Chauncey Tramutolo, U. S. attorney for the Northern California district, read a telegram from Ernest Tolin, U. S. attorney for Southern California.

The telegram said that Mrs. Loretta Starvus Stack, one of the three women allowed to remain at liberty, was "considered the second most influential Communist in California."

President Leads Nation In Last Salute To Shermar

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Adm. Forrest P. Sherman was buried today in Arlington Cemetery with President there to say goodbye for the nation.

For the Admiral who also was a statesman and airman, there gathered in the sun-lit marble amphitheater the ambassadors and ministers of Washington's embassies. Overhead, as the cortege made its slow march across the Potomac to the cemetery, was the high thunder of warplanes flying their salute.

In the long column of men from all the armed forces which followed the casket, borne on a gun caisson, were two platoons from the Naval Academy. Sherman was a midshipman there a little more than 30 years ago.

Mr. Truman sat in the hot sun of the amphitheater, flanked by Secretary of State Acheson and by Secretary of Defense Marshall. They joined in the responses in the Episcopal service. The President looked across at the bronze casket, draped by the flag, glanced occasionally out over the audience.

In Sherman's passing the President lost not only a friend but also his chief of naval operations and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Sherman, 54 years old, died last Sunday after a heart attack in Naples Italy.

House Votes To End War With Germany

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The House today voted 376 to 0 to end the formal state of war with Germany more than six years after the shooting stopped in May, 1945. The war began Dec. 11, 1941.

The resolution, requested by President Truman, now goes to the Senate.

Although there was no opposition, Rep. Sabath (D-Ill) told the House he hopes that now the war is about over, the Germans won't start preparing for a new war of conquest of their own.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) also commented that Western German business firms are helping Communists by sending them strategic materials.

Increased Figure Causes Confusion

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall threw top Pentagon officials into considerable confusion tonight with his testimony on Capitol Hill that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

The figure given by Marshall was nearly twice as great as previous official estimates.

Highest defense authorities at the Pentagon told newsmen after hours of frantic checking and double-checking that they were unable to explain or clarify the basis for Marshall's statement.

Marshall himself could not be reached. Aides said he left immediately after attending the funeral of Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, who died of a heart seizure in Italy last weekend.

Slip Of The Tongue?

There was some belief that Marshall may have made a slip of the tongue. Top aides said as far as they knew there was no change in present plans to limit the size of U. S. forces in Europe to six combat divisions totalling approximately 200,000 troops.

Newsmen pressed the top brass for an explanation shortly after Marshall came up with his surprise figure in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this forenoon.

Hours passed. From time to time, reporters were told that the matter was being "checked" and "investigated."

Finally, the answer came: There just wasn't any explanation of what Marshall meant.

Marshall also disclosed that U. S. allies in Europe have promised they will have 2,500,000 men under arms next year and will be able to throw 5,000,000 men into the field within 90 days after the outbreak of any new war.

Pleads Against Letdown

Marshall made the disclosure in voicing a plea against any letdown in American defensive spirit resulting from the Korean armistice talks and against any congressional cuts in U. S. military aid to Western Europe.

The five-star General said he was deeply shocked at what he termed the "tragic" reaction of the American people now that peace appears in prospect in Korea.

Declaring that Korea is "only an incident" in the world struggle against Communism, Marshall told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"I am more shocked by what has happened in recent days that I have been at any time since I have been in Washington."

Senate Approves Farm Fund Bill

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) —The annual Agriculture Department supply bill carrying more than a billion dollars for farm programs won Senate approval today by a vote of 65 to 6.

Several efforts to cut large items failed. In the end more than $120,000,000 was added to the total approved by the House.

Differences between the two versions will be composed by a conference committee unless the House accepts the Senate changes.

The six opposing Senate votes were cast by Republican Sens. Bennett (Utah), Dirksen (Ill.), Ferguson (Mich.), Hendrickson (N. J.), Ives (N. Y.), and Williams (Del.)

Senators disagreed as to the exact amount voted in the bill, which is for department operations in the fiscal year that started July 1.

There was no question that the Senate had approved $727,000,000 of new cash, or about $110,000,000 more than the House. It also was agreed that $262,000,000 of loan funds were voted, an increase of $10,750,000 above the House total.

Bt senators disagreed on whether such items as permanent appropriations, administrative expense limitation, and note cancellations should be counted in the new total.

State Of War Ended

BONN, Germany, July 27. (AP)—The state of war between Turkey and Germany was ended July 24, the German government announced today.

Pentagon Snafu?

Defense Dept. Washes Its Hands Of Officer's Report Of Enemy Buildup In Korea

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — The high command of U. S. armed forces publicly washed its hands tonight of a Pentagon officer's statement that while U. N. forces have halted their offensive in Korea the Communists have taken advantage of the cease-fire talks to make a "tremendous buildup" of their strength.

Clayton Fritchey, information director for the Defense Department, told reporters that the statement given out earlier by a briefing officer does not reflect official policy or views.

The whole affair assumed the proportions of a snafu of large-scale proportions.

Up to tonight the earlier statement had been regarded as an official one inasmuch as the briefing officer, departing from custom, had told newsmen they were at liberty to quote his remarks directly.

The timing of his statement was surprising. It came shortly before U. N. and Communist negotiators as Kaesong resumed talks on the touchy question of setting up a buffer zone between the opposing forces in Korea.

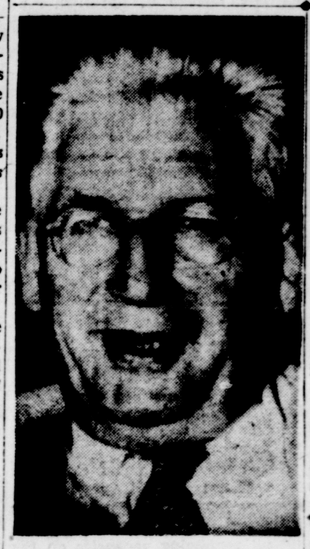
The briefing officer pointed to what he termed the "tremendous buildup" of Communist strength since preliminary truce talks started, and expressed hope this was not evidence of "bad faith."

Proof of the "good faith" of the U. S. and its United Nations partners, he said, was presented when they let the truce talks halt their advance at a time when the Reds were "hanging on the ropes."

The officer drew a sharp contrast between the increase of Communist troops, weapons and supplies and the U. N. reaction to the truce talks. He let it be known that the U. N. command, instead of building up, has pulled one sizeable unit out of the battle line since the talks started and has sent it to Japan.

This was the first indication that any U. N. forces had been withdrawn. Up to now high officers had been giving the impression that everything was being kept ready for a hard-hitting campaign if the peace talks should collapse.

Predictions were heard that today's developments here would lead to reverberations in Congress. Apparently with this in mind, among other things, Fritchey declared that the unusual on-the-record statement "should not be construed as a defense policy or a change of policy, or a policy by the Army Chief of Staff" (Gen. J. Lawton Collins).



SAYS HE'LL FIGHT — Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) announces at the Capitol that he will fight two federal judge appointments made by President Truman. He and the President are at odds over two nominations for Illinois judgeships. (AP Wirephoto)

Douglas To Fight Truman Choices For Judgeships

Senator Invokes "Obnoxious" Rule

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A battle royal which may become historic is in prospect as the result of a decision today by Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) to oppose confirmation of two of President Truman's nominees to the federal bench.

Douglas invoked the unwritten "personality obnoxious" rule in a statement saying he would fight the nominations of two men for district judgeships in Northern Illinois.

Under the law, the President nominates, but his selections must be with the "advice and consent" of the Senate. And when a senator from a nominee's home state declares the nomination personally obnoxious, the Senate rarely votes for confirmation.

Douglas' decision underscored an apparent coolness that has developed lately between the President and the freshman legislator, who himself is sometimes mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee.

But in his statement the Senator said he was "loathe to become engaged in a struggle with the President, for whom I have a genuine respect and who, in most major matters is, in my judgment, doing well."

Douglas said his opposition to the nominations of Joseph J. Drucker and Cornelius J. Harrington had been strengthened by bar association polls.

He took the unusual course of asking the Chicago and Cook County bar groups to poll their members on the relative qualifications of Drucker and Benjamin P. Epstein, and upon Harrington and William H. King, Jr.

Douglas had recommended Epstein and King about six months before the other nominations went to the Senate July 13.

Steel For Cars Is Slashed Again

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Steel for passenger car output was cut another five per cent by the government today, effective Oct. 1, to meet heavy demands for the defense program.

Other consumer items such as refrigerators, washing machines and household electrical appliances also will get about five per cent less than now.

The additional cut for passenger cars came as something of a surprise to car makers, many of whom had believed an easing in the Korean tension would permit more steel for auto production. Some forecast a hastening of an eventual new car shortage.

Under today's order by the Defense Production Administration, auto output in the October-through-December quarter will be reduced to 60 per cent of the level before the Korean war started.

This will mean a production of a little more than 1,100,000 cars, or about 100,000 less than in the present quarter and 400,000 under the April-June quarter.

Steel for household appliances in the final quarter will be about 65 per cent of their pre-Korea tonnage, compared with 70 per cent now.

Malik Tells Quakers USSR Ready To Negotiate Issues

MOSCOW, July 27. (AP)—A delegation of British Quakers said here today that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik had told them Russia is ready for "business-like" negotiations on world issues and is not interested or engaged in exporting revolutions.

The Quakers had their interview with Malik, just returned from his United Nations post in New York, last night. All information on the interview thus far has come from the Britons. Western diplomats here are waiting with interest to see whether Malik's statement will be published in the Soviet press.

The substance of what he told the delegation was made available to American newsmen in the form of full notes taken by one of the Quakers present.

Before coming to Moscow the Quakers said they conferred with British Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison and received his assurances the British government aims at peace with all governments, including the Soviet Union.

A seven-point program outlined by the Quakers to Malik included the dropping of anti-Western propaganda in the Soviet press, noninterference in the affairs of non-Communist countries, planning for drastic world disarmament and a meeting of chiefs of state

Allied Views Are Outlined By Joy

U. N. ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, July 28 (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators resumed talks today on the touchy problem of a cease-fire buffer zone in Korea—with the Reds probably arguing for a line centered on parallel 38.

Today's session—the twelfth—began promptly at 10 a. m. (7 p. m., EST Friday).

An Army announcement said the conference recessed 45 minutes later until 1:30 p. m. (10:30 p. m. EST Friday).

The announcement gave no details of what transpired at the opening session.

It was believed that the establishment of a three-mile naval neutral zone offshore also was tied to the agenda item as a U. N. proposal.

The Allies regard the present battle line—based on ridges—as a good defensive one in case the armistice talks break down and serious fighting is renewed.

Desultory Fighting

Fighting Friday was of a desultory nature. Intense Red artillery and mortar fire blocked Allied patrols seeking to seize hills on the eastern front near Yanggu. Allied planes continued to attack North Korean supply lines.

The Red view on a buffer zone was released in a broadcast Red statement at the outset of the Kaesong talks. It called for a cease-fire zone 12½ miles wide, centered along the 38th parallel.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. delegate, Friday gave the Reds a 52-minute outline of the Allied view on a line of demarcation.

He handed two colored maps, illustrating these views, to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, senior Red negotiator. Nam accepted the maps and acknowledged the Allied view without comment.

The present frontline dips south of the 38th parallel only in the extreme west. There it is below Kaesong, the conference site, which is three miles south of 38. The line is 20 miles north of the old political boundary on the central front and 35 miles north on the eastern front.

Old Defense Line Below 38

While Allied military men prefer the ridgeline defensive system they now generally hold north of 38, there is an old defense line south of the parallel. Its positions were originally laid out in 1945, shortly after the Japanese surrender, when U. S. troops occupied south Korea and the Russians occupied the north.

Yesterday's talks lasted only 72 minutes. The first 18 minutes were utilized in settling procedural matters—the mechanics of how to take up the four major points on the agenda.

The four are, in order: The buffer zone; mutual inspection behind the lines; exchange of prisoners; and "recommendations to the governments of the countries concerned on both sides"—a broad issue presumably embracing Reds demands for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Hopefuls Brave Choppy Channel

DOVER, Eng., July 27 (AP) —The English Channel was as popular today as the old swimming hole, despite choppy seas.

A young British girl failed by five miles in her attempt to make it across from France, A Swede was still in the water in a similar attempt and three other persons were poised on the English coast waiting to take the plunge.

In addition, six Egyptians set off for France in a motorboat, determined to swim back across to Folkestone, Eng. And two English swimmers, Doris Fell, 17, and Phil Rising, 41, a Yorkshireman, said they would have a try at the chilly channel the same time as the Egyptians.

Kathleen Mayoh, 18, British factory worker, was pulled from the water by her parents after she had swum about 16 miles in 15 hours and 20 minutes from Cap Gris Nez, France. Her parents said she was too tired and the seas too rough. Kathleen herself insisted on continuing, pulling away from her parents' small boat. However, they caught up with her and pulled her in.

Lars Warle, 31, a bank clerk from Karlskrona, Sweden, was unreported somewhere in the channel tonight. He had left Cap Gris Nez several minutes before the Mayoh girl.

Westernport Man Appointed Savage River Dam Caretaker

The Upper Potomac River Commission has appointed Francis D. Glass, Westernport water system superintendent, as operator and caretaker of the Savage River Dam.

Glass, who has headed the Westernport water system for six and one-half years, will take over his duties August 1. The salary for the position is $4,000 annually.

He and his wife will reside at the neat two story brick home at the dam.

Veteran Of War

Prior to taking over the Westernport position, Glass was employed by the C. and A. Gas Company for 14 years as supervisor of transmission and distribution lines.

He is a veteran of World War 2 and is a charter member of Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, and a charter member of Voiture No. 1212, Forty and Eight.

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners has appropriated funds to the Upper Potomac group for the operation of the dam which was constructed for the regulation of the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The commission will also hire two assistants for Glass. The group has also informed the county commissioners that from time to time it will be necessary to employ a graduate engineer for supervisory work. The engineer for these duties has not been appointed.

Telephonic Control

Operation of the dam will be governed by telephonic devices placed at Kitzmiller, Luke and below the spillway of the dam.

The U. S. Geological Survey office here states that this system has been set up to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second in the river.

This will be sufficient to properly take care of sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the river.

In the event of high water, the dam will be used to check the river. Geological Survey officials said the dam can, by holding back Savage River, keep the river level down two feet at Cumberland.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

PARIS (INS) — This may give you an inkling of the manner in which the Reds have concentrated on Gen. Ike Eisenhower, in an effort to break the devoted confidence of Atlantic pact nations in him.

On the wintry night when the General and his pleasant wife arrived in their frigid hotel suite in Versailles, Mamie turned on her radio — while the General settled down to read. The French radio wrangled on in what seems to be its perpetually angry way, then, after a station break, lapsed into English. The General heard his name, put down his book and moved closer to the radio with his wife.

The program was announced as a "reenactment" of their arrival earlier that day at Cherbourg. The radio actor who took Eisenhower's part in the phony drama made several preposterous speeches, interrupted now and then by the voice of a girl who was identified as his "blonde secretary." The "blonde secretary" was drunk and kept repeating "lesh have another li'l drink, General."

It was, of course, a Communist-sponsored program. For a wavering moment or two the Eisenhowers wondered whether it was worth giving up the comfort and security of Columbia.

The day before S H A P E moved into its permanent headquarters at Marcy, ten miles west of Paris, a member of the French delegation concerned with the ceremony of presenting the site to Eisenhower, inquired of Col. Jock Lawrence, Ike's deputy P. I. O., whether there would be good weather for the event.

"You seem to forget," Jock reminded him, "that there is a S U P R E M E Supreme Commander. He will decide that."

The Eisenhowers haven't had much chance to get "out on the town" in the six months they've been in the Paris area. But they had their fill of it 20 years ago, when Ike was assigned here. On one occasion, then, the couple took a girl friend of Mrs. Eisenhower to the Folies-Bergere. During the intermission the girls excused themselves, warned Ike to watch their wraps, and left him sitting alone in the raucous lobby.

It is not easy to sit very long, almost anywhere in Paris, without an offer of feminine companionship. Especially in the foyer of the Folies. In something less than four seconds, flat, the captain was the uncomfortable hub of a wheel of faded beauties, doing his best to explain why he did not want to buy them a drink.

At last he got up and tried to get away, only to discover that Mamie and her girl friend had been watching the whole scene and getting a great laugh out of it.

The General was recalling the episode the other day at his suite in the Trianon Palace hotel. He grinned and added:

"I guess I wouldn't have the same trouble today."

•—•—•

There isn't much doubt that Gen. Eisenhower is the most important man in Western Europe today. He commands a potential armed force of millions, is the target of a perpetual (and, to him, stimulating) attack by the Russian propaganda mill, is the confidant of a dozen assorted heads of state, is the rallying point of ancient nations which less than a year ago had renounced all claim to virility and swore that in the event of a war between East and West they would remain neutral.

But he is just a fixture around the house to his grandson, three-year-old David Eisenhower, who has been visiting the supreme commander.

The General was driving home a fine point on the enormous task of melding 12 nations into a united fighting force, late the other afternoon, when his grandson entered the room. David, who has no interest in ground fighting, was making noises like an airplane. He went around the room on all fours, keeping one foot ("rudder") cocked up at an angle.

At last he noticed the supreme commander, who at that moment was pounding a fist against his open hand, to emphasize a serious assertion.

"Oh, hi, Ike," the child said. Then he returned to making noises like a plane and padded out of the room.

Va. Trucking Firm Subject To $1,038 Overloading Fine

A Winchester (Va.) trucking firm is subject to the largest fine for overloading ever paid in Allegany county.

Charged with being overloaded by 17,300 pounds, Charles Clarence Spitler, Stephens City, Va., was released yesterday under $2,000 bond by Magistrate J. Milton Dick pending trial August 18 in Trial Magistrate Court. Under state law, Spitler is subject to a fine of $1,038, Dick said.

Spitler, operating a tractor-type truck belonging to the Elliott Motor Lines of Winchester, was arrested by John J. Devlin and Richard F. Boyle, of the State Roads Commission weighing crew.

Devlin and Boyle charged Spitler with having his truck overloaded for the bridge spanning the Potomac River between Wiley Ford and Cumberland. Spitler was within a half mile of releasing part of his load when stopped.

Spitler's truck was overloaded for the bridge only, being under the weight limit for the highway, officials said. It was his first alleged violation in this county.

In another case yesterday morning, James Albert Wolfe was found guilty of overloading and fined $65.45 by Magistrate Dick.

Wolfe, of Augustus, W. Va., was driving the truck of Edward V. Alkire, leased from the Cumberland Contracting Company, when apprehended by Devlin on Route 40, near Red Hill, Wednesday.

The case was appealed to Circuit Court, with Earl C. Robertson of the Cumberland Contracting Company, furnishing the necessary $250 bond.

Overloading violations in other parts of the state found James Bachtell of Hancock fined $86.75, and Richard Coddington, Friendsville $391.45. It was Bachtell's first conviction of the year and Coddington's fourth.

Westernport Man Appointed Savage River Dam Caretaker

The Upper Potomac River Commission has appointed Francis D. Glass, Westernport water system superintendent, as operator and caretaker of the Savage River Dam.

Glass, who has headed the Westernport water system for six and one-half years, will take over his duties August 1. The salary for the position is $4,000 annually.

He and his wife will reside at the neat two story brick home at the dam.

Veteran Of War

Prior to taking over the Westernport position, Glass was employed by the C. and A. Gas Company for 14 years as supervisor of transmission and distribution lines.

He is a veteran of World War 2 and is a charter member of Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, and a charter member of Voiture No. 1212, Forty and Eight.

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners has appropriated funds to the Upper Potomac group for the operation of the dam which was constructed for the regulation of the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The commission will also hire two assistants for Glass. The group has also informed the county commissioners that from time to time it will be necessary to employ a graduate engineer for supervisory work. The engineer for these duties has not been appointed.

Telephonic Control

Operation of the dam will be governed by telephonic devices placed at Kitzmiller, Luke and below the spillway of the dam.

The U. S. Geological Survey office here states that this system has been set up to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second in the river.

This will be sufficient to properly take care of sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the river.

In the event of high water, the dam will be used to check the river. Geological Survey officials said the dam can, by holding back Savage River, keep the river level down two feet at Cumberland.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

PARIS (INS) — This may give you an inkling of the manner in which the Reds have concentrated on Gen. Ike Eisenhower, in an effort to break the devoted confidence of Atlantic pact nations in him.

On the wintry night when the General and his pleasant wife arrived in their frigid hotel suite in Versailles, Mamie turned on her radio — while the General settled down to read. The French radio wrangled on in what seems to be its perpetually angry way, then, after a station break, lapsed into English. The General heard his name, put down his book and moved closer to the radio with his wife.

The program was announced as a "reenactment" of their arrival earlier that day at Cherbourg. The radio actor who took Eisenhower's part in the phony drama made several preposterous speeches, interrupted now and then by the voice of a girl who was identified as his "blonde secretary." The "blonde secretary" was drunk and kept repeating "lesh have another li'l drink, General."

It was, of course, a Communist-sponsored program. For a wavering moment or two the Eisenhowers wondered whether it was worth giving up the comfort and security of Columbia.

• — • — •

The day before S H A P E moved into its permanent headquarters at Marcy, ten miles west of Paris, a member of the French delegation concerned with the ceremony of presenting the site to Eisenhower, inquired of Col. Jock Lawrence, Ike's deputy P. I. O., whether there would be good weather for the event.

"You seem to forget," Jock reminded him, "that there is a S U P R E M E Supreme Commander. He will decide that."

• — • — •

The Eisenhowers haven't had much chance to get "out on the town" in the six months they've been in the Paris area. But they had their fill of it 20 years ago, when Ike was assigned here. On one occasion, then, the couple took a girl friend of Mrs. Eisenhower to the Folies-Bergere. During the intermission the girls excused themselves, warned Ike to watch their wraps, and left him sitting alone in the raucous lobby.

It is not easy to sit very long, almost anywhere in Paris, without an offer of feminine companionship. Especially in the foyer of the Folies. In something less than four seconds, flat, the captain was the uncomfortable hub of a wheel of faded beauties, doing his best to explain why he did not want to buy them a drink.

At last he got up and tried to get away, only to discover that Mamie and her girl friend had been watching the whole scene and getting a great laugh out of it.

The General was recalling the episode the other day at his suite in the Trianon Palace hotel. He grinned and added:

"I guess I wouldn't have the same trouble today."

• — • — •

There isn't much doubt that Gen. Eisenhower is the most important man in Western Europe today. He commands a potential armed force of millions, is the target of a perpetual (and, to him, stimulating) attack by the Russian propaganda mill, is the confidant of a dozen assorted heads of state, is the rallying point of ancient nations which less than a year ago had renounced all claim to virility and swore that in the event of a war between East and West they would remain neutral.

But he is just a fixture around the house to his grandson, three-year-old David Eisenhower, who has been visiting the supreme commander.

The General was driving home a fine point on the enormous task of melding 12 nations into a united fighting force, late the other afternoon, when his grandson entered the room. David, who has no interest in ground fighting, was making noises like an airplane. He went around the room on all fours, keeping one foot ("rudder") cocked up at an angle.

At last he noticed the supreme commander, who at that moment was pounding a fist against his open hand, to emphasize a serious assertion.

"Oh, hi, Ike," the child said. Then he returned to making noises like a plane and padded out of the room.

Ratterman's move, latest in a series of Canadian attempts to nab star U. Ratterman said the Yanks had no claim on his services and was going to Montreal because of business offers. (International)

Va. Trucking Firm Subject To $1,038 Overloading Fine

A Winchester (Va.) trucking firm is subject to the largest fine for overloading ever paid in Allegany county.

Charged with being overloaded by 17,300 pounds, Charles Clarence Spitler, Stephens City, Va., was released yesterday under $2,000 bond by Magistrate J. Milton Dick pending trial August 18 in Trial Magistrate Court. Under state law, Spitler is subject to a fine of $1,038, Dick said.

Spitler, operating a tractor-type truck belonging to the Elliott Motor Lines of Winchester, was arrested by John J. Devlin and Richard F. Boyle, of the State Roads Commission weighing crew.

Devlin and Boyle charged Spitler with having his truck overloaded for the bridge spanning the Potomac River between Wiley Ford and Cumberland. Spitler was within a half mile of releasing part of his load when stopped.

Spitler's truck was overloaded for the bridge only, being under the weight limit for the highway, officials said. It was his first alleged violation in this county.

In another case yesterday morning, James Albert Wolfe was found guilty of overloading and fined $65.45 by Magistrate Dick.

Wolfe, of Augustus, W. Va., was driving the truck of Edward V. Alkire, leased from the Cumberland Contracting Company, when apprehended by Devlin on Route 40, near Red Hill, Wednesday.

The case was appealed to Circuit Court, with Earl C. Robertson of the Cumberland Contracting Company, furnishing the necessary $250 bond.

Overloading violations in other parts of the state found James Bachtell of Hancock fined $86.75, and Richard Coddington, Friendsville $391.45. It was Bachtell's first conviction of the year and Coddington's fourth.

RFC 'Pressured' By Merle Young, Official Reveals

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A Reconstruction Finance Corporation officer said today that E. Merle Young had telephoned RFC's St. Louis office in 1948 saying the Democratic National Committee was interested in a loan application by a St. Louis firm.

James Allen, press officer and special assistant to RFC Administrator W. Stuart Symington, said Charles G. Alexander, St. Louis RFC manager, reported this in a memo dated Dec. 9, 1948.

About the same time Allen made this information available, Sen. Williams (R-Del) was giving the same report to the Senate, naming Allen as the source. He said Allen had talked to him by telephone.

Allen said that in another memo to the RFC here, Alexander reported that James P. Finnegan, former St. Louis internal revenue collector, contacted the St. Louis RFC office several times between July and December, 1949, about the loan application. Merle Young is a former RFC examiner. His name figured prominently in a recent investigation by the Fulbright Senate committee into alleged influences in obtaining government loans.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today added Young to the list of figures it says exerted influence in obtaining a $565,000 loan for the American Lithofold Corp. of St. Louis. Previously it had named Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., of the Democratic National Committee, and Finnegan as having "pressured" the RFC in connection with the application.

"Hanging Boy" Mystery Solved

MOUNT VERNON, O., July 27 (AP) — A small boy climbed a roadside tree near his farm home here today and touched an electric power line.

He wound up hanging by one foot from a crotch in the tree and touched off a first-class mystery for the few hours he was unconscious.

The victim, John Popham, 9, suffered a number of burns, but he was expected to recover.

An attending physician, noting the burns when the boy's clothing was peeled off at a hospital, said the burns might have been by a cigaret lighter.

Knox County authorities, coupling that possible theory with the fact a strange car drove near the tree during the 10 to 15 minutes John probably was dangling there, started a search for a sadist.

Then, Sheriff's Deputy M. Vernon found a power line dangling in the tree. That dampened the sadish theory and John, himself, squelched it entirely when he woke up.

Pakistan Calls Troops; Premier Warns India

KARACHI, Pakistan, July 27. (AP) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan glowed with a clenched fist today that Pakistan would not bow before "any aggression."

He made the fist his symbol in an impromptu speech to defense day paraders demonstrating against India.

His government earlier had disclosed a call-up of four more guard battalions in the midst of the war of hot words with India over Kashmir.

Threat Of Ford Shutdown Eases

DETROIT, July 27 (AP)—Threat of a nationwide Ford Motor Company shutdown was eased at least temporarily late today as UAW-CIO workers at the company's small but important supplier plant at Monroe, Mich., voted to end a wildcat walkout.

The 1,700 Monroe employes agreed to return after international UAW representatives met with the membership of Local 723 at Monroe.

Ken Bannon, national director of the UAW's Ford department advised the workers to "follow contract procedure." Bannon said the men would return at midnight Sunday. They walked out yesterday after the company disciplined a worker.

A Local 723 spokesman said a meeting would be held Sunday to poll the membership on whether a strike should be called a week later.

Earlier, Ford said continued interruption of operations at the Monroe plant, key supplier of wheels, would force a shutdown of the company's plants across the nation. The company said there were five earlier walkouts there.

Doctor Chooses Private's Position To Commission

INDIANAPOLIS, July 27. (AP) —A 27-year-old physician, drafted for Army service, chose a $75 a month private's position to a lieutenant's commission paying about $400 a month.

The physician, Dr. Robert Beconovich, Hammond, Ind., was an infantryman in World War II. He later completed his medical education and has been a practicing physician for two years. He has a wife and two children.

Indiana State Selective Service officials who talked with him yesterday said he was "very reasonable" about going into service again, but he gave no explanation to them or to newsmen about why he preferred a private's job.

Burglary Suspect Slain By Policeman

BALTIMORE, July 27 (AP) — A Baltimore policeman early today shot and killed a burglary suspect who tried to fight his way free with a soldiering iron.

Sergeant William Clayton reported that he and two other officers found three negroes inside a Harlem Avenue tavern where the back door had been smashed in.

Clayton said one of the men hurled a whiskey bottle at him and then attacked with a soldiering iron. Clayton dropped him with one shot.

The dead man was identified as 23-year-old Herbert Porter.

Dunked Quartet To Salvage Raft

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., July 27 (AP)—Four young experimenters in social conduct fished their belongings from the Ohio River today, still bent on floating down to New Orleans.

They want to learn what happens to mind and manners when two bachelors and two women have to live cooped up together for several weeks on a 12-by 20-foot raft.

"It was sad when the great ship went down," they sang, from a ballad about the sinking of the "Titanic."

Their great ship, called "Lethargia," was upside down near the West Virginia shore at Round Bottom, just downstream from Moundsville.

"Lethargia" capsized yesterday after hitching a two with a big river tug. The tug was too fast. It swamped the raft, built on oil drums with a canvas covered cabin about eight feet square.

Mary Ellen McGrady, a 24-year-old sociology student at the University of Michigan, and Geraldine Garcia, 23-year-old artist from Boston, managed to scramble aboard the tug.

Milton Borden, 30, from New Bedford, Mass., swam to the tug. Don Brown, 24-year-old Michigan student from Detroit, went down for a long time. But he came up, grabbed an oar and swam to the West Virginia shore.

Borden said the cabin will have to be unbolted before the "Lethargia" can be turned right side up again.

He thinks he and Brown can do it.

Truman Assails Hungarian Purge

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — President Truman today condemned mass evictions in Hungary, and said the United States will take appropriate steps to hold that Communist government "accountable before the world for its infamous conduct."

In a statement, he said the forced removal of thousands of persons from their homes "must be regarded as a flagrant violation" of the human rights provisions of Hungary's peace treaty, and that detailed evidence will be submitted to the United Nations.

The State Department radio has been hitting for some time at a reported Hungarian purge of "undesirables." It said two weeks ago that 30,000 persons had been evicted from their homes in Budapest as a part of the program.

One deportee was quoted as saying in a smuggled letter:

"There are 30 of us living in a stable. We are bedded down on straw. We are whipped and—upon orders of our guards—are forbidden to talk. We are mute the whole day long. Are we, then, men or animals? I would say we have become animals. The Soviets have completed the evolutionary cycle."

The President's statement was handed to reporters by his secretary, Joseph Short, without comment.

Main Tower Of Bay Bridge Is Completed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (AP)— One of the main towers stands completed, 354 feet above the water, and workmen next week will pour the largest single chunk of concrete in Maryland's $45,000,000 Chesapeake Bay bridge.

A progress report on the big span today showed that the steel framework reaches out 6,000 feet from the western shore at Sandy Point.

When completed, the bridge will cross a little more than four miles of water. The state hopes to have it open to traffic about the Fourth of July next year.

"Slain Man" Found Alive Faces Charge Of Murder

NEW ORLEANS, July 27 (AP) — Sam Jones, a "murder victim" found alive in Denver, Colo., faced a charge of murder when he arrived here by plane tonight.

Accompanied by officers, he was taken immediately to the Jefferson Parish jail at Gretna, La., across the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Jefferson Parish (county) District Attorney Frank Langridge said he had accepted a "John Doe" murder charge against Jones in connection with the unidentified body found in a swamp near here in 1949.

The district attorney said Donald Easterwood, 26-year-old welding student who was acquitted of slaying Jones, was arrested as a material witness. He was released under $2,500 bond.

Until Wednesday night when he was found in Denver by an acquaintance, Jones was believed to be the dead man found in the Jefferson Parish swamp.

The Jones murder case was closed when Donald Easterwood was acquitted and Ernest Howard, a 51-year-old carpenter, also charged with murder in Jones' death, died of a heart attack awaiting trial.

But Jones' discovery in Denver brought to light a weird tangle of errors in the case and officers have started investigating anew.

Deputy Sheriff John Faulkner was working today on a theory that the murder victim — whose body showed knife wounds in the heart and lungs—was a man named Freddie Dickerson.

That was the name used in Denver by Jones after he left his filling station job here in 1949 and vanished for a two-year period until recognized by John C. Painter.

Extra Leave Voted For Postal Workers

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate late today voted to increase annual leave for 475,000 Post Office Department workers from 15 to 20 days, at an estimated cost of $30,000,000 to $35,000,000.

Then senators passed by voice vote a bill providing nearly $3,000,000,000 in operating funds for the Post Office and Treasury Departments for the current fiscal year, which began July 1.

Boy Places Obstacle On B. And O. Tracks

FREDERICK, Md., July 27 (AP)— A 14-year-old Washington, D. C., boy was taken into custody by juvenile authorities here today after admitting he placed iron spikes and rails on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks near Monrovia.

A power-operated track maintenance car hit the obstacle, but was going so slow at the time it did not overturn and the two men aboard were unhurt.

Police Lt. M. C. McGaha said however, that if the car had been going fast, or if a freight train had hit the obstacle, a derailment would have occurred.

RFC 'Pressured' By Merle Young, Official Reveals

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A Reconstruction Finance Corporation officer said today that E. Merle Young had telephoned RFC's St. Louis office in 1948 saying the Democratic National Committee was interested in a loan application by a St. Louis firm.

James Allen, press officer and special assistant to RFC Administrator W. Stuart Symington, said Charles G. Alexander, St. Louis RFC manager, reported this in a memo dated Dec. 9, 1948.

About the same time Allen made this information available, Sen. Williams (R-Del) was giving the same report to the Senate, naming Allen as the source. He said Allen had talked to him by telephone.

Allen said that in another memo to the RFC here, Alexander reported that James P. Finnegan, former St. Louis internal revenue collector, had contacted the St. Louis RFC office 21 times between July and December, 1949, about the loan application.

Merle Young is a former RFC examiner. His name figured prominently in a recent investigation by the Fulbright Senate committee into alleged influences in obtaining government loans.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today added Young to the list of figures it says exerted influence in obtaining a $565,000 loan for the American Lithofold Corp. of St. Louis. Previously it had named Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., of the Democratic National Committee, and Finnegan as having "pressured" the RFC in connection with the application.

"Hanging Boy" Mystery Solved

MOUNT VERNON, O., July 27 (AP) — A small boy climbed a roadside tree near his farm home near here today and touched an electric power line.

He wound up hanging by one foot from a crotch in the tree and touched off a first-class mystery for the few hours he was unconscious.

The victim, John Popham, 9, suffered a number of burns, but he was expected to recover.

An attending physician, noting the burns when the boy's clothing was peeled off at a hospital, said the burns might have been by a cigaret lighter.

Knox County authorities, coupling that possible theory with the fact a strange car drove near the tree during the 10 to 15 minutes John probably was dangling there, started a search for a sadist.

Then, Sheriff's Deputy M. Vernon found a power line dangling in the tree. That dampened the sadism theory and John, himself, squelched it entirely when he woke up.

Election In Israel

The general election in Israel—scheduled for July 30—brings to the foreground bitter controversies over economic controls, East-West proclivities, the place of religion in civil life. On the eve of the election the Mapai Socialist party of Prime Minister Ben-Gurion was expected to stay in power without winning a majority in the Knesset (parliament).

In any event the new government, like the outgoing one, will be a coalition. Ben-Gurion's group, to form a cabinet, would combine with one or more of the more conservative parties.

Communism looms as no threat in the election. The Communist party—legal in the young republic—polled only 3.6 per cent of the vote and captured only four of 120 seats in February, 1949, when the first parliament was elected.

A more powerful left-wing party, Mapam, polled 14.8 per cent of the vote in 1949 and held 19 seats in the outgoing Knesset. Although pro-Soviet in orientation, even the "extremists" in Mapam are discomfitted by the Kremlin's anti-Zionist policy. With Ben-Gurion's Mapai and the other center parties openly seeking cooperation with the West, Mapam proposes a position of guarded neutralism for Israel.

Ben-Gurion's party won 35.7 per cent of the vote in 1949 and held 46 seats in the outgoing Knesset. After Mapai and Mapam rank the United Religious Front (Orthodox), with 16 seats; the Herut (right-wing descendant of the extremist Irgun organization), with 14 seats; the General Zionists (center), with seven seats; the Progressives, with five seats.

Prime Minister Ben-Gurion and his cabinet resigned on February 14, after losing a parliamentary test on secular education in immigrant camps. Previously, in October, 1950, Ben-Gurion had solved a cabinet crisis by making concessions to the Orthodox bloc.

Ben-Gurion stayed on in February, however, after political leaders decided on February 25 to retain his coalition cabinet in a caretaker status. July 30 was set as the date for the new election by a law passed in April, which also set up standards for voting. All persons born before 1933 who registered as residents of Israel prior to April 1 are eligible to vote.

Ben-Gurion's government has been, of necessity, a product of compromise. When the Orthodox groups insisted that Kosher food be made available to Orthodox soldiers, he agreed to serve only Kosher food to the whole army. At the same time he insisted that rations be served on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), though to the Orthodox the sight of any Jew eating on that day is distasteful.

Ben-Gurion's quarrel on economic controls is with the General Zionists, who demand fewer curbs on imports and distribution. Israel suffers severely from inflation and black-market activities.

Israel has as yet no constitution. The Knesset in June, 1950, voted against adopting a full written constitution for the next few years. Ben-Gurion wants to "wait until we all are here." Since the 1949 election, the population has grown more than 57 per cent, the number of eligible voters almost 58 per cent.

New Lands For Old

It is easy to accept the statement by Dr. G. J. Van Heuven Goedhart, UN high commissioner for refugees, that the refugee problem in Europe is not yet solved. How could it be?

During and immediately after World War II literally millions of persons were forced to leave their native lands and seek safety in whatever nations would open their doors to them. To imagine that all of these men, women, and children have been permanently relocated by this time is to be blind to the difficulties which the commission has had to overcome.

Today there are still tens and tens of thousands living in refugee camps and wondering what fate has in store for them. While there are countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Italy, which are willing to receive a certain number of displaced persons, the UN commissioner is of the opinion that many refugees will be better off if they can be resettled in the states where the camps are situated.

They have been where they are for so long a period that removal to still another nation will subject them to unnecessary hardships. These refugees have been tragic figures in post-war life. Most of them will never see their old homes again. They deserve the kindness and humane treatment they are getting under the auspices of the United Nations.

Corn Prospects

As the wheat crop moves out of the agricultural picture corn prospects will become the center of attraction, with all eyes centered on the nation's major livestock-producing grain, at a time when meat is needed for both peace and the possibility of war. As of this date the corn prospects are most pleasing, indeed, with forecasts of the year's yield placed at three and one-quarter billion bushels. This approximates the defense-program goal set up by the Department of Agriculture.

That is a lot of corn even for this nation to produce. It is 100,000,000 bushels more than was produced last year, one of the best corn years in history. It is considerably more than the ten-year average of 2,980,777,000 bushels. Corn has a way of surpassing early forecasts, given good weather.

As for wheat, the nation will produce something over a billion bushels this year. This compares with the crop of last year, and also with the ten-year average, by which crop yields are generally judged.

The Kansas crop has finally been pegged at around 140,000,000 bushels, previous estimates having been discounted by unfavorable harvest weather. And corn prospects in Kansas were never better.

Irresponsible Driving

Among the increasing nation-wide efforts to bring safety to the streets and highways through regulation of motor car traffic, none is more unusual or drastic than action recently taken in the state of Michigan, where a wild driver, with a long history of traffic violations, has been committed to a mental institution.

The sanity commission did not rule that the man was insane, but said he was a psychopathic personality of an unstable type—that he was "irresponsible and emotionally immature."

Practically every state is moving in the direction of traffic safety. Many have declared war on drivers who have been drinking. But safety officials say these constitute a small percentage of dangerous drivers. They declare the irresponsible, the showoffs, the "emotionally immature" combine to form the real menace to traffic safety.

It is not necessary to go far in everyday traffic to discover there are scores of persons operating motor cars who do not have the faintest idea of how to control the power created by the modern internal combustion engine.

How To Keep Well

Cat Scratches May Lead To Disease

The cat is on the medical carpet again. It is an established fact that this animal carries disease and, as pets go, its bite is more serious to humans that of a dog. Now we are confronted with a new disease, cat scratch fever, which is not as innocent as the term sounds.

In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine Doctors Greer and Keefer told of a middle-aged man who awakened one morning to find the house cat licking the left side of his neck. He was scratched on the right hand at the same time, presumably while reaching, in his semi-conscious condition to find what was going on.

The incident was forgotten until four days later when he noticed a swollen gland on the left side of his neck. Swelling increased until the lesion reached the size of a hen's egg. Neither pain nor tenderness was present. By the end of a week the man began to feel weak, tired, and somewhat chilly. Penicillin was administered and warm moist dressings were applied to the glandular area. At the end of two weeks he failed to improve and was admitted to the hospital. His temperature was 100 degrees F. and weakness was becoming more marked. In addition a large raised red spot appeared on the shin of the right leg and a rash was making progress on his arms.

A thorough study and special blood tests were made. A vial of cat fever antigen was procured from Cincinnati for testing against this possibility. The result was a positive reaction. All the other tests were negative and, to make doubly certain, the cat fever antigen was injected into the skin of six healthy persons, who showed no reaction. The patient's temperature continued to rise and for the next three days remained at 102 degrees F. Then the neck glands began to drain and from that point on he made a dramatic recovery.

Cat scratch fever resembles rabbit fever (tularemia), except that it is milder and is always associated with the scratch of a cat. Weakness, fever, and rash usually occur. A virus is thought to be responsible. Most cases to date have been observed among children in France and Switzerland. The animals that did the scratching rarely were sick and it has been concluded that the disease was passed on mechanically from the cat's mouth.

Cats are capable of transmitting several diseases to man. Rabies is one of the most severe and a rabid feline is a serious menace to humans. In a series of 588 rabid animals, 34 were cats. At the Illinois state department of public health, 18 out of 416 positive animal heads over a four year period were those of cats. The percentage is not as high as in dogs but these statistics indicate that cats do suffer from the malady. They sometimes hide in dark areas and come forth for vicious attacks. They die like dogs whenever they become affected.

Cats also spread tularemia, virus pneumonia, diphtheria, brucellosis, tuberculosis, typhus, ringworm, creeping eruption, and various other disorders. A Boston staff physician was overheard to say that last winter his family kitten developed an upper respiratory infection. It sneezed in a child's face several times and subsequently several members of the household came down with a cold. Human beings are just as bad. They transmit many of their diseases to cats.

ARRESTED TB

Mrs. D. writes: Is it safe for a mother with arrested tuberculosis to nurse her baby?

REPLY

Tuberculosis and pregnancy do not go well together but if the disease did not flare up before or after the birth of the baby there is no reason why breast feeding should be prohibited.

WEAK LIMBS

N. M. writes: Could vitamin deficiency cause weakness of the left arm and leg?

REPLY

Yes. Peripheral neuritis caused by a vitamin B deficiency can produce such symptoms. However, there are other origins of weakness of the extremities on one side.

Taxpayers To Subsidize Almost Two-Thirds Of Greek Food Ration At Cheaper Prices Than Americans Pay; OPS Demoralized While Awaiting Congress' Action

WASHINGTON — No announcement has been made to the American people, but, while their own food prices skyrocket, they will foot the bill to keep Greek food prices down. For the United States has agreed to subsidize over half of the Greek diet at cut-rate prices.

What happened in Greece is that a timid government permitted inflation to push prices out of reach of the average Greek. The Greek government refused to pass high taxes or inflation controls, so, to combat a sure breeder of communism, the U.S.A. has promised to underwrite a three-year rationing program.

Thus we will subsidize approximately 65 per cent of the Greek ration, or 1,500 calories out of a total daily ration of 2,400 calories. But what's more, the United States will not only guarantee the food, but will supply it at below-market prices. In other words, the American taxpayers will guarantee all Greeks two out of three meals a day—at cheaper prices than the Americans are paying for their own food.

This is on top of $2,000,000,000 in aid that has already been poured into Greece since the end of the war.

NOTE—Real profiteers are the Greek shipowners, who have grown fabulously wealthy overnight shipping ECA cargo. They bought their ships at bargain-basement prices from the United States, and are now charging scandalously high rates for use of these ships. In return, they are paying no taxes to the United States and almost none in Greece.

Price Stalemate

While Congress has been haggling over price controls, the Office of Price Stabilization has come to a virtual standstill. This is revealed in a confidential memo from price headquarters to all branch chiefs and section heads.

Marked "for internal use only," the memo shows how the price agency has bogged down and become demoralized while waiting for Congress to make up it mind about controls.

"Naturally we regret the present situation since it has brought to a halt the development of five months of carefully considered and hard work," the memo declares. "However, neither recrimination nor looking for an easy way out will resolve our problems, and we ask that the agency continue to stand together as a team until such time as its immediate course can be more clearly charted."

The memo instructs price chiefs throughout the country that price boss Mike Di Salle "desires to maintain the status quo . . . In connection with our manufacturer regulations as well as with most other price actions."

"As just one example," the confidential memo points out, "Mr. Di Salle felt that if we issued only price-increase actions during this period, Congress could take the position that we were showing pique and petulance and trying to place it in the worst light. . . . Accordingly, our job is to make the best of a bad situation until such time as it is resolved by Congress."

Headaches And Humor

The most unpopular agency in the government, as everybody knows, is the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which collects our taxes. Actually however, the BIR is made up of human beings who, despite their unpleasant job, manage to get a few chuckles out of their relations with John Q. Public.

For instance, a disgruntled taxpayer recently wrote the Bureau:

"'—And from him that hath not . . . shall be taken away even that which he hath.'

"That's from the Bible, you lugs, and I think it's the only part you believe in."

Another taxpayer attached this note to his income return: "Only two things in life are certain—death and taxes. What I resent is that they don't come in that order."

The BIR has heard about every alibi in the book for the filing of delinquent returns, but the most unusual came from a man who confessed: "I would have paid this sooner only I was laid up with a fractured uncle." Another taxpayer, explaining why he listed his mother-in-law as a dependent, added: "She eats like a horse."

Bureau officials get a lot of poetry in the mail, some of it anonymous and unprintable. A frustrated citizen attached the following to his return:

A man stood at the Pearly Gate,
His face was worn and old;
He merely asked of the Man of Fate
Admission to the fold.

"What have you done?" St. Peter asked,
"To seek admission here?"
"Why, I tried," said the man, "to figure
"My tax till the end of the year."

The gates swung open sharply,
As St. Peter touched the bell;
"Come in," he said, "and take a harp,
"You've had enough of hell."

The Bureau received an anonymous letter from a taxpayer who felt that his obligation to the government was greater than his tax. Enclosed was a substantial check, with an attached note: "Inasmuch as I wish to remain anonymous, you will please pardon me for not signing this check."

Another taxpayer being interviewed by a deputy collector was trying to get away with a whopping list of dependency claims. The deputy, knowing that the man was lying, turned to another collector and jokingly inquired:

"John, what time does that bus load of people who have gypped the government leave today for the federal penitentiary?"

"Man, I just remembered," interrupted the startled taxpayer. "Scratch all those names off. I don't support nobody but myself."

Running Battle Ahead

By MARK SULLIVAN

Wage and price controls exist. They are in the statute Congress passed last September, and in directives issued by the President. The agencies for carrying them out are functioning. These controls are not likely to be terminated by any last minute development in the Conference Committee of the two branches of Congress which at this writing is formulating the final form of the new bill dealing with controls generally. In neither House during the debate on the new legislation was any serious proposal made to terminate wage and price controls.

What remains to be seen is the effect that new price and wage controls will have. As to prices, the most important ones are those of food, which compose the largest factor in cost of living. And about prices of food the effect of the new control law is severely limited. For the principal influence in prices of food is the prices pair farmers for their crops. And in this field the strongest statutory force remains where it has been, in the law providing for price support of farm crops, administered by the Department of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture has much more power over prices of food than Price Stabilizer DiSalle has under the new controls law.

Floors, Not Ceilings

What price support of farm crops does, far from putting ceilings over prices is to put floors under them. The floors are established by fixing "support prices" at which the Department of Agriculture stands ready to buy immense portions of farm crops, in order to take them off the market, or by other methods prevent prices from going down. The support prices becomes floors. Once these are fixed, the authority of Price Stabilizer DiSalle is confined to actions on levels above the farmer, actions about prices charged by retailers, wholesalers and processors of food.

The new controls law itself specifically forbids Price Stabilizer DiSalle to do anything about prices of most farm crops, limits him to only such farm crops as are above the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. One of the few such crops is beef, and thus Price Stabilizer DiSalle had opportunity to decree a rollback in prices paid farmers and other producers for cattle. As of today, price support of farm crops remains as it has been, if anything it is broader. The firm tendency of it is to prevent any fall in prices of farm crops, hence of food.

As respects wages, the new controls bill confers a large power and sets up an agency to administer the power. As to what this agency can or may do, there is light in what has already taken place. Last January, when the whole set-up of control agencies was established, there was included a Wage Stabilization Board, made up of three representatives of labor, three of industry, and three of the public. Early in its existence the board ordered a broad ceiling on wages, 10 per cent above what had been the level more than a year before, in January 1950.

Technical Orders

This order was immediately and vigorously protested by organized labor. The three labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board withdrew. The protest from organized labor went farther. Representatives of labor organizations, including CIO and AFL, organized what was called the United Labor Policy Committee. The Committee attacked the whole board mobilization program, demanded larger representation for labor on the top levels of it; 13 important labor leaders on various mobilization agencies withdrew. After some weeks of tension between the Truman Administration and organized labor, and some yielding by the Administration, a new Wage Stabilization Board was set up.

The new Wage Stabilization Board exists and functions. So does organized labor exist and function, in its way. It has made demands for wage raises in industry after industry, in some cases has struck to get them, in most cases has won the demands. However new wage rates demanded by labor and conceded by employers, are subject to approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

What the Wage Stabilization Board does or will do about advances in wages, is embodied in orders and statements issued by the board. The present writer, having gone through some 25 pages of these, finds it difficult to understand them. They teem with technicalities including such terms as "base pay period abnormalities," "tandem salary increases." One gathers that the board in passing on a wage raise, judges by whether it conforms to the standard ceiling, 10 per cent above January, 1950. One judges too that the board makes many exceptions to the standard.

Apparently what lies ahead is a long running battle between organized labor demanding wage raises, and the Wage Stabilization Board resisting them or making exceptions of them. Whether there is to be a standard ceiling over wages, firm enough to be a dependable check to the rising wage-price spiral and inflation, is decidedly not yet decided.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — When the Secretary of State makes an address, a good deal of deliberate planning lies behind his words. From his staff of policy-makers come memoranda that lay down the points that must be emphasized to fit changing situations.

But the speech which Secretary Acheson made at Detroit is baffling in its ambiguity. The words at times are those of a MacArthur but the acts which are contemporaneously recorded in the news dispatches are those of a Chamberlain.

What Dean Acheson says is important because, for all practical purposes, he is president of the United States. He is virtually commander-in-chief of the army, navy, and air force. He defines their scope of action. For Mr. Truman does what Mr. Acheson tells him to do. No man in the office of Secretary of State heretofore has had the opportunity to wield such power, first, because no president ever delegated as much authority to him and, second, because no comparable issues fell to a secretary of state to decide. Mr. Acheson told a Senate committee recently that a cease-fire in Korea around the 38th Parallel would be a "victorious" conclusion of the war there, and he emphasized that this would mean that aggression had been repelled.

Aggressor Not Tamed

Yet now, in his Detroit speech, the Secretary says the aggressor hasn't been tamed at all. He adds:

"We are in great danger, greater perhaps than many Americans now appreciate. This danger is not less than it was a month ago, although some of us seem to think so. . . Whether or not an armistice results from the talks in Korea, the fundamental job ahead of us will not change . . . Whether or not there is peace in Korea, whether our adversaries are cooing like doves or growling like bears, our job remains the same. The threat we face remains the same."

This would seem to imply that the sacrifices made by the UN forces, including casualties of 80,000 Americans, have not swerved the aggressor from his course. Then comes this curious paragraph:

"Neither war nor weakness is the way to meet the Soviet challenge. We will counter force with force, if necessary, but war does not solve problems—it multiplies them. Weakness, on the other hand, would lead to defeat, with or without war."

The foregoing — countering force with maximum force—was the main theme of General MacArthur's frequent messages to his superiors in Washington and of his Boston speech, too. It was because of his exposition of this very doctrine in his message to the enemy commander that he was summarily removed from all his command.

But, while it is sound doctrine whether Mr. Acheson or General MacArthur expresses it, the Secretary of State qualifies it almost immediately when he says:

"Between these two extremes—a middle course, which seeks to block Soviet expansionism without war, by building an effective system of collective security, and by making it strong. This is the course we are following."

Explains "Middle Course"

Then comes the explanation of what that "middle course" is:

"We do not have to match the Soviet armies man for man, or gun for gun, since our mission is to deter, not to attack, but we have a long way to go before we reach a safe deterrent level."

What kind of gobbledygook is this for our military chiefs to digest? Is a military force built solely to be strong on the defensive? Is there no thought given to offensive strength sufficient to win a war when the enemy has begun it? Does Acheson amplifies his thinking thus:

"What we are building is an adequate deterrent force against military attack. We already have the means to guarantee that a general military attack against us would be so costly to the aggressors. We can now achieve a force of sufficient size to make it plain that such an attack could not succeed."

Does this mean that America has adopted a policy of being willing to accept stalemates in future wars? Has "victory" been deleted from our vocabulary as well as the plans of our military forces?- Is the enemy to be given to understand that if an attack is made and he fails to penetrate our lines, we will agree to "cease fires" and compromises like the 38th Parallel sort of stalemate? Is Korea to be a pattern for future military policy?

Plainly the Detroit speech by Secretary Acheson is a revelation of the new concept of American military policy—not to fight to win but just to keep the enemy from winning. If that is all our army, navy and air force are to be permitted to do in the next war, then the Soviets may some day accept the realistic though unwitting description of the morale of UN countries what Mr. Acheson says: "It must be understood that weakness not only invites attack; what is often more menacing, it paralyzes the will to resist and makes for political disintegration."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Tidelands Cases

I became interested in the tidelands cases for two reasons, perhaps somewhat different from those which immediately trouble the people of the states of California, Texas and Louisiana.

The first reason is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the revenues of state governments. In some states, in which the federal government has established vast national parks and reservations, state revenues are in such a dismal condition that the states turn to Washington for a hand-out. This is bad practice. It was part of the theory of the New Dealers that states should be abolished and that the United States should be divided into administrative provinces—nine, if my memory serves me.

Such a procedure would have destroyed the soverignty of the states and would have established an administrative system that could have been a basis for a totalitarian government. The scheme failed and has been forgotten, but federal encroachment on the rights of the states and of the people thereof has continued, often in such small respects that it amounts to a whittling process that can, in time, completely alter our form of government.

The second reason for my interest in the tidelands question is that in the case of the United States V. Texas, the Supreme Court deciding against the state 4 to 3, Mr. Justice Hugo Black and Mr. Justice William O. Douglas employed startling language, as in the California case, which ought not to be permitted to stand as precedents in American law.

The theory that what, at a particular moment, an administration of government believes to be necessary is ipso facto right is not American but Nazi law. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, throughout his long career as an Hegelian philosopher, essayist and jurist did believe that law as a function of the power of the state involved no moral criteria, but both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States conceived of law in this country as a limited procedure which, in the case of the individual must not breach his inalienable rights and, in the case of states, must not invade their jurisdiction beyond specific provisions of the Constitution.

Whereas the Democratic party pays lip service to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, the tendency both the Roosevelt and Truman administration has been to ignore all limitations on the assumption that the necessities of the government are paramount. In the California and Texas cases, the Supreme Court upheld this doctrine without giving ever a very clear definition of what necessities of the government.

Moreover when such phrases are employed as "bare legal title" or "mere property ownership," the peril is far beyond these particular cases.

Our social and economic life is organized around "legal titles." A man has a legal title to his home, his automobile, his furniture, his television set, etc., and that is all that he has. That legal title is his sole right to possess whatever he has, even the suit on his back.

There are countries where a "legal title" does not exist for the individual but is vested in the government. In such countries, the government can, in pursuit of so-called necessities, divest the individual of his possessions, because the title to the means of production, distribution and exchange is socially vested in the state. This is Marxiam socialism, now practiced in Soviet Russia and other Communist countries.

When, therefore, a Justice of the United States Supreme Court denounces "legal titles" by using such an adjective as "bare" to describe them, he is moving a step toward the concept that a legal title is not important per se. Ignoring for the moment all other considerations in these tidelands cases, such a concept as this held by Mr. Justice Douglas must not be permitted to stand:

"Property rights must then be subordinated to political rights in substance to coalesce and unite in the national sovereign . . .

The American conception of property rights is that they exist by right of law and not by the fiat of the administration in power. Were it otherwise, it would be possible for the Republicans, when they achieved power, to deny property rights to Democrats and vice versa. As a matter of fact, this process is actually employed today in countries where nationalization is incomplete, such as China and Czechoslovakia and it was used by Soviet Russia to deprive land-owning farmers, Kulaks, of their property.

In a word, here we have an issue that transcends oil and goes to the heart of the American philosophy of life.

Ben-Gurion stayed on in February, however, after political leaders decided on February 25 to retain his coalition cabinet in a caretaker status. July 30 was set as the date for the new election by a law passed in April, which also set up standards for voting. All persons born before 1933 who registered as residents of Israel prior to April 1 are eligible to vote.

Ben-Gurion's government has been, of necessity, a product of compromise. When the Orthodox groups insisted that Kosher food be made available to Orthodox soldiers, he agreed to serve only Kosher food to the whole army. At the same time he insisted that rations be served on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), though to the Orthodox the sight of any Jew eating on that day is distasteful.

Ben-Gurion's quarrel on economic controls is with the General Zionists, who demand fewer curbs on imports and distribution. Israel suffers severely from inflation and black-market activities.

Israel has as yet no constitution. The Knesset in June, 1950, voted against adopting a full written constitution for the next few years. Ben-Gurion wants to "wait until we all are here." Since the 1949 election, the population has grown more than 57 per cent, the number of eligible voters almost 58 per cent.

New Lands For Old

It is easy to accept the statement by Dr. G. J. Van Heuven Goedhart, UN high commissioner for refugees, that the refugee problem in Europe is not yet solved. How could it be?

During and immediately after World War II literally millions of persons were forced to leave their native lands and seek safety in whatever nations would open their doors to them. To imagine that all of these men, women, and children have been permanently relocated by this time is to be blind to the difficulties which the commission has had to overcome.

Today there are still tens and tens of thousands living in refugee camps and wondering what fate has in store for them. While there are countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Italy, which are willing to receive a certain number of displaced persons, the UN commissioner is of the opinion that many refugees will be better off if they can be resettled in the states where the camps are situated.

They have been where they are for so long a period that removal to still another nation will subject them to unnecessary hardships. These refugees have been tragic figures in post-war life. Most of them will never see their old homes again. They deserve the kindness and humane treatment they are getting under the auspices of the United Nations.

Corn Prospects

As the wheat crop moves out of the agricultural picture corn prospects will become the center of attraction, with all eyes centered on the nation's major livestock-producing grain, at a time when meat is needed for both peace and the possibility of war. As of this date the corn prospects are most pleasing, indeed, with forecasts of the year's yield placed at three and one-quarter billion bushels. This approximates the defense-program goal set up by the Department of Agriculture.

That is a lot of corn even for this nation to produce. It is 100,000,000 bushels more than was produced last year, one of the best corn years in history. It is considerably more than the ten-year average of 2,980,777,000 bushels. Corn has a way of surpassing early forecasts, given good weather.

As for wheat, the nation will produce something over a billion bushels this year. This compares with the crop of last year, and also with the ten-year average, by which crop yields are generally judged.

The Kansas crop has finally been pegged at around 140,000,000 bushels, previous estimates having been discounted by unfavorable harvest weather. And corn prospects in Kansas were never better.

Irresponsible Driving

Among the increasing nation-wide efforts to bring safety to the streets and highways through regulation of motor car traffic, none is more unusual or drastic than action recently taken in the state of Michigan, where a wild driver, with a long history of traffic violations, has been committed to a mental institution.

The sanity commission did not rule that the man was insane, but said he was a psychopathic personality of an unstable type—that he was "irresponsible and emotionally immature."

Practically every state is moving in the direction of traffic safety. Many have declared war on drivers who have been drinking. But safety officials say these constitute a small percentage of dangerous drivers. They declare the irresponsible, the showoffs, the "emotionally immature" combine to form the real menace to traffic safety.

It is not necessary to go far in everyday traffic to discover there are scores of persons operating motor cars who do not have the faintest idea of how to control the power created by the modern internal combustion engine.

How To Keep Well

Cat Scratches May Lead To Disease

The cat is on the medical carpet again. It is an established fact that this animal carries disease and, as pets go, its bite is more serious to humans that of a dog. Now we are confronted with a new disease, cat scratch fever, which is not as innocent as the term sounds.

In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine Doctors Greer and Keefer told of a middle-aged man who awakened one morning to find the house cat licking the left side of his neck. He was scratched on the right hand at the same time, presumably while reaching, in his semi-conscious condition to find what was going on.

The incident was forgotten until four days later when he noticed a swollen gland on the left side of his neck. Swelling increased until the lesion reached the size of a hen's egg. Neither pain nor tenderness was present. By the end of a week the man began to feel weak, tired, and somewhat chilly. Penicillin was administered and warm moist dressings were applied to the glandular area. At the end of two weeks he failed to improve and was admitted to the hospital. His temperature was 100 degrees F. and weakness was becoming more marked. In addition a large raised red spot appeared on the shin of the right leg and a rash was making progress on his arms.

A thorough study and special blood tests were made. A vial of cat fever antigen was procured from Cincinnati for testing against this possibility. The result was a positive reaction. All the other tests were negative and, to make doubly certain, the cat fever antigen was injected into the skin of six healthy persons, who showed no reaction. The patient's temperature continued to rise and for the next three days remained at 102 degrees F. Then the neck glands began to drain and from that point on he made a dramatic recovery.

Cat scratch fever resembles rabbit fever (tularemia), except that it is milder and is always associated with the scratch of a cat. Weakness, fever, and rash usually occur. A virus is thought to be responsible. Most cases to date have been observed among children in France and Switzerland. The animals that did the scratching rarely were sick and it has been concluded that the disease was passed on mechanically from the cat's mouth.

Cats are capable of transmitting several diseases to man. Rabies is one of the most severe and a rabid feline is a serious menace to humans. In a series of 588 rabid animals, 34 were cats. At the Illinois state department of public health, 18 out of 416 positive animal heads over a four year period were those of cats. The percentage is not as high as in dogs but these statistics indicate that cats do suffer from the malady. They sometimes hide in dark areas and come forth for vicious attacks. They die like dogs whenever they become affected.

Cats also spread tularemia, virus pneumonia, diphtheria, brucellosis, tuberculosis, typhus, ringworm, creeping eruption, and various other disorders. A Boston staff physician was overheard to say that last winter his family kitten developed an upper respiratory infection. It sneezed in a child's face several times and subsequently several members of the household came down with a cold. Human beings are just as bad. They transmit many of their diseases to cats.

ARRESTED TB

Mrs. D. writes: Is it safe for a mother with arrested tuberculosis to nurse her baby?

REPLY

Tuberculosis and pregnancy do not go well together but if the disease did not flare up before or after the birth of the baby there is no reason why breast feeding should be prohibited.

WEAK LIMBS

N. M. writes: Could vitamin deficiency cause weakness of the left arm and leg?

REPLY

Yes. Peripheral neuritis caused by a vitamin B deficiency can produce such symptoms. However, there are other origins of weakness of the extremities on one side.

Taxpayers To Subsidize Almost Two-Thirds Of Greek Food Ration At Cheaper Prices Than Americans Pay; OPS Demoralized While Awaiting Congress' Action

WASHINGTON—No announcement has been made to the American people, but, while their own food prices skyrocket, they will foot the bill to keep Greek food prices down. For the United States has agreed to subsidize over half of the Greek diet at cut-rate prices.

What happened in Greece is that a timid government permitted inflation to push prices out of reach of the average Greek. The Greek government refused to pass high taxes or inflation controls, so, to combat a sure breeder of communism, the U.S.A. has promised to underwrite a three-year rationing program.

Thus we will subsidize approximately 65 per cent of the Greek ration, or 1,500 calories out of a total daily ration of 2,400 calories. But what's more, the United States will not only guarantee the food, but will supply it at below-market prices. In other words, the American taxpayers will guarantee all Greeks two out of three meals a day—at cheaper prices than the Americans are paying for their own food.

This is on top of $2,000,000,000 in aid that has already been poured into Greece since the end of the war.

NOTE—Real profiteers are the Greek shipowners, who have grown fabulously wealthy overnight shipping ECA cargo. They bought their ships at bargain-basement prices from the United States, and are now charging scandalously high rates for use of these ships. In return, they are paying no taxes to the United States and almost none in Greece.

Price Stalemate

While Congress has been haggling over price controls, the Office of Price Stabilization has come to a virtual standstill. This is revealed in a confidential memo from price headquarters to all branch chiefs and section heads.

Marked "for internal use only," the memo shows how the price agency has bogged down and become demoralized while waiting for Congress to make up it mind about controls.

"Naturally we regret the present situation since it has brought to a halt the development of five months of carefully considered and hard work," the memo declares. "However, neither recrimination nor looking for an easy way out will resolve our problems, and we ask that the agency continue to stand together as a team until such time as its immediate course can be more clearly charted."

The memo instructs price chiefs throughout the country that price boss Mike Di Salle "desires to maintain the status quo . . . In connection with our manufacturer regulations as well as with most other price actions."

"As just one example," the confidential memo points out, "Mr. Di Salle felt that if we issued only price-increase actions during this period, Congress could take the position that we were showing pique and petulance and trying to place it in the worst light. . . . Accordingly, our job is to make the best of a bad situation until such time as it is resolved by Congress."

Headaches And Humor

The most unpopular agency in the government, as everybody knows, is the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which collects our taxes. Actually however, the BIR is made up of human beings who, despite their unpleasant job, manage to get a few chuckles out of their relations with John Q. Public.

For instance, a disgruntled taxpayer recently wrote the Bureau:

"'—And from him that hath not . . . shall be taken away even that which he hath.'

"That's from the Bible, you lugs, and I think it's the only part you believe in."

Another taxpayer attached this note to his income return: "Only two things in life are certain—death and taxes. What I resent is that they don't come in that order."

The BIR has heard about every alibi in the book for the filing of delinquent returns, but the most unusual came from a man who confessed: "I would have paid this sooner only I was laid up with a fractured uncle." Another taxpayer, explaining why he listed his mother-in-law as a dependent, added: "She eats like a horse."

Bureau officials get a lot of poetry in the mail, some of it anonymous and unprintable. A frustrated citizen attached the following to his return:

A man stood at the Pearly Gate,
His face was worn and old;
He merely asked of the Man of Fate
Admission to the fold.

"What have you done?" St. Peter asked,
"To seek admission here?"
"Why, I tried," said the man, "to figure
"My tax till the end of the year."

The gates swung open sharply,
As St. Peter touched the bell;
"Come in," he said, "and take a harp,
"You've had enough of hell."

The Bureau received an anonymous letter from a taxpayer who felt that his obligation to the government was greater than his tax. Enclosed was a substantial check, with an attached note: "Inasmuch as I wish to remain anonymous, you will please pardon me for not signing this check."

Another taxpayer being interviewed by a deputy collector was trying to get away with a whopping list of dependency claims. The deputy, knowing that the man was lying, turned to another collector and jokingly inquired:

"John, what time does that bus load of people who have gypped the government leave today for the federal penitentiary?"

"Man, I just remembered," interrupted the startled taxpayer. "Scratch all those names off. I don't support nobody but myself."

Running Battle Ahead

By MARK SULLIVAN

Wage and price controls exist. They are in the statute Congress passed last September, and in directives issued by the President. The agencies for carrying them out are functioning. These controls are not likely to be terminated by any last minute development in the Conference Committee of the two branches of Congress which at this writing is formulating the final form of the new bill dealing with controls generally. In neither House during the debate on the new legislation was any serious proposal made to terminate wage and price controls.

What remains to be seen is the effect that new price and wage controls will have. As to prices, the most important ones are those of food, which compose the largest factor in cost of living. And about prices of food the effect of the new control law is severely limited. For the principal influence in prices of food is the prices pair farmers for their crops. And in this field the strongest statutory force remains where it has been, in the law providing for price support of farm crops, administered by the Department of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture has much more power over prices of food than Price Stabilizer DiSalle has under the new controls law.

Floors, Not Ceilings

What price support of farm crops does, far from putting ceilings over prices is to put floors under them. The floors are established by fixing "support prices" at which the Department of Agriculture stands ready to buy immense portions of farm crops, in order to take them off the market, or by other methods prevent prices from going down. The support prices becomes floors. Once these are fixed, the authority of Price Stabilizer DiSalle is confined to actions on levels above the farmer, actions about prices charged by retailers, wholesalers and processors of food.

The new controls law itself specifically forbids Price Stabilizer DiSalle to do anything about prices of most farm crops, limits him to only such farm crops as are above the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. One of the few such crops is beef, and thus Price Stabilizer DiSalle had opportunity to decree a rollback in prices paid farmers and other producers for cattle. As of today, price support of farm crops remains as it has been, if anything it is broader. The firm tendency of it is to prevent any fall in prices of farm crops, hence of food.

As respects wages, the new controls bill confers a large power and sets up an agency to administer the power. As to what this agency can or may do, there is light in what has already taken place. Last January, when the whole set-up of control agencies was established, there was included a Wage Stabilization Board, made up of three representatives of labor, three of industry, and three of the public. Early in its existence the board ordered a broad ceiling on wages, 10 per cent above what had been the level more than a year before, in January 1950.

Technical Orders

This order was immediately and vigorously protested by organized labor. The three labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board withdrew. The protest from organized labor went farther. Representatives of labor organizations, including CIO and AFL, organized what was called the United Labor Policy Committee. The Committee attacked the whole board mobilization program, demanded larger representation for labor on the top levels of it; 13 important labor leaders on various mobilization agencies withdrew. After some weeks of tension between the Truman Administration and organized labor, and some yielding by the Administration, a new Wage Stabilization Board was set up.

The new Wage Stabilization Board exists and functions. So does organized labor exist and function, in its way. It has made demands for wage raises in industry after industry, in some cases has struck to get them, in most cases has won the demands. However new wage rates demanded by labor and conceded by employers, are subject to approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

What the Wage Stabilization Board does or will do about advances in wages, is embodied in orders and statements issued by the board. The present writer, having gone through some 25 pages of these, finds it difficult to understand them. They teem with technicalities including such terms as "base pay period abnormalities," "tandem salary increases." One gathers that the board in passing on a wage raise, judges by whether it conforms to the standard ceiling, 10 per cent above January, 1950. One judges too that the board makes many exceptions to the standard.

Apparently what lies ahead is a long running battle between organized labor demanding wage raises, and the Wage Stabilization Board resisting them or making exceptions of them. Whether there is to be a standard ceiling over wages, firm enough to be a dependable check to the rising wage-price spiral and inflation, is decidedly not yet decided.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—When the Secretary of State makes an address, a good deal of deliberate planning lies behind his words. From his staff of policy-makers come memoranda that lay down the points that must be emphasized to fit changing situations.

But the speech which Secretary Acheson made at Detroit is baffling in its ambiguity. The words at times are those of a MacArthur but the acts which are contemporaneously recorded in the news dispatches are those of a Chamberlain.

What Dean Acheson says is important because, for all practical purposes, he is president of the United States. He is virtually commander-in-chief of the army, navy, and air force. He defines their scope of action. For Mr. Truman does what Mr. Acheson tells him to do. No man in the office of Secretary of State heretofore has had the opportunity to wield such power, first, because no president ever delegated as much authority to him and, second, because no comparable issues fell to a secretary of state to decide. Mr. Acheson told a Senate committee recently that a cease-fire in Korea around the 38th Parallel would be a "victorious" conclusion of the war there, and he emphasized that this would mean that aggression had been repelled.

Aggressor Not Tamed

Yet now, in his Detroit speech, the Secretary says the aggressor hasn't been tamed at all. He adds:

"We are in great danger, greater perhaps than many Americans now appreciate. This danger is not less than it was a month ago, although some of us seem to think so. . . Whether or not an armistice results from the talks in Korea, the fundamental job ahead of us will not change . . . Whether or not there is peace in Korea, whether our adversaries are cooing like doves or growling like bears, our job remains the same. The threat we face remains the same."

This would seem to imply that the sacrifices made by the UN forces, including casualties of 80,000 Americans, have not swerved the aggressor from his course. Then comes this curious paragraph:

"Neither war nor weakness is the way to meet the Soviet challenge. We will counter force with force, if necessary, but war does not solve problems—it multiplies them. Weakness, on the other hand, would lead to defeat, with or without war."

The foregoing—countering force with maximum force—was the main theme of General MacArthur's frequent messages to his superiors in Washington and of his Boston speech, too. It was because of his exposition of this very doctrine in his message to the enemy commander that he was summarily removed from all his commands.

But, while it is sound doctrine whether Mr. Acheson or General MacArthur expresses it, the Secretary of State qualifies it almost immediately when he says:

"Between these two extremes—a middle course, which seeks to block Soviet expansionism without war, by building an effective system of collective security, and by making it strong. This is the course we are following."

Explains "Middle Course"

Then comes the explanation of what that "middle course" is:

"We do not have to match the Soviet armies man for man, or gun for gun, since our mission is to deter, not to attack, but we have a long way to go before we reach a safe deterrent level."

What kind of gobbledygook is this for our military chiefs to digest—a military force built solely to be strong on the defensive? Is there no thought given to offensive strength sufficient to win a war when the enemy has begun it? Mr. Acheson amplifies his thinking thus:

"What we are building is an adequate deterrent force against military attack. We already have the means to guarantee that a general military attack against us would be so costly to the aggressors. We must now achieve a force of sufficient size to make it plain that such an attack could not succeed."

Does this mean that America has adopted a policy of being willing to accept stalemates in future wars? Has "victory" been deleted from the vocabulary as well as the plans of our military forces?- Is the enemy to be given to understand that if an attack is made and he fails to penetrate our lines, we will agree to "cease fires" and compromise on the 38th Parallel sort of stalemate? Is Korea to be a pattern for future military policy?

Plainly the Detroit speech by Secretary Acheson is a revelation of the new concept of American military policy—not to fight to win but just to keep the enemy from winning. If that is all our army, navy, and air force are to be permitted to do in the next war, then the Soviets may some day accept the realistic though unwitting definition of the morale of UN countries what Mr. Acheson says: "It must be understood that weakness not only invites attack; what is more menacing, it paralyzes the will to resist and makes for political disintegration."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Tidelands Cases

I became interested in the tidelands cases for two reasons, perhaps somewhat different from those which immediately trouble the people of the states of California, Texas and Louisiana.

The first reason is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the revenues of state governments. In some states, in which the federal government has established vast national parks and reservations, state revenues are in such a dismal condition that the states turn to Washington for a hand-out. This is bad practice. It was part of the theory of the New Dealers that states should be abolished and that the United States should be divided into administrative provinces—nine, if my memory serves me.

Such a procedure would have destroyed the sovereignty of the states and would have established an administrative system that could have been a basis for a totalitarian government. The scheme failed and has been forgotten, but federal encroachment on the rights of the states and of the people thereof has continued, often in such small respects that it amounts to a whittling process that can, in time, completely alter our form of government.

The second reason for my interest in the tidelands question is that in the case of the United States V. Texas, the Supreme Court deciding against the state 4 to 3, Mr. Justice Hugo Black and Mr. Justice William O. Douglas employed startling language, as in the California case, which ought not to be permitted to stand as precedents in American law.

The theory that what, at a particular moment, an administration of government believes to be necessary is ipso facto right is not American but Nazi law. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, throughout his long career as an Hegelian philosopher, essayist and jurist did believe that law as a function of the power of the state involved no moral criteria, but both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States conceived of law in this country as a limited procedure which, in the case of the individual must not breach his inalienable rights and, in the case of states, must not invade their jurisdiction beyond specific provisions of the Constitution.

Whereas the Democratic party pays lip service to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, the tendency both the Roosevelt and Truman administration has been to ignore all limitations on the assumption that the necessities of the government are paramount. In the California and Texas cases, the Supreme Court upheld this doctrine without however a very clear definition of the necessities of the government.

Moreover when such phrases are employed as "bare legal title" or "mere property ownership," the peril is far beyond these particular cases.

Our social and economic life is organized around "legal titles." A man has a legal title to his home, his automobile, his furniture, his television set, etc., and that is all that he has. That legal title is his sole right to possess whatever he has, or the suit on his back.

There are countries where a "legal title" does not exist for the individual but is vested in the government. In such countries the government can, in pursuit of so-called necessities, divest the individual of his possessions, both the title to the means of production, distribution and exchange is socially vested in the state. This is Marxiam socialism, now practiced in Soviet Russia and other Communist countries.

When, therefore, a Justice of the United States Supreme Court denounces "legal titles" by using such an adjective as "bare" to describe them, he is moving a step toward the concept that a legal title is not important per se. Ignoring for the moment all other considerations in these tidelands cases, such an assumption as this held by Mr. Justice Douglas must not be permitted to stand:

"Property rights must therefore be subordinated to political rights which in substance to coalesce and unite in the national sovereign . . ."

The American conception of property rights is that they exist by right of law and not by the fiat of the administration in power. Were it otherwise, it would be possible for the Republicans, when they achieved power, to deny property rights to Democrats and vice versa. As a matter of fact, this process is actually employed today in countries where nationalization is incomplete, such as China and Czechoslovakia and it was used by Soviet Russia to deprive land-owning farmers, Kulaks, of their property.

In a word, here we have all that transcends oil and goes to the heart of the American philosophy of life.

Area FHA Members Attend Meet

Officers and advisor of the local Future Homemakers of America Club have returned from the first state Leadership Training Conference, held at Maryland State Teachers College, Towson, July 24, 25 and 26.

They are Vianna Smith, Flintstone, president; Shirley Norris, Little Orleans, first vice president; Esther Shryock, Oldtown, second vice president; Virginia Shipway, Flintstone, treasurer; Eleanor Smith, Polish Mountain, acting secretary; and Mrs. Florence Whitworth, LaVale, advisor.

Suggestions were given for the program of the state meeting to be held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, October 13. Requirements to become an honorary chapter were outlined. They require two social gatherings, with guests, a year; news items to be sent to the state advisor before February 1; have world, national and state projects.

For the world project each member brought cooking utensils and materials and a box was packed for students at a college in Greece.

The purpose of the conference was explained by Mrs. Gladys Dickenson, state advisor; the highlights of the national meeting in Lansing, Mich., given by Wanda Keller and each officer explained her duties. Mrs. Lela Smartt, national advisor from Washington, gave the clubs suggestions. There also were program discussion groups and suggestions given to made for club problems, including a point system to encourage attendance as well as a task for everyone. Ways of raising funds were also suggested. The FHA creed, song, official opening and closing ceremonies were used.

Entertainment included skits by each chapter, a get acquainted hour conducted by Esther Shryock, Oldtown; and recreational period conducted by Jack Hart, physical education department of Baltimore county who led square dancing.

J. F. Schaidt, N. W. Taylor Top Field

John F. Schaidt and Norman W. Taylor, playing North and South, were first place winners in the third Winners Game of the 1950-1951 season of the Cumberland Duplicate Bridge Club. St. Matthew's Evangelical and Reformed—Bowling Green, Rev. C. Lloyd Voll, pastor. 9:45 a. m., church school; 11 a. m., worship, "The Most Important Question."

The years have brought poverty and privation to this aged gentlewoman, but they have not destroyed her spirit nor dimmed her faith in God.

She earns a scanty subsistence for herself and her dependent grandchild with her own hands, but she holds no bitterness in her heart and is as grateful to God for her frugal loaf as if it were a feast of the finest foods.

It takes faith and strong character to weather the storms of adversity without damage to the soul.

There are people who enjoy abundance without the remotest thought of God's providence. When misfortune comes and their house of sand crashes, they go down with it. They lack the sustaining power of an humble heart and active faith.

Religion teaches men to enjoy prosperity with humility, and to rise above misfortune through honest effort and faith in God.

This fine old mother, who thanks God for her loaf and pitcher, has not lived and wrought and trusted in vain. Her life and her faith are the glory of humanity and the hope of the world.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Frostburg Cops First Game In Little League Series, 5-3

Turns Back Dappers, Jimmy Harden Stars, Tangle Here Monday

Frostburg's Little Leaguers, managed by Roger Day and George Hawkins, knocked off the Dapper Division All-Stars of Cumberland in the opening game of their best-of-three series yesterday at the Frostburg Ball Park by the score of 5-3.

It was Frostburg's second triumph over a team from the Cumberland Little League, the Mountain City tossers having whipped the all-stars from the Whiz Kids Division on Wednesday by the score of 5-4.

Jimmy Harden was the batting star in yesterday's game as he came through in the clutch twice in drive in four of Frostburg's five tallies.

Win Game Early

Frostburg scored all of its runs in the first and third frames. "Pete" Wilson's single sent over the first tally after "Buzz" Patterson beat out a bunt, was forced at second by Ray Miller, Jack Fisher hit safely and both runners advanced on an outfield error. Then Jim Harden doubled in two markers to give Frostburg a 3-0 lead in the initial frame. Harden knocked in two more tallies in the third after Miller and Fisher singled and Wilson forced Fisher at second.

Cumberland scored its three runs in the 5th. With one away Washington and Campbell hit safely and Robinson was hit by pitcher, loading the hassocks. Mullaney hit two short and Washington came home. Two more runs came in when Wheeler got a life on an error. The rally died, however, when Reliefer Jack Fisher whiffed Stinson and Diehl.

Arthur Washington who pitched the first three innings for Cumberland was the loser. "Pete" Wilson was the winner. Fisher collected three of Frostburg's nine hits and Harden turned in a nice running catch of Rice's drive in right field in the 9th frame. The losers were limited to four hits. Wilson and Fisher struck out seven.

Clash Here Monday

Announcement was made last night that the second game of the series will be staged on Monday at 6:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field and not today as originally planned. A third game, if necessary, will be played Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. on the same field. The box:

Earl Nonnenmann's Optimist Club tossers pulled to within one full game of first place in the Hot Stove Baseball League's torrid race when they raillied for six runs in the last two frames and defeated the Lions Club yesterday at Penn Avenue Field by the score of 6-0.

It marked the first meeting of the teams and the game was highlighted by the masterful twirling of Bobby Lewis who yielded one hit, a blooper over third base by Shaffer in the fourth inning, and fanned 14 batsmen. Lewis fanned every player in the Lions' lineup at least once, got five of them twice and issued one pass. He faced only 19 batsmen.

Every Optimist player got at least one hit. Bobby Lewis led the attack with a homer and single while Tommy Reed rapped a pair of singles. Donnie Irons turned in a nice running catch in centerfield of a drive from the bat of Rhoe in the fourth inning.

The same teams clash again Monday.

Another win for the Optimists would tie up the race. The current standings are: Lions 13-3 and Optimists 12-4.

Mike Robinson's Jaycees provided an upset last night at Penn Avenue Field when they knocked off B'nai B'rith, 1 to 0.

The only hit yielded by Clarence "Pooch" Lewis was Yankelevitz's double in the first inning. The batter was thrown out at third when he tried to stretch the hit into a triple.

The Jaycees scored the lone run in the first inning when Barley walked, was sacrificed to third by C. Lewis and R. Rhodes and came home on Breedlove's high infield bounder.

Lewis, B'nai B'rith's third sacker, turned in a nifty diving catch of Barley's line drive and Ted Shipways, keystone sacker of the Jaycees made a nice catch of a liner from the bat of Yankelevitz.

Lewis fanned nine and Kline whiffed six. Scores:

Arnone Wins Over Raines In 3-0 Duel

Midland Hurler Fans 10; Grantsville Nine Forfeits 12 Games

Bobby Raines and "Moose" Arnone hooked up in an American Legion Junior Baseball League pitching duel for the fourth time yesterday at Midland and the latter was returned the winner as Midland Post registered a 3-0 triumph over Victory Post of Westernport.

The two twirlers figured in three 1-0 contests since the league season began and they're now all square at two wins each.

Manager Hugh Coleman's aggregation put the game on ice in the third by scoring twice. Tommy Richards singled. Andrews flied out. Thompson hit to right, sending Richards to third. Rafferty singled scoring Richards. On the first pitch Rafferty dashed for second, returned to first and as the play was being made for him, Thompson raced home. In the fourth Arnone doubled to deep center, moved to third on Winters' single and crossed the platter when Tommy Richards bounced a two-bagger off the right field fence.

Arnone Whiffs Ten

Arnone yielded five hits and struck out 10 batsmen. Three of Westernport's blows were credited to Raines. The Westernport hurler gave up six hits and struck out two. Tommy Richards had two of the safeties.

Edward Wegman, Mountain District American Legion, baseball chairman, last night announced that Grantsville has forfeited all of its 12 games due to using ineligible players. Several changes in the standings were made as a result of this ruling.

Only three games remain on the schedule, all between Westernport and Fort Cumberland Post. The first contest between these clubs is set for Monday at 5:30 at Community Park and the second at Westernport on Wednesday at 5:30.

Playoffs Start Next Week

Wegman said that playoffs will get under way next Saturday with Frederick, Area B winner, meeting the Mountain District League champion on the latter's field. The series will be concluded Sunday, August 5 with a doubleheader at Frederick. The box:

Dutch Harrison Ties Ed Oliver In St. Paul Open

St. Paul, Minn., July 27 (AP)—A seven-under-par 65, one of two such scores turned in today, boosted the veteran professional golfer, E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, into a tie at 133 with Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., for the lead in the St. Paul Open's second round.

Harrison scored five birdies on the outgoing nine, and three on the back nine. A topped drive that travelled only 40 yards cost him an extra stroke on the 397-yard second hole, giving him a one-over-par 5. He had a 68 in yesterday's first round.

Oliver continued his sub-par golf today, scoring a 67 to go with his 66 of yesterday.

The other seven-under-par round was turned in by Jim Deal, former rice shotput champion who, in his own words, "never has made a nickel out of golf tournaments."

He wound up however, with a 138 total for the 36 holes of play, having a 73 in yesterday's first round.

Trailing Harrison and Oliver by one stroke was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif. Both of them shot consistent 67s today to go with their first-day 67s.

Tied behind Demaret and Mangrum at 135 were Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Jack Burke of Houston, Texas, Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, Julius Boros of Mine Pines, N. C., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and George Fazio of Pine Valley, N. J. Boros and Fazio each had 66s today, matching Ferrier's total.

Hawkins had a 67 and Middlecoff and Burke each had 68s.

STAR BATTER saved ground while setting the pace under constant pressure and evenly held Fenland safe. The latter was several times urged in unsuccessful attempts to head the winner, finished well and easily bested the others. BEAUTY raced prominently placed in an even effort. KOPLA, taken back going to the first turn, was not a threat. The others were not prominent.

INGERFIRE bore out leaving the gate but was quickly straightened and sent to the front, held on tenaciously in the drive and just lasted. DUFF lugged in badly at the start, bothering ROYAL RHYMER and CABIN CREEK, raced forwardly placed but came slightly wide into the stretch and could not get up. ROYAL RHYMER, shuffled back at the start, was blocked momentarily turning into the stretch, then finished willingly. SWING HIGH gradually weakened from a swift beginning. CABIN CREEK, forced back sharply from between INGERFIRE and DUFF at the start, made up distance through the backstretch but tired. BUCKIE'S LAD was outrun.

ADELE G. was gradually brought forward between horses into contention after a poor beginning, quickly wrested command on the far turn and then won easily. SEA LEVEL raced along evenly close to the pace, assumed command when THUMBS KNIGHT bolted but offered no resistance to the winner. SALOME, under choking restraint for a half-mile, saved ground and finished well. LIEGE LORD began poorly, reached a contending position but lacked a rally. AMERICAN CROSS raced wide. THUMBS KNIGHT set the early pace evenly, bolted after a half-mile and had to be eased up.

CLAIMED—Dutch King $1,750, J. Nechamkin—same.
GUNNER was briskly handled to outsprint ELLEN'S PICK, closely followed the inner railing and was drawing away at the finish. MR. FIXIT loomed boldly moving to the pace under urging at the half-mile, could not reach the winner and weakened slightly at the end. ELLEN'S PICK, unable to stay with GUNNER after a half-mile, saved ground and held on fairly well. RABBIT POINT was not a threat. WRINKLES was shuffled back leaving the gate.

Racing World's Richest Event Set For Today

Arlington Park Holds $143,750 Handicap

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—Arlington Park's $143,750 handicap, richest of its kind in the racing world, will be decided tomorrow with ten outstanding thoroughbreds scrambling for the guaranteed $100,000 first prize.

The horse finishing second will draw down $25,000, as much as 85 percent of America's stakes events are worth to the winner. Third place will net $12,500 and fourth $6,250.

The race at a mile and a quarter will climax Arlington's 36-day meeting.

The probable favorite will be Rokeby Stables Country Delight, owned by Paul Mellon, a steel industrialist of Upperville, Virginia. The four-year-old son of Count Fleet has won the Dixie and Gallant Fox Handicaps this season and finished abong the first three in five other stakes events.

Country Delight will be ridden by Jockey Eric Guerin and will carry top weight of 124 pounds.

Another favored easterner is the Brandywine Stables Cochise, which has triumphed this season in the Brandywine, Sussex and Grey Lag Handicaps.

Greentree Stable will start One Hitter, which won the mile and a quarter Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs on June 13, his only triumph of the year.

Volcanic from the Walmac Farms stable of R. W. Mc Ilvain will carry second high weight of 122 pounds and will race as an entry with M. A. and Toy Saffir's Dr. Ole Nelson, winner of the Hawthorne Gold Cup last year.

One of the lightly weighted starters, which could threaten, is Oil Capitol, owned by Tom Grey, Tulsa, Okla., oil man. The horse, running as an entry with Inseparable, will carry only 107 pounds.

King Ranch's Curandero, winner of the Equipoise Mile this season, is another horse which will get support. Jockey Jackie Westrope will be in the saddle. Like One Hitter, Curandero will carry only 114 pounds.

The Argentine-bred Miche, owned by Mrs. John Payson Adams, Carmel, Calif., is one of the few horses to defeat Citation. However, he has been unable to triumph in seven starts this season. Finishing second three times and third three times.

The only filly in the field is Aegina, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. She will carry only 100 pounds.

Sweden's Net Team Leads Germany, 2-0

BASTAD, Sweden, July 27. (AP)—Sweden's tennis team virtually clinched the European Zone Davis Cup final series with Germany today by sweeping the first two singles matches without the loss of a set.

Lennart Bergelin, Sweden's No. 1 player, routed 42-year old Gottfried Von Cramm, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4, to just about end Germany's hopes of winning the Zone championship in its first Davis Cup venture since the war.

Frostburg Cops First Game In Little League Series, 5-3

Turns Back Dappers, Jimmy Harden Stars, Tangle Here Monday

Frostburg's Little Leaguers, managed by Roger Day and George Hawkins, knocked off the Dapper Division All-Stars of Cumberland in the opening game of their best-of-three series yesterday at the Frostburg Ball Park by the score of 5-3.

It was Frostburg's second triumph over a team from the Cumberland Little League, the Mountain City tossers having whipped the all-stars from the Whiz Kids Division on Wednesday by the score of 5-4.

Jimmy Harden was the batting star in yesterday's game as he came through in the clutch twice in drive in four of Frostburg's five tallies.

Win Game Early

Frostburg scored all of its runs in the first and third frames. "Pete" Wilson's single sent over the first tally after "Buzz" Patterson beat out a bunt, was forced at second by Ray Miller, Jack Fisher hit safely and both runners advanced on an outfield error. Then Jim Harden doubled in two markers to give Frostburg a 3-0 lead in the initial frame. Harden knocked in two more tallies in the third after Miller and Fisher singled and Wilson forced Fisher at second.

Cumberland scored its three runs in the 5th. With one away Washington and Campbell hit safely and Robinson was hit by pitcher, loading the hassocks. Mullaney hit two short and Washington came home. Two more runs came in when Wheeler got a life on an error. The rally died, however, when Reliefer Jack Fisher whiffed Stinson and Diehl.

Arthur Washington who pitched the first three innings for Cumberland was the loser. "Pete" Wilson was the winner. Fisher collected three of Frostburg's nine hits and Harden turned in a nice running catch of Rice's drive in right field in the 9th frame. The losers were limited to four hits. Wilson and Fisher struck out seven.

Clash Here Monday

Announcement was made last night that the second game of the series will be staged on Monday at 6:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field and not today as originally planned. A third game, if necessary, will be played Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. on the same field. The box:

Earl Nonnenmann's Optimist Club tossers pulled to within one full game of first place in the Hot Stove Baseball League's torrid race when they raillied for six runs in the last two frames and defeated the Lions Club yesterday at Penn Avenue Field by the score of 6-0.

It marked the first meeting of the teams and the game was highlighted by the masterful twirling of Bobby Lewis who yielded one hit, a blooper over third base by Shaffer in the fourth inning, and fanned 14 batsmen. Lewis fanned every player in the Lions' lineup at least once, got five of them twice and issued one pass. He faced only 19 batsmen.

Every Optimist player got at least one hit. Bobby Lewis led the attack with a homer and single while Tommy Reed rapped a pair of singles. Donnie Irons turned in a nice running catch in centerfield of a drive from the bat of Rhoe in the fourth inning.

The same teams clash again Monday.

Another win for the Optimists would tie up the race. The current standings are: Lions 13-3 and Optimists 12-4.

Mike Robinson's Jaycees provided an upset last night at Penn Avenue Field when they knocked off B'nai B'rith, 1 to 0.

The only hit yielded by Clarence "Pooch" Lewis was Yankelevitz's double in the first inning. The batter was thrown out at third when he tried to stretch the hit into a triple.

The Jaycees scored the lone run in the first inning when Barley walked, was sacrificed to third by C. Lewis and R. Rhodes and came home on Breedlove's high infield bounder.

Lewis, B'nai B'rith's third sacker, turned in a nifty diving catch of Barley's line drive and Ted Shipways, keystone sacker of the Jaycees made a nice catch of a liner from the bat of Yankelevitz.

Lewis fanned nine and Kline whiffed six. Scores:

Arnone Wins Over Raines In 3-0 Duel

Midland Hurler Fans 10; Grantsville Nine Forfeits 12 Games

Bobby Raines and "Moose" Arnone hooked up in an American Legion Junior Baseball League pitching duel for the fourth time yesterday at Midland and the latter was returned the winner as Midland Post registered a 3-0 triumph over Victory Post of Westernport.

The two twirlers figured in three 1-0 contests since the league season began and they're now all square at two wins each.

Manager Hugh Coleman's aggregation put the game on ice in the third by scoring twice. Tommy Richards singled. Andrews flied out. Thompson hit to right, sending Richards to third. Rafferty singled scoring Richards. On the first pitch Rafferty dashed for second, returned to first and as the play was being made for him, Thompson raced home. In the fourth Arnone doubled to deep center, moved to third on Winters' single and crossed the platter when Tommy Richards bounced a two-bagger off the right field fence.

Arnone Whiffs Ten

Arnone yielded five hits and struck out 10 batsmen. Three of Westernport's blows were credited to Raines. The Westernport hurler gave up six hits and struck out two. Tommy Richards had two of the safeties.

Edward Wegman, Mountain District American Legion, baseball chairman, last night announced that Grantsville has forfeited all of its 12 games due to using ineligible players. Several changes in the standings were made as a result of this ruling.

Only three games remain on the schedule, all between Westernport and Fort Cumberland Post. The first contest between these clubs is set for Monday at 5:30 at Community Park and the second at Westernport on Wednesday at 5:30.

Playoffs Start Next Week

Wegman said that playoffs will get under way next Saturday with Frederick, Area B winner, meeting the Mountain District League champion on the latter's field. The series will be concluded Sunday, August 5 with a doubleheader at Frederick. The box:

Dutch Harrison Ties Ed Oliver In St. Paul Open

St. Paul, Minn., July 27 (AP)—A seven-under-par 65, one of two such scores turned in today, boosted the veteran professional golfer, E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, into a tie at 133 with Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., for the lead in the St. Paul Open's second round.

Harrison scored five birdies on the outgoing nine, and three on the back nine. A topped drive that travelled only 40 yards cost him an extra stroke on the 397-yard second hole, giving him a one-over-par 5. He had a 68 in yesterday's first round.

Oliver continued his sub-par golf today, scoring a 67 to go with his 66 of yesterday.

The other seven-under-par round was turned in by Jim Deal, former rice shotput champion who, in his own words, "never has made a nickel out of golf tournaments."

He wound up however, with a 138 total for the 36 holes of play, having a 73 in yesterday's first round.

Trailing Harrison and Oliver by one stroke was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif. Both of them shot consistent 67s today to go with their first-day 67s.

Tied behind Demaret and Mangrum at 135 were Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Jack Burke of Houston, Texas, Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, Julius Boros of Mine Pines, N. C., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and George Fazio of Pine Valley, N. J. Boros and Fazio each had 66s today, matching Ferrier's total.

Hawkins had a 67 and Middlecoff and Burke each had 68s.

Lover's Leap Upset By Carver Girls, 6-5

Carver's girls upset Lover's Leap in a Queens Softball League game yesterday at East Side Field by the score of 6 to 5.

The game was transferred from Community Park to East Side Field.

Each team obtained 10 hits.

Anna Washington and Nancy Beckward led the winners at the plate with three hits in three trips each. The latter slammed a pair of three-baggers. DeAngelo accounted for two of Lover's Leap's 10 hits. Score:

INGERFIRE bore out leaving the gate but was quickly straightened and sent to the front, held on tenaciously in the drive and just lasted. DUFF lugged in badly at the start, bothering ROYAL RHYMER and CABIN CREEK, raced forwardly placed but came slightly wide into the stretch and could not get up. ROYAL RHYMER, shuffled back at the start, was blocked momentarily turning into the stretch, then finished willingly. SWING HIGH gradually weakened from a swift beginning. CABIN CREEK, forced back sharply from between INGERFIRE and DUFF at the start, made up distance through the backstretch but tired. BUCKIE'S LAD was outrun.

WINNER—Owned and trained by R. D. Scott.
ADELE G. was gradually brought forward between horses into contention after a poor beginning, quickly wrested command on the far turn and then won easily. SEA LEVEL raced along evenly close to the pace, assumed command when THUMBS KNIGHT bolted but offered no resistance to the winner. SALOME, under choking restraint for a half-mile, saved ground and finished well. LIEGE LORD began poorly, reached a contending position but lacked a rally. AMERICAN CROSS raced wide. THUMBS KNIGHT set the early pace evenly, bolted after a half-mile and had to be eased up.

CLAIMED—Dutch King $1,750, J. Nechamkin—same.
GUNNER was briskly handled to outsprint ELLEN'S PICK, closely followed the inner railing and was drawing away at the finish. MR. FIXIT loomed boldly moving to the pace under urging at the half-mile, could not reach the winner and weakened slightly at the end. ELLEN'S PICK, unable to stay with GUNNER after a half-mile, saved ground and held on fairly well. RABBIT POINT was not a threat. WRINKLES was shuffled back leaving the gate.

Racing World's Richest Event Set For Today

Arlington Park Holds $143,750 Handicap

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—Arlington Park's $143,750 handicap, richest of its kind in the racing world, will be decided tomorrow with ten outstanding thoroughbreds scrambling for the guaranteed $100,000 first prize.

The horse finishing second will draw down $25,000, as much as 85 percent of America's stakes events are worth to the winner. Third place will net $12,500 and fourth $6,250.

The race at a mile and a quarter will climax Arlington's 36-day meeting.

The probable favorite will be Rokeby Stables Country Delight, owned by Paul Mellon, a steel industrialist of Upperville, Virginia. The four-year-old son of Count Fleet has won the Dixie and Gallant Fox Handicaps this season and finished abong the first three in five other stakes events.

Country Delight will be ridden by Jockey Eric Guerin and will carry top weight of 124 pounds.

Another favored easterner is the Brandywine Stables Cochise, which has triumphed this season in the Brandywine, Sussex and Grey Lag Handicaps.

Greentree Stable will start One Hitter, which won the mile and a quarter Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs on June 13, his only triumph of the year.

Volcanic from the Walmac Farms stable of R. W. Mc Ilvain will carry second high weight of 122 pounds and will race as an entry with M. A and Toy Saffir's Dr. Ole Nelson, winner of the Hawthorne Gold Cup last year.

One of the lightly weighted starters, which could threaten, is Oil Capitol, owned by Tom Grey, Tulsa, Okla., oil man. The horse, running as an entry with Inseparable, will carry only 107 pounds.

King Ranch's Curandero, winner of the Equipoise Mile this season, is another horse which will get support. Jockey Jackie Westrope will be in the saddle. Like One Hitter, Curandero will carry only 114 pounds.

The Argentine-bred Miche, owned by Mrs. John Payson Adams, Carmel, Calif., is one of the few horses to defeat Citation. However, he has been unable to triumph in seven starts this season. Finishing second three times and third three times.

The only filly in the field is Aegina, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. She will carry only 100 pounds.

Sweden's Net Team Leads Germany, 2-0

BASTAD, Sweden, July 27. (AP)—Sweden's tennis team virtually clinched the European Zone Davis Cup final series with Germany today by sweeping the first two singles matches without the loss of a set.

Lennart Bergelin, Sweden's No. 1 player, routed 42-year old Gottfried Von Cramm, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4, to just about end Germany's hopes of winning the Zone championship in its first Davis Cup venture since the war.

Sven Davidsson made it 2-0 for

Purinton, Nelson Horses Score In Johnstown Show

Raymond Purinton, of Cumberland; and K. O. Nelson, Pinto; won prize money and ribbons with their horses on Sunday at the Johnstown, Pa., Horse Show.

Purinton and Nelson have had exceptional success with their horses at Southern Pennsylvania shows this summer. They have shown at Somerset, Waynesburg, Uniontown, Chambersburg and Johnstown; placed in every show they entered and have won a considerable amount of prize money.

"Rainbow's Color Parade," owned by Purinton, was judged reserve champion at Chambersburg, Pa., last week and has been consistently near the top.

Nelson, who started showing this year, has been winning with his Tennessee walking horse, "Rhoda Allen's Romeo."

Being amateurs and considering the large number of professional horsemen entered in these shows Purinton and Nelson feel they have accomplished more than might be expected.

Horses owned by Purinton and Nelson will vie in the Cumberland Show to be held September 14, 15 and 16 at Fairgo.

More Toledo Players Involved In Scandal

TOLEDO, July 27 (INS) — The president of Toledo University announced today that two more Toledo basketball players are involved in the big cage scandal.

President Asa S. Knowles said the two involved are sophomore star Jack Feeman and Joe Massa, of New York City, a member of last year's freshman squad who was slated to replace Bill Walker on next year's varsity team.

Knowles also said a "fix" was involved in two additional games during last season, both of which Toledo lost.

It's hard to believe that nine days of the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting have elapsed and Ralph "Buddy" Root has failed to ride a winner.

We mention this because of the fact that Root and Sammy Palumbo hold the distinction of having topped the riders at Fairgo three times each in past years.

"Buddy" was first in 1937, 1939 and 1942, Palumbo led 'em in 1936, 1944 and 1948.

Root had 14 winners in 1937, 11 in 1939 and 17 in 1942.

"Buddy" has had 26 mounts at the current meeting and he has ridden five place and four show horses.

●—●—●

Nick Shinkoff, scout for the New York Giants, was a visitor at Fairgo yesterday.

Lt. Col. Flook was executive officer of the army unit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War and Nick says Harry is a "great guy."

Shinkoff has been scouting for the Giants for 12 years. Eleven years ago he signed "Buddy" Kerr, shortstop, to a New York contract.

Nick stopped over here en route to Pittsburgh to interview several young baseball prospects.

Dutch King, owned by R. E. Dutcher, was claimed by J. Nechamkin for $1,700 in yesterday's fourth race. The three-year-old bay gelding finished 7th.

Racing Secretary J. Fred Colwill was forced to call off the two miles and a sixteenth race originally planned for today because it didn't fill. The program will windup with three 1 1/16 mile contests.

●—●—●

A person called last night to say that Fast Feather, winner of the first race last Friday is owned by one F. R. Boone, of Cumberland.

This makes us feel like Walter Haight.

After he had called off a lot of automobile numbers over the P. A. system at Fairgo the other day, he remarked:

"If your number has not been called today, please complain."

If we've missed any other Cumberland-owned horses that have won at Fairgo, please complain.

The Indians have three pitchers who have hurled more complete games, individually, than any of the starters on the Red Sox roster. . . . A milkman's horse is highly rated for the Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y., August 8. . . . He is Mahlon Hanover, owned by Willet C. Evans, wholesale milkman of Rockville Center, L. I. . . . Appropriately enough, the nickname of the Brandeis university football team, playing its first varsity schedule this fall, is the "Judges". . . . Some experts are saying that lacrosse, the old Indian game, has arrived as an intercollegiate sport. . . . Philadelphia Eagles' pro grid team could put a line on the field AVERAGING 241 pounds this fall! . . . A SELDOM-SEEN incident occurred in a Cleveland-Boston Red Sox ball game the other day.

Dom DiMaggio, batting for the Red Sox, beefed about a called strike and appeared to be taking his time getting back into the batter's box.

Umpire Charlie Berry, at the plate, ordered DiMag in and when DiMag didn't respond at once, Berry ordered the pitcher to throw the ball. The pitcher, Early Wynn of the Indians, tossed one right over the plate—without a batter standing there—and Umpire Berry called it a strike and DiMaggio was out.

The rule is covered under "6.06" in the official rules book under "A batter is out for illegal action when."

It reads:

". . If, after entering the batter's box, a batter persists in unwarranted delay in taking his proper position, the umpire shall direct the pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat and every pitch shall be called a 'strike' by the umpire."

SO CITATION has retired. The million-dollar baby of the turf has earned his spot in the record books but the old argument of "stars of yesterday and today" will continue. . . . Was Citation better than Man o' War?. . . It's the same difficult question that is asked about Dempsey and Louis, about Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan, about the baseball heroes of yesterday and the stars of today. . . . It never will be answered, of course, for actually there is no way to factually compare the standouts because of the continued change in equipment, the type of competition, the hours of practice, and particularly because each did not oppose the other.

Purinton, Nelson Horses Score In Johnstown Show

Raymond Purinton, of Cumberland; and K. O. Nelson, Pinto; won prize money and ribbons with their horses on Sunday at the Johnstown, Pa., Horse Show.

Purinton and Nelson have had exceptional success with their horses at Southern Pennsylvania shows this summer. They have shown at Somerset, Waynesburg, Uniontown, Chambersburg and Johnstown; placed in every show they entered and have won a considerable amount of prize money.

"Rainbow's Color Parade," owned by Purinton, was judged reserve champion at Chambersburg, Pa., last week and has been consistently near the top.

Nelson, who started showing this year, has been winning with his Tennessee walking horse, "Rhoda Allen's Romeo."

Being amateurs and considering the large number of professional horsemen entered in these shows Purinton and Nelson feel they have accomplished more than might be expected.

Horses owned by Purinton and Nelson will vie in the Cumberland Show to be held September 14, 15 and 16 at Fairgo.

More Toledo Players Involved In Scandal

TOLEDO, July 27 (INS) — The president of Toledo University announced today that two more Toledo basketball players are involved in the big cage scandal.

President Asa S. Knowles said the two involved are sophomore star Jack Feeman and Joe Massa, of New York City, a member of last year's freshman squad who was slated to replace Bill Walker on next year's varsity team.

Knowles also said a "fix" was involved in two additional games during last season, both of which Toledo lost.

It's hard to believe that nine days of the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting have elapsed and Ralph "Buddy" Root has failed to ride a winner.

We mention this because of the fact that Root and Sammy Palumbo hold the distinction of having topped the riders at Fairgo three times each in past years.

"Buddy" was first in 1937, 1939 and 1942, Palumbo led 'em in 1936, 1944 and 1948.

Root had 14 winners in 1937, 11 in 1939 and 17 in 1942.

"Buddy" has had 26 mounts at the current meeting and he has ridden five place and four show horses.

●—●—●

Nick Shinkoff, scout for the New York Giants, was a visitor at Fairgo yesterday.

Lt. Col. Flook was executive officer of the army unit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War and Nick says Harry is a "great guy."

Shinkoff has been scouting for the Giants for 12 years. Eleven years ago he signed "Buddy" Kerr, shortstop, to a New York contract.

Nick stopped over here en route to Pittsburgh to interview several young baseball prospects.

Dutch King, owned by R. E. Dutcher, was claimed by J. Nechamkin for $1,700 in yesterday's fourth race. The three-year-old bay gelding finished 7th.

Racing Secretary J. Fred Colwill was forced to call off the two miles and a sixteenth race originally planned for today because it didn't fill. The program will windup with three 1 1/16 mile contests.

●—●—●

A person called last night to say that Fast Feather, winner of the first race last Friday is owned by one F. R. Boone, of Cumberland.

This makes us feel like Walter Haight.

After he had called off a lot of automobile numbers over the P. A. system at Fairgo the other day, he remarked:

"If your number has not been called today, please complain."

If we've missed any other Cumberland-owned horses that have won at Fairgo, please complain.

TEHRAN, Iran, July 27 (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, U. S. roving ambassador, left by plane tonight for London to urge Britain to speed her reply to the Iranian proposal for renewed oil talks. He was accompanied by Sir Francis Shepherd, Britain's ambassador to Tehran.

In London, a spokesman said President Truman's personal trouble-shooter will see Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and possibly Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

A SELDOM-SEEN incident occurred in a Cleveland-Boston Red Sox ball game the other day.

Dom DiMaggio, batting for the Red Sox, beefed about a called strike and appeared to be taking his time getting back into the batter's box.

Umpire Charlie Berry, at the plate, ordered DiMag in and when DiMag didn't respond at once, Berry ordered the pitcher to throw the ball. The pitcher, Early Wynn of the Indians, tossed one right over the plate—without a batter standing there—and Umpire Berry called it a strike and DiMaggio was out.

The rule is covered under "6.06" in the official rules book under "A batter is out for illegal action when."

It reads:

". . If, after entering the batter's box, a batter persists in unwarranted delay in taking his proper position, the umpire shall direct the pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat and every pitch shall be called a 'strike' by the umpire."

SO CITATION has retired. The million-dollar baby of the turf has earned his spot in the record books but the old argument of "stars of yesterday and today" will continue. . . . Was Citation better than Man o' War?. . . It's the same difficult question that is asked about Dempsey and Louis, about Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan, about the baseball heroes of yesterday and the stars of today. . . . It never will be answered, of course, for actually there is no way to factually compare the standouts because of the continued change in equipment, the type of competition, the hours of practice, and particularly because each did not oppose the other.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (INS)—you don't need to guess why Gregory Peck and Raoul Walsh sold themselves as a package to Universal-International. The boys made "Captain Horatio Hornblower" together in England, and then and there they decided if a good story came up they'd work together again.

Gregory Peck

The good story that sold both of them is one of Rex Beach's greatest adventure tales, "The World In His Arms." This, as most of the Beach stories, is set in Alaska and is an exciting tale laid in 1850. A gold prospector strikes it rich, comes back to San Francisco, meets a Russian countess—but you've got to see the picture to find out the end.

This will be one of U-I's big outdoor epics and will be filmed partly in California and partly in Alaska.

• — • — •

Gary Merrill, still vacationing with Bette Davis in Connecticut, returns to 20th by August 20, for "A Phone Call From A Stranger." That boy certainly doesn't have much time between pictures.

Nunnally Johnson, who both scripted and will produce the I.A.R. Wylie Yarn, and Jean Negulesco, the director, cabled Lauren Bacall to ask her if she will play opposite Gary. So far they've had no answer, but that's probably because Humphrey Bogart is still working on "African Queen" in London and she doesn't know where she can get back in time.

Bette Davis has announced no plans. She and Gary have certainly traveled since their marriage last year, making pictures all over the globe, and I bet Bette will be glad to light at home.

• — • — •

We may see Peter Ustinov's work as a director before we see him as "Negro" in "Quo Vadis." The British actor, who is a triple threat man in every sense of the word—he writes, directs and emotes—recently finished directing Ralph Richardson in "Secret Flight" in London.

Herbert Bregstein, who brought "Bicycle Thief" to this country, has just arranged to release "Secret Flight" here.

It is a thriller with many of the scenes released by permission of the English Ministry of Defense. No matter how well Ustinov clicks as a director, it will be pale to the stir he is sure to create as Negro. Mervyn Le Roy tells me he is one of the great actors of the world.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Sterling flies out from New York to attend Ann Sterling's opening in "Bittersweet." An understudy will take his place for one night in "Gramercy Square."

Robert Merrill and Paul Douglas arrive from Rome on Sunday. Paul has been there for his picture, "When In Rome."

Martha Raye, who looks very chic these days, I am told, surprised everybody at the Cafe Gala by getting up and singing in an entirely new style and she did it so well she was called back again and again.

Lee Bowman, who has been playing "Ellery Queen" on TV for a long time in New York, comes back here for eight weeks. He may do a movie while here.

Billy Eckstine makes his film debut in "Skirts Ahoy." He'll sing and do a hot dance routine.

Mala Powers and George Brand, Sybil's handsome son, were at the Band Box.

Harvey Stone, the comedian who won applause at the Cocoanut Grove, is headed next for the London Palladium where he'll star in his own show.

Could that have been Maria Reva, Marlene Dietrich's daughter, lunching at the Brown Derby?

Congratulations to Gail Patrick and Corney Jackson on their fourth wedding anniversary. They celebrated at the Mocambo.

Charlotte Rogers is really having a difficult time. She broke her hip when she ran to get away from a man who accosted her in the early morning when she was returning home from her job at the Mocambo, and it's not healing as well as her friends hoped.

Anthony and Katherine Quinn's three youngsters came to visit their dad on the "Viva Zapata" set. Elia Kazan, who was looking for some youngsters, picked on the Quinn children, but fast.

That's all today. See you Monday.

Try this disposition refresher that's guaranteed to revive the whole family's spirits on a hot day!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It doesn't take much to banish any charm detractor if you do something about it before it gets a chance to do something to you. You can even keep the heat from putting a dent in your morale.

There's many an offensive which you can plot that will prevent swamping heat and wearying doldrums from vanquishing your cool, crisp looks and spirits. To stimulate your imagination and efforts along this line, let me tell you about the favorite method of Powers Girl Bea Baily, who is also a model, housewife and mother.

Model Idea

Her slump-chaser is the frostiest of party desserts—an ice ring bouquet—which she serves to her family when the thermometer threatens to reach the breaking point, just to make sure that neither she nor her family does the same.

If you'd like to try this bit of drama this weekend, here's how: Start your dessert early in the morning. All you need is a bouquet of garden flowers that color blend or are of one hue (the common marigold is fine); a bunch of mint, fern fronds or any small leaves; fresh fruit such as berries, cherries or fruit melange of any variety; and a ring mold of the angel-food type, if you have a storage freezer or wide frozen-food compartment in your refrigerator. If not, use several individual-sized ring molds.

Half fill the mold or molds with cold water. Remove most of the flower heads and a few of the leaves from their stems. Reserve the leftovers for later use. Plunge the flower heads and a sprinkling of leaves into the mold until the water rises to the top. Place it into your freezing chamber for freezing as solid as ice cubes. Prepare your fruit and place it on a shelf in your refrigerator.

Like A Frosty Breeze

Just before serving your ice bouquet, line a gleaming platter with your leafy left-over flower sprays, mint and ferns. Then run hot water over your frozen flower container until the ice ring is released. Place it (or them if you made individuals) on your tray, fill with your fruits, and serve to the tune of refreshing compliments.

But don't restrict this sparkling effect to your dessert. As Bea declares, "To get the best results, make sure that your appearance is as crisp-looking as your dessert. Wear your most unflurried expression. The effect on everybody will be like a frosty breeze off a mint bed!"

P. S. from J. R. P.

County Approves Road Contracts

Two contracts in the improvement program planned for county buildings over the next four years were approved yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

The George Construction Company of this city, for $875 will install 72 ventilation pipes at the County Infirmary to keep the concrete block structure from "sweating."

Glenn Wright, Park Heights electrical contractor, will install new lights in the office of the county commissioners and in the office of the clerk to the county commissioners at a cost of $415.

Investigation Continues In Phoenix Flat Blaze

No new developments were reported yesterday by the sheriff's office in the investigation of the destruction by fire of an unoccupied two-story frame house at Phoenix Flat, near Franklin. The burning has been branded as "deliberate" by county officials.

Deputies William Chappell, Edgar M. Lewis and George Furstenberg, as well as State Trooper First Class Milton G. Hart, are continuing their investigation of the blaze. The house was slightly damaged by fire earlier this week and Thursday it was destroyed.

Although arson was discounted by the president of the Campbell Coal Company, Lonaconing, which owns the building, police, after making a complete investigation of the scene Thursday, said the fire had been set "by person or persons unknown." G. D. Campbell had expressed the belief that the blaze was of accidental origin and was probably caused by a group of boys playing there.

KEEPING UP WITH

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (INS)—you don't need to guess why Gregory Peck and Raoul Walsh sold themselves as a package to Universal-International. The boys made "Captain Horatio Hornblower" together in England, and then and there they decided if a good story came up they'd work together again.

Gregory Peck

The good story that sold both of them is one of Rex Beach's greatest adventure tales, "The World In His Arms." This, as most of the Beach stories, is set in Alaska and is an exciting tale laid in 1850. A gold prospector strikes it rich, comes back to San Francisco, meets a Russian countess—but you've got to see the picture to find out the end.

This will be one of U-I's big outdoor epics and will be filmed partly in California and partly in Alaska.

Gary Merrill, still vacationing with Bette Davis in Connecticut, returns to 20th by August 20, for "A Phone Call From A Stranger." That boy certainly doesn't have much time between pictures.

Nunnally Johnson, who both scripted and will produce the I.A.R. Wylie Yarn, and Jean Negulesco, the director, cabled Lauren Bacall to ask her if she will play opposite Gary. So far they've had no answer, but that's probably because Humphrey Bogart is still working on "African Queen" in London and she doesn't know where she can get back in time.

Bette Davis has announced no plans. She and Gary have certainly traveled since their marriage last year, making pictures all over the globe, and I bet Bette will be glad to light at home.

●—●—●

We may see Peter Ustinov's work as a director before we see him as "Negro" in "Quo Vadis." The British actor, who is a triple threat man in every sense of the word—he writes, directs and emotes—recently finished directing Ralph Richardson in "Secret Flight" in London.

Herbert Bregstein, who brought "Bicycle Thief" to this country, has just arranged to release "Secret Flight" here.

It is a thriller with many of the scenes released by permission of the English Ministry of Defense. No matter how well Ustinov clicks as a director, it will be pale to the stir he is sure to create as Negro. Mervyn Le Roy tells me he is one of the great actors of the world.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Sterling flies out from New York to attend Ann Sterling's opening in "Bittersweet." An understudy will take his place for one night in "Gramercy Square."

Robert Merrill and Paul Douglas arrive from Rome on Sunday. Paul has been there for his picture, "When In Rome."

Martha Raye, who looks very chic these days, I am told, surprised everybody at the Cafe Gala by getting up and singing in an entirely new style and she did it so well she was called back again and again.

Lee Bowman, who has been playing "Ellery Queen" on TV for a long time in New York, comes back here for eight weeks. He may do a movie while here.

Billy Eckstine makes his film debut in "Skirts Ahoy." He'll sing and do a hot dance routine.

Mala Powers and George Brand, Sybil's handsome son, were at the Band Box.

Harvey Stone, the comedian who won applause at the Cocoanut Grove, is headed next for the London Palladium where he'll star in his own show.

Could that have been Maria Reva, Marlene Dietrich's daughter, lunching at the Brown Derby?

Congratulations to Gail Patrick and Corney Jackson on their fourth wedding anniversary. They celebrated at the Mocambo.

Charlotte Rogers is really having a difficult time. She broke her hip when she ran to get away from a man who accosted her in the early morning when she was returning home from her job at the Mocambo, and it's not healing as well as her friends hoped.

Anthony and Katherine Quinn's three youngsters came to visit their dad on the "Viva Zapata" set. Elia Kazan, who was looking for some youngsters, picked on the Quinn children, but fast.

That's all today. See you Monday.

County Approves Road Contracts

Two contracts in the improvement program planned for county buildings over the next four years were approved yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

The George Construction Company of this city, for $875 will install 72 ventilation pipes at the County Infirmary to keep the concrete block structure from "sweating."

Glenn Wright, Park Heights electrical contractor, will install new lights in the office of the county commissioners and in the office of the clerk to the county commissioners at a cost of $415.

Try this disposition refresher that's guaranteed to revive the whole family's spirits on a hot day!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It doesn't take much to banish any charm detractor if you do something about it before it gets a chance to do something to you. You can even keep the heat from putting a dent in your morale.

There's many an offensive which you can plot that will prevent swamping heat and wearying doldrums from vanquishing your cool, crisp looks and spirits. To stimulate your imagination and efforts along this line, let me tell you about the favorite method of Powers Girl Bea Baily, who is also a model, housewife and mother.

Model Idea

Her slump-chaser is the frostiest of party desserts—an ice ring bouquet—which she serves to her family when the thermometer threatens to reach the breaking point, just to make sure that neither she nor her family does the same.

If you'd like to try this bit of drama this weekend, here's how: Start your dessert early in the morning. All you need is a bouquet of garden flowers that color blend or are of one hue (the common marigold is fine); a bunch of mint, fern fronds or any small leaves; fresh fruit such as berries, cherries or fruit melange of any variety; and a ring mold of the angel-food type, if you have a storage freezer or wide frozen-food compartment in your refrigerator. If not, use several individual-sized ring molds.

Half fill the mold or molds with cold water. Remove most of the flower heads and a few of the leaves from their stems. Reserve the leftovers for later use. Plunge the flower heads and a sprinkling of leaves into the mold until the water rises to the top. Place it into your freezing chamber for freezing as solid as ice cubes. Prepare your fruit and place it on a shelf in your refrigerator.

Like A Frosty Breeze

Just before serving your ice bouquet, line a gleaming platter with your leafy left-over flower sprays, mint and ferns. Then run hot water over your frozen flower container until the ice ring is released. Place it (or them if you made individuals) on your tray, fill with your fruits, and serve to the tune of refreshing compliments.

But don't restrict this sparkling effect to your dessert. As Bea declares, "To get the best results, make sure that your appearance is as crisp-looking as your dessert. Wear your slickest hair-do. Wear your most unflurried expression. The effect on everybody will be like a frosty breeze off a mint bed!"

Investigation Continues In Phoenix Flat Blaze

No new developments were reported yesterday by the sheriff's office in the investigation of the destruction by fire of an unoccupied two-story frame house at Phoenix Flat, near Franklin. The burning has been branded as "deliberate" by county officials.

Deputies William Chappell, Edgar M. Lewis and George Furstenberg, as well as State Trooper First Class Milton G. Hart, are continuing their investigation of the blaze. The house was slightly damaged by fire earlier this week and Thursday it was destroyed.

Although arson was discounted by the president of the Campbell Coal Company, Lonaconing, which owns the building, police, after making a complete investigation of the scene Thursday, said the fire had been set "by person or persons unknown." G. D. Campbell had expressed the belief that the blaze was of accidental origin and was probably caused by a group of boys playing there.

By JOHN CROSBY

The Disenchanted

When Budd Schulberg's novel "The Disenchanted" was first published, it was both privately and publicly assaulted on what I consider unfair grounds. The book, as everyone knows, was inspired by a single unfortunate episode in F. Scott Fitzgerald's life in which Mr. Schulberg himself figured strongly. The pair collaborated on a movie centering around the Dartmouth winter carnival where Mr. Fitzgerald took to the waters a little too strongly. I happened to have seen the movie and it was—summing it up as judiciously as possible, picking my words with the utmost care—altogether lousy.

John Crosby

The criticisms of the book, both public and private, concentrated perhaps not unnaturally on the private lives and personal characteristics of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald. Wasn't Mr. Schulberg a little one-sided in his appraisal of a very fine writer? Wasn't he being terribly unfair to Zelda Fitzgerald who was, I'm told, quite a girl? Did Mr. Schulberg, a much younger man than Fitzgerald, know him well enough to write about him? These questions are completely irrelevant. After all, Schulberg was writing fiction. His characters were based on real people but then, so, according to Somerset Maugham, are all characters in fiction, even in bad fiction.

• — • — •

Characters, in novels, no matter whom they are based on, acquire their own special aromas, move off in their own private directions. The question at issue is not whether Schulberg drew a rounded portrait of the Fitzgeralds but whether Manley and Jere Halliday were sufficiently real fictional characters to merit all the attention they attracted. I don't think they were. I found Mr. Halliday a little too querulous, far too self-absorbed for comfort, Jere Halliday a little asinine in her passion for self-destruction.

Still, the book had—as Stanley Walker once remarked of Fitzgerald's own books—bones in it. There are some wonderful scenes, each pregnant with imminent disaster—the Hollywood party scene, the script conference at Dartmouth, the final collapse. Mr. Schulberg—let's face it—had a hell of a good story to tell which stood up well last Sunday on NBC's "New Theater Series" (7:30 p. m. EDT)

• — • — •

If you can tear yourself away from the television set at that hour on Sunday, you may hear some very adult drama on this series which is narrated by Eva Le Gallienne, is generally excellently cast and is produced with a scrupulous and impressive attention to detail. After too much immersion in television drama, I'm always surprised by the polish and finish of radio drama, that ancient art form.

Schulberg's dialogue, especially that of the '20s "I feel pale green tonight, darling! Pale green!") which seemed a little sticky in print, sounded remarkably literate on the radio, conceivably because you don't expect any degree of literacy on radio or more probably because of the thoroughly expert performances of Staats Cotsworth as Manley Halliday and Joan Alexander as Jere. Mr. Cotsworth in particular deserves a low bow for managing somehow to play a drunk for almost a solid hour and at the same time remain both expressive and moving, a terrible task to ask of an actor. I was considerably less happy with Don Buka's performance as the Schulberg character, Shep Stearns, but I suspect it wasn't Mr. Buka's fault. He was badly miscast.

"The Disenchanted" is a very good title for a book but not a very apt one for this book. Schulberg, it is my guess, is hopelessly enchanted both with the '20s and the Fitzgeralds and so, it appears, is everyone else. "The '20s," said Miss Le Gallienne in her introduction, "for all their frivolty and wildness, produced fine writers." But the emphasis, both in this book and in others, is not on the fine writing but on the frivolity and wildness, on the waste, the despair and the self-destruction of only a few of the gifted writers of the '20s. Let's not kid ourselves, Miss Le Gallienne.

• — • — •

In case you're interested, a few of the other adaptations done on "New Theater" include Ernest Hemingway's "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," Dorothy Baker's "Young Man With a Horn," and Katherine Anne Porter's "Noon Wine." Coming up tomorrow night is Maritta Wolff's "Whistle Stop" and sometime in the future, "Camille," starring Miss Le Gallienne.

The Disenchanted

When Budd Schulberg's novel "The Disenchanted" was first published, it was both privately and publicly assaulted on what I consider unfair grounds. The book, as everyone knows, was inspired by a single unfortunate episode in F. Scott Fitzgerald's life in which Mr. Schulberg himself figured strongly. The pair collaborated on a movie centering around the Dartmouth winter carnival where Mr. Fitzgerald took to the waters a little too strongly. I happened to have seen the movie and it was—summing it up as judiciously as possible, picking my words with the utmost care—altogether lousy.

John Crosby

The criticisms of the book, both public and private, concentrated perhaps not unnaturally on the private lives and personal characteristics of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald. Wasn't Mr. Schulberg a little one-sided in his appraisal of a very fine writer? Wasn't he being terribly unfair to Zelda Fitzgerald who was, I'm told, quite a girl? Did Mr. Schulberg, a much younger man than Fitzgerald, know him well enough to write about him? These questions are completely irrelevant. After all, Schulberg was writing fiction. His characters were based on real people but then, so, according to Somerset Maugham, are all characters in fiction, even in bad fiction.

•—•—•

Characters, in novels, no matter whom they are based on, acquire their own special aromas, move off in their own private directions. The question at issue is not whether Schulberg drew a rounded portrait of the Fitzgeralds but whether Manley and Jere Halliday were sufficiently real fictional characters to merit all the attention they attracted. I don't think they were. I found Mr. Halliday a little too querulous, far too self-absorbed for comfort, Jere Halliday a little asinine in her passion for self-destruction.

Still, the book had—as Stanley Walker once remarked of Fitzgerald's own books—bones in it. There are some wonderful scenes, each pregnant with imminent disaster—the Hollywood party scene, the script conference at Dartmouth, the final collapse. Mr. Schulberg—let's face it—had a hell of a good story to tell which stood up well last Sunday on NBC's "New Theater Series" (7:30 p. m. EDT)

If you can tear yourself away from the television set at that hour on Sunday, you may hear some very adult drama on this series which is narrated by Eva Le Gallienne, is generally excellently cast and is produced with a scrupulous and impressive attention to detail. After too much immersion in television drama, I'm always surprised by the polish and finish of radio drama, that ancient art form.

Schulberg's dialogue, especially that of the '20s "I feel pale green tonight, darling! Pale green!") which seemed a little sticky in print, sounded remarkably literate on the radio, conceivably because you don't expect any degree of literacy on radio or more probably because of the thoroughly expert performances of Staats Cotsworth as Manley Halliday and Joan Alexander as Jere. Mr. Cotsworth in particular deserves a low bow for managing somehow to play a drunk for almost a solid hour and at the same time remain both expressive and moving, a terrible task to ask of an actor. I was considerably less happy with Don Buka's performance as the Schulberg character, Shep Stearns, but I suspect it wasn't Mr. Buka's fault. He was badly miscast.

"The Disenchanted" is a very good title for a book but not a very apt one for this book. Schulberg, it is my guess, is hopelessly enchanted both with the '20s and the Fitzgeralds and so, it appears, is everyone else. "The '20s," said Miss Le Gallienne in her introduction, "for all their frivolty and wildness, produced fine writers." But the emphasis, both in this book and in others, is not on the fine writing but on the frivolity and wildness, on the waste, the despair and the self-destruction of only a few of the gifted writers of the '20s. Let's not kid ourselves, Miss Le Gallienne.

In case you're interested, a few of the other adaptations done on "New Theater" include Ernest Hemingway's "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," Dorothy Baker's "Young Man With a Horn," and Katherine Anne Porter's "Noon Wine." Coming up tomorrow night is Maritta Wolff's "Whistle Stop" and sometime in the future, "Camille," starring Miss Le Gallienne.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

ANNE FRANCIS GARNETT, PLAINTIFF, VS. CARL MAURICE GARNETT, DEFENDANT NO. 22300 EQUITY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that the parties were married in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on January 19, 1940; that two children were born of the marriage, that the defendant deserted the plaintiff without just cause, that the desertion has continued uninterruptedly since October, 1942, that it was deliberate and final and that there is no hope of a reconciliation; that the plaintiff is a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, and has resided therein for many years; that the defendant is a non-resident of this state and is believed to be a resident of the State of Michigan.

It is thereupon this 27th day of July, 1951, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md., that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 29th day of August, 1951, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of September next, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May brothers and sisters be "too close"?

Answer: Yes, once they have grown up. On the whole, the motives which make adult sons and daughters unwilling to leave home, or unable to feel as close to "outsiders" as to one another must be recognized as backward -l ooking. Such behavior represents an effort to preserve the security and happiness of childhood at the cost of missing the more adult satisfaction of the ties a person makes for himself. To feel it is only your relatives that you can depend on is to lack enough self-confidence to believe that anyone will love you for yourself, or if it is not his "duty" to do so.

painful. But as we grow up we learn subtler ways of hurting ourselves (needless overwork, or worry, for example) so that the "pain barrier" is undermined and if we are neurotic enough, we may ruin our health, or even commit unconscious suicide.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Is losing your gloves neurotic?

Answer: If it gets to be a habit, it is a neurotic symptom, though not necessarily a serious one. For there is a purpose behind everything you do or leave undone, and only a purpose that is more or less neurotic will work to your disadvantage. The person who leaves a trail of gloves, rubbers and handkerchiefs behind him may have a childish resentment at being "encumbered," or what he unconsciously throws away may represent a sort of sacrifice, intended to avert ill fortune, like the wine the Greeks and Romans poured out on the ground at their feasts.

May pain save a baby's life?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. W. Hoffer in the International Journal of Psychoanalysis. A baby is kept from taking out his aggressive impulses on himself by the fact that it hurts him to do so, and this may save his life. Psychiatrists say, for instance, that a child in a temper tantrum rarely will bang his head on the floor hard enough to do serious damage because this would be too

Market Advance Featured By Stock Split Candidates

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP) — Wildfire enthusiasm for a few issues today in the stock market highlighted an advance, despite backward tendencies in a few major areas.

The advance ran as high as $11 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $217, $8.62 at $126.50 for American Cyanamid, and $6.25 at $115.12 for Cities Service.

All three of these issues, besides good earnings reports, are either candidates for splits or in the rumor classification.

Among major divisions showing good progress were rails, oils, motion pictures, copper mining, gold mining, chemicals, and a long list of miscellaneous manufacturers.

Steels and motors were notably backward, and there were a lot of minus signs in rubbers, aircrafts, and merchandising shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 80 cents at $95.60 with the industrial component up 50 cents, rails up $1.50 (largely as a result of the Nickel Plate showing), and utilities ended unchanged.

The steels were under the handicap of lower earnings reported late yesterday at Bethlehem, which closed off 1 at 51¼. Although that was a major depressant, some smaller companies soared off on their own when they reported sharply higher profits for the first half of this year. Lukens Steel—$10.66 a share as against $2.33—was up 2⅞ at 42¾. Follansbee Steel was up 1 at 22½, also on favorable earnings.

The volume of business came to 1,450,000 and compared with 1,480,000 shares yesterday.

The list of individual issues traded expanded to 1,103 as compared with 1,068 yesterday. There were 476 issues advancing and 340 declining, with 30 new highs and 15 new lows established for the year.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO TRICKS BY SQUEEZE

MOST bridge players have never seen the play which veterans call the "progressive squeeze." Indeed very few have the slightest understanding of just how it operates. There are plenty who don't even know there is such a play, whereby the squeezer builds two tricks for himself. Rare as it is, however, the fundamentals of it are not complex. In effect, it is two successive squeezes. The first obliges the victim to make a devastating discard from one of three suits. Then a card of the suit which he discarded is used for squeezing him again between the two remaining suits.

It is thereupon this 27th day of July, 1951, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Md., that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 29th day of August, 1951, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of September next, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May brothers and sisters be "too close"?

Answer: Yes, once they have grown up. On the whole, the motives which make adult sons and daughters unwilling to leave home, or unable to feel as close to "outsiders" as to one another must be recognized as backward -l ooking. Such behavior represents an effort to preserve the security and happiness of childhood at the cost of missing the more adult satisfaction of the ties a person makes for himself. To feel it is only your relatives that you can depend on is to lack enough self-confidence to believe that anyone will love you for yourself, or if it is not his "duty" to do so.

painful. But as we grow up we learn subtler ways of hurting ourselves (needless overwork, or worry, for example) so that the "pain barrier" is undermined and if we are neurotic enough, we may ruin our health, or even commit unconscious suicide.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Is losing your gloves neurotic?

Answer: If it gets to be a habit, it is a neurotic symptom, though not necessarily a serious one. For there is a purpose behind everything you do or leave undone, and only a purpose that is more or less neurotic will work to your disadvantage. The person who leaves a trail of gloves, rubbers and handkerchiefs behind him may have a childish resentment at being "encumbered," or what he unconsciously throws away may represent a sort of sacrifice, intended to avert ill fortune, like the wine the Greeks and Romans poured out on the ground at their feasts.

May pain save a baby's life?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. W. Hoffer in the International Journal of Psychoanalysis. A baby is kept from taking out his aggressive impulses on himself by the fact that it hurts him to do so, and this may save his life. Psychiatrists say, for instance, that a child in a temper tantrum rarely will bang his head on the floor hard enough to do serious damage because this would be too

Market Advance Featured By Stock Split Candidates

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP) — Wildfire enthusiasm for a few issues today in the stock market highlighted an advance, despite backward tendencies in a few major areas.

The advance ran as high as $11 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $217, $8.62 at $126.50 for American Cyanamid, and $6.25 at $115.12 for Cities Service.

All three of these issues, besides good earnings reports, are either candidates for splits or in the rumor classification.

Among major divisions showing good progress were rails, oils, motion pictures, copper mining, gold mining, chemicals, and a long list of miscellaneous manufacturers.

Steels and motors were notably backward, and there were a lot of minus signs in rubbers, aircrafts, and merchandising shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 80 cents at $95.60 with the industrial component up 50 cents, rails up $1.50 (largely as a result of the Nickel Plate showing), and utilities ended unchanged.

The steels were under the handicap of lower earnings reported late yesterday at Bethlehem, which closed off 1 at 51¼. Although that was a major depressant, some smaller companies soared off on their own when they reported sharply higher profits for the first half of this year. Lukens Steel—$10.66 a share as against $2.33—was up 2⅞ at 42¾. Follansbee Steel was up 1 at 22½, also on favorable earnings.

The volume of business came to 1,450,000 and compared with 1,480,000 shares yesterday.

The list of individual issues traded expanded to 1,103 as compared with 1,068 yesterday. There were 476 issues advancing and 340 declining, with 30 new highs and 15 new lows established for the year.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO TRICKS BY SQUEEZE

MOST bridge players have never seen the play which veterans call the "progressive squeeze." Indeed very few have the slightest understanding of just how it operates. There are plenty who don't even know there is such a play, whereby the squeezer builds two tricks for himself. Rare as it is, however, the fundamentals of it are not complex. In effect, it is two successive squeezes. The first obliges the victim to make a devastating discard from one of three suits. Then a card of the suit which he discarded is used for squeezing him again between the two remaining suits.

Area Swelters As Temperature Soars To 95

Is One Degree Lower Than Year's Highest

The temperature went up to 95 degrees yesterday, and record readings for the year were reported elsewhere in Maryland as the state sweltered in the middle of a heat wave.

Baltimore had a 96 degree high equalling Cumberland's 96 degree high last Sunday. Yesterday was the second time that the mercury soared to 95 degrees in Cumberland, the first being recorded on June 3. The weather station at Constitution Park reported the high temperature as 95 degrees, the low as 63, and at 8:45 p. m. yesterday, mercury stood at 82 degrees. Humidity was relatively low, however, and was recorded as 42 per cent at 7 o'clock last night.

Two cases of heat prostration were reported in Baltimore, none here.

Frederick had a high reading of 96, hottest this year. It was around 90 in Garrett County, in the mountainous western section of the state. Most inland areas reported readings in the mid-90's, those on the water generally around 90.

A bay breeze kept the mercury down to about 87 in Annapolis, where a fishing fair is in progress.

There is not much relief in sight. The weather bureau's five-day forecast predicted higher humidity today without much change in temperature, scattered thundershowers Sunday and Monday, more thundershowers again Wednesday.

Temperatures for the period are expected to average three or four degrees above seasonal normals.

Former Amcelle Engineer Helps Open New Plant

Family Now Resides In British Columbia

A Celanese research engineer who worked at the Amcelle plant for 25 years played an important role in the opening last month of the new modern Columbia Celulose wood pulp plant in British Columbia, Canada.

Mervin E. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Martin, 321 Avirett Avenue, is now technical director in charge of laboratory and research work at the new plant located on Watson Island, about 12 miles from Prince Rupert, British Columbia. He was assigned to the new plant last November.

Martin's wife, the former Elinor Deetz, and their three children, joined him in January and the former Cumberland family now resides in Prince Rupert.

Visiting Family Here

Mrs. Martin and the children are presently visiting Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Deetz and her sister, Olga Deetz, Hazen Road, and were accompanied here from Prince Rupert by Miss Elizabeth Jones, 12-year-old daughter of W. C. R. Jones, manager of the new plant. The Jones family formerly resided in Montreal, Canada, Mrs. Martin said.

The Martins made the trip from Prince Rupert by auto, traveling approximately 3,900 miles in 12 days through Yellowstone Park, Grand Coulee Dam and across the United States.

The little Jones girl left Tuesday to return home to her family and Mrs. Martin said she took her to Washington, D. C. where the girl boarded a plane for Montreal. When asked how she felt about flying for the first time, Elizabeth replied "I have butterflies in my stomach." Although a bit nervous the 12-year-old girl looked forward to making the trip, Mrs. Martin declared.

Explaining the excitement of living in a new, as yet not fully developed country, Mrs. Martin admitted the experience was thrilling. "The country is wild but very beautiful," she noted, "and we all had a wonderful trip returning to Cumberland."

Near Alaska Coast

Mrs. Martin's three children, Patricia, 16, Sue, 12, and Tommy, 6, have had a little difficulty adjusting themselves to the new country and different customs of the people there, she added.

"Prince Rupert is located on the west coast of British Columbia about 80 miles from Alaska," she went on, "and it has a natural harbor which is the third largest on the American continent.

"The Skeena River, which is about 30 miles from Prince Rupert, is the river down which the logs used by the Columbia Celulose plant for wood pulp are floated," Mrs. Martin explained. "When we return home in August," Mrs. Martin said, "we will drive to Washington state and then to Vancouver, B. C., where we will take a boat to Prince Rupert. Vancouver is about 600 miles from Prince Rupert," she added.

The Cumberland family has taken a liking to their new surroundings and the new customs there which are different from those in America.

"Most of the people living in Prince Rupert are from the old countries," she noted, "and are of English, Scotch, Japanese, Chinese, Norwegian, Swedish and Indian descent."

Noted For Totem Poles

The country there is noted for its totem poles which you can find in almost every village and the Northwestern Indians which live there are descendants of the Heidi Indians from the Queen Charlotte Islands in the Pacific Ocean," Mrs. Martin revealed.

The colorful Canadian Northwest Mounted Police have a detachment in Prince Rupert "and are the only police there," Mrs. Martin said. "They look almost like our Maryland State Police in uniform," she added, "and only wear their noted red coats for dress parades and social functions."

The children seem to experience their most difficulty in the schools which are taught by mostly Canadian and English teachers. "The system is a bit different from ours," Mrs. Martin explained," and they combine related subjects such as math, trigonometry, algebra into one class." Otherwise the family seems to be adjusting itself to its new surroundings without too much concern.

"We're very anxious to get back," Mrs. Martin continued, "and I hope my husband will be able to come here to visit next year."

Red Cross Has Fairgo Booth

A group of Cumberland women sponsored a booth at Cumberland Fairgrounds yesterday to solicit funds for Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross which will be sent for relief in flood-torn midwest states.

Under chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Helmrich the committee will sponsor the booth again today, Red Cross officials said. Assisting Mrs. Helmrich yesterday were Mrs. Fuller Whitworth, Mrs. Wilbur Buchhanan and Mrs. John Moberly.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the county chapter, said last night $131.13 had been realized toward the county's $2,600 quota for national flood relief.

Frederick W. Eiler has accepted the chairmanship of the emergency campaign to raise the necessary funds and asks that contributions be sent or brought to Red Cross office in the Post Office building as the local chapter desires to raise the quota allotted as quickly as possible.

15 Hurt In Bus Crash On Turnpike

SOMERSET, Pa., July 27 (AP)— A Greyhound bus plowed into the rear of a steel truck late tonight on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near the Laurel Hill tunnel about nine miles west of Somerset.

State Police said first reports indicated no one was killed "although at least 15 passengers were injured."

A radio car at the scene said all of the injured had been taken to a Somerset hospital where five of them were admitted, including the unidentified driver of the bus.

Officers said the bus driver was pinned in the wreckage and acetylene torches had to be used to free him.

First reports said the bus was en route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. The wreck occurred about 55 miles east of Pittsburgh.

Ridgedale Playground Square Dancers Winners In City Folk Dance Festival

Ridgedale Playground dancers square-danced their way to first place in the First Intracity Folk Dancing Festival last night at Gephart Playground.

The eight-girl team edged out teams from 10 other city playgrounds with their performance of the "Two Head Ladies Cross Over."

Second place honors went to the Johnson Heights team for an elaborate Sailor's Hornpipe.

Medals were awarded to all members of the winning team. They were Nancy Diehl, Carole Decker, Janis Twigg, Barbara Raupach, Norma Jean Twigg, Patty Lou Head, Kay Ort and Gail Campbell.

Gephart, the host playground, took third award with a square dance, and fourth and fifth places went to Columbia Street, with a Swedish Clap Dance, and Virginia Avenue, with a Csehbogar, a Hungarian folk dance.

The four runner-up playgrounds were awarded points toward the city playground banner, to be awarded at the end of the season to the playground which has earned the most points in city competitions.

Other contenders in last night's festival were West Side, with a square dance; Pine Avenue, a folk dance; East Side and Mount Royal square dances; North End, Hungarian folk dance, and Centre Street, a Virginia Reel.

Judges were Don Black, Jack Drummond and Dr. Rudy Steinberger, members of the Cumberland Quadrille Club, local square and folk dancing group.

The festival was the second intracity event to be staged at local playgrounds this season. The first was a talent show last Friday night at Constitution Park amphitheater.

Two Men Held In County Jail In Auto Theft

Two out-of-town men are being held in county jail pending a charge of violation of the Dyer Act, a federal law on stolen cars.

Ralph Poindexter, 19, Wallace, Idaho, and James C. Spurlock, 31, Rawlings Creek, Ky., were taken into custody in Frostburg Tuesday, interrogated, and an investigation revealed the two had in their possession a stolen pickup truck from Iowa.

Criminal Investigator William F. Baker of the State Police reported Sgt. Lloyd Truly, of the Frostburg Police Department, informed the LaVale Barracks Tuesday he had spotted the 1950 pickup truck parked on a vacant lot in Frostburg.

Routine Check Up

Baker said the two occupants of the motor vehicle were taken in for routine interrogation, and subsequent investigation revealed the machine had been stolen from Nevada, Iowa, on July 18.

Baker said Poindexter was the driver of the stolen vehicle. He added that his companion, Spurlock, said Poindexter picked him up along the way east several days after the alleged theft.

Jeep Unsighted

Locally, J. E. Hare, operator of Hare Motor Sales, 219 South Mechanic Street, reports that a 1949 Willys Jeep one-half ton pickup truck was stolen from his lot the night of July 16.

The red machine has a canopy over the bed and had no tags when taken between 9 p. m. and 11 p. m. Hare said no keys were in the truck and the doors were locked when last seen.

The vehicle was probably started by crossing ignition wires, he added. State and City police have been alerted, but the machine has not been spotted.

Fire Department Checks Two Alarms Last Night

The Cumberland Fire Department answered two calls late last night almost simultaneously.

Central checked an overheated battery charger at Spoerl's Garage on North Mechanic Street at 10:45 p. m. Damage was confined to the charger. Eastside went to the corner of Park and Williams Street and checked an automobile fire at 10:55 p. m. caused by a short circuit in a cable. Damage to the car belonging to Hayden Philips, Rawlings, was slight.

Everett Admits Forging Check

Authorities said last night that Raymond Everett, 20, of Christie Road, admitted forgery of a check cashed by a local grocer in the amount of $13.25 after questioning in the State's Attorney's office.

Everett had been in the Federal Reformatory at Petersburg, Va., after being convicted in January of a charge of stealing a money order from a mail box, police said, and is also on two-year probation on another theft charge in Mineral County, W. Va.

New Fireworks Display Planned At Bedford Fair

Bedford's "night fair," always a popular feature of the exposition which opens Monday, August 6, will be highlighted by a new feature this year—a display of spectacular fireworks encircling the half-mile track, climaxing the evening show.

A. C. Brice, fair secretary, said the electronically-controlled half-mile display will be shown for the first time in Pennsylvania at the local fair. In fact, Bedford will be the only fair in the state with this feature, which will be presented at several southern state fairs later this year.

Hamid's Grandstand Follies of 1951, featuring the Roxyettes in the Four Season's Revue, the Peggy Taylor Trio and Arthur Craig Mathues, New York tenor, will appear.

On the midway will be Prell's Broadway Shows, recently featured in Look Magazine.

W. M. Railway Reports Loss In Operation

Elkins To Cumberland Trains Are "In Red"

Western Maryland Railway officials said yesterday at Charleston the road lost $55,000 operating passenger trains Nos. 1 and 4 between Elkins and Cumberland, Md. the first five months of this year.

The Public Service Commission began rehearing on the railway's application for permission to discontinue these trains. The request was denied by the commission on May 31, but the railroad's request that the case be reopened later was granted.

E. T. Steffy of Baltimore, general auditor for the Western Maryland, told the commission that the two trains produced $13,704.31 in operating revenues from January through May, this year.

He said the immediate out-of-pocket operating expense amounted to $23,312.20. In addition, Steffy said, the trains were assigned a proportionate share of divisional expenses amounting to $46,408.39.

Thus the total expense of the trains was $69,720.53, leaving an overall deficit of $55,016.22, Steffy said.

The commission said it permitted the railroad to reopen the case not because it felt it was in error in denying the application last May, but in order to give the railroad an opportunity to show, if it can, that conditions under which the trains operate have changed materially since the previous hearing in April, 1950.

The trains operate daily except Sunday, with Train No. 1 running from Cumberland to Elkins, and No. 4 from Elkins to Cumberland.

Actually covered in the hearing before the West Virginia Commission is only the portion of the runs which lies within this state. Left outside the state, however, is only the very short distance between Ridgeley, W. Va., and Cumberland.

The commission has received letters of protest from a number of towns, including Davis, Hambleton, Keyser, Thomas and Elkins.

Petitions of protest have been filed with the commission by groups of citizens in Thomas, Montrose, Albert, Mount Storm, Bismarck and Gormania.

Protests also have been received from various railway labor groups.

Weather

Cumberlanders saw a hot uncomfortable day, yesterday as temperatures climbed to within one degree of the year's record high. The sky was clear, and the summer sun was visible all day. A slight breeze in the morning began to fade in the afternoon, and humidity was at a low percentage. Constitution Park's weather station reported the high temperature as 95 degrees, the low as 63, and at 8:45 p. m., mercury was recorded as 82 degrees. Humidity was 42 per cent at 7 p. m. Forecast for today is some cloudiness and continued warm with scattered afternoon or evening thundershowers likely.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (AP)— Four prisoners, one of them described as dangerous, overpowered a lone guard tonight and escaped from the Annapolis jail.

Sheriff Joseph Alton said the unarmed men were last seen entering an Annapolis taxicab and were believed headed for Maryland's Eastern Shore, across the Chesapeake Bay.

The sheriff said one of the men, Ray Weber, about 32, being held on a charge of violating parole in Utah, was "dangerous."

Yellow Spring, police said, is located about 40 miles from Romney on Route 50 toward Winchester. The extent of the blaze and damage was not known last night.

New Hospital Set For Washington Co.

HAGERSTOWN, July 27 (AP) — Senator D. Kenneth McLaughlin (R-Washington) said today construction of a new chronic disease hospital for Western Maryland may be started in the not too distant future.

McLaughlin said he was "finally getting some action" on the project. State Engineer Nathan Smith is to meet with Washington County Commissioners next Monday, he said, to inspect several proposed sites.

Plans call for the new hospital being constructed in Washington County. A start on the actual building has been held up by lack of funds.

The new hospital will replace the one at Camp Ritchie, which has been sold to the federal government. Some 200 patients are being moved elsewhere.

Richardson Wood Boosts Cumberland In Harpers Magazine

Cumberland, as a labor surplus area, would be an ideal site for one of the country's new war plants, says the current issue of Harper's Magazine.

In an article titled "The Shambles Around the War Plant," industrial consultant Richardson Wood discusses the disastrous impact upon workers and surrounding communities which the erection of war plants can have in unplanned and unprepared areas.

One of the simplest measures to help reduce the size of the problem now thrust upon the nation by our present defense effort, he writes, is to take the job to the people rather than to require the people to move to the jobs.

And Cumberland, the article goes on to say, with its classic transportation site and where recently 20 percent of those registered for employment were jobless, is an excellent example of where a liability could overnight become an asset.

From the point of view of national policy, it concludes, the case for the labor surplus area is even more telling. "There is no other way in which government can save the taxpayers so much money and speed up production at the same time," the article says. "Savings can well run to hundreds of millions of dollars."

STREET TO BE OPENED—Workmen are shown applying temporary paving to the first block of Frederick Street, which is expected to be opened to traffic Monday. The street has been closed due to construction of a pressure conduit in connection with the flood control project. Workmen began filling in the ditch and applying crushed rock yesterday. Blacktop paving will be applied Monday. The picture was taken from North Mechanic Street, looking toward North Liberty Street.

Frederick had a high reading of 96, hottest this year. It was around 90 in Garrett County, in the mountainous western section of the state. Most inland areas reported readings in the mid-90's, those on the water generally around 90.

A bay breeze kept the mercury down to about 87 in Annapolis, where a fishing fair is in progress.

There is not much relief in sight. The weather bureau's five-day forecast predicted higher humidity today without much change in temperature, scattered thundershowers Sunday and Monday, more thundershowers again Wednesday.

Temperatures for the period are expected to average three or four degrees above seasonal normals.

W. M. Railway Reports Loss In Operation

Elkins To Cumberland Trains Are "In Red"

Western Maryland Railway officials said yesterday at Charleston the road lost $55,000 operating passenger trains Nos. 1 and 4 between Elkins and Cumberland, Md. the first five months of this year.

The Public Service Commission began rehearing on the railway's application for permission to discontinue these trains. The request was denied by the commission on May 31, but the railroad's request that the case be reopened later was granted.

E. T. Steffy of Baltimore, general auditor for the Western Maryland, told the commission that the two trains produced $13,704.31 in operating revenues from January through May, this year.

He said the immediate out-of-pocket operating expense amounted to $23,312.20. In addition, Steffy said, the trains were assigned a proportionate share of divisional expenses amounting to $46,408.39.

Thus the total expense of the trains was $69,720.53, leaving an overall deficit of $55,016.22, Steffy said.

The commission said it permitted the railroad to reopen the case not because it felt it was in error in denying the application last May, but in order to give the railroad an opportunity to show, if it can, that conditions under which the trains operate have changed materially since the previous hearing in April, 1950.

The trains operate daily except Sunday, with Train No. 1 running from Cumberland to Elkins, and No. 4 from Elkins to Cumberland.

Actually covered in the hearing before the West Virginia Commission is only the portion of the runs which lies within this state. Left outside the state, however, is only the very short distance between Ridgeley, W. Va., and Cumberland.

The commission has received letters of protest from a number of towns, including Davis, Hambleton, Keyser, Thomas and Elkins.

Petitions of protest have been filed with the commission by groups of citizens in Thomas, Montrose, Albert, Mount Storm, Bismarck and Gormania.

Protests also have been received from various railway labor groups.

Red Cross Has Fairgo Booth

A group of Cumberland women sponsored a booth at Cumberland Fairgrounds yesterday to solicit funds for Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross which will be sent for relief in flood-torn midwest states.

Under chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Helmrich the committee will sponsor the booth again today. Red Cross officials said. Assisting Mrs. Helmrich yesterday were Mrs. Fuller Whitworth, Mrs. Wilbur Buchhanan and Mrs. John Moberly.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the county chapter, said last night $131.13 had been realized toward the county's $2,600 quota for national flood relief.

Frederick W. Eiler has accepted the chairmanship of the emergency campaign to raise the necessary funds and asks that contributions be sent or brought to Red Cross office in the Post Office building as the local chapter desires to raise the quota allotted as quickly as possible.

Fire Department Checks Two Alarms Last Night

The Cumberland Fire Department answered two calls late last night almost simultaneously.

Central checked an overheated battery charger at Spoerl's Garage on North Mechanic Street at 10:45 p. m. Damage was confined to the charger. Eastside went to the corner of Park and Williams Street and checked an automobile fire at 10:55 p. m. caused by a short circuit in a cable. Damage to the car belonging to Hayden Philips, Rawlings, was slight.

Everett Admits Forging Check

Authorities said last night that Raymond Everett, 20, of Christie Road, admitted forgery of a check cashed by a local grocer in the amount of $13.25 after questioning in the State's Attorney's office.

Everett had been in the Federal Reformatory at Petersburg, Va., after being convicted in January of a charge of stealing a money order from a mail box, police said, and is also on two-year probation on another theft charge in Mineral County, W. Va.

15 Hurt In Bus Crash On Turnpike

SOMERSET, Pa., July 27 (AP)— A Greyhound bus plowed into the rear of a steel truck late tonight on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near the Laurel Hill tunnel about nine miles west of Somerset.

State Police said first reports indicated no one was killed "although at least 15 passengers were injured."

A radio car at the scene said all of the injured had been taken to a Somerset hospital where five of them were admitted, including the unidentified driver of the bus.

Officers said the bus driver was pinned in the wreckage and acetylene torches had to be used to free him.

First reports said the bus was en route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. The wreck occurred about 55 miles east of Pittsburgh.

New Fireworks Display Planned At Bedford Fair

Bedford's "night fair," always a popular feature of the exposition which opens Monday, August 6, will be highlighted by a new feature this year—a display of spectacular fireworks encircling the half-mile track, climaxing the evening show.

A. C. Brice, fair secretary, said the electronically-controlled half-mile display will be shown for the first time in Pennsylvania at the local fair. In fact, Bedford will be the only fair in the state with this feature, which will be presented at several southern state fairs later this year.

Hamid's Grandstand Follies of 1951, featuring the Roxyettes in the Four Season's Revue, the Peggy Taylor Trio and Arthur Craig Mathues, New York tenor, will appear.

Six circus and Vaudeville acts will be presented both day and night. Harness racing will attract leading horsemen of the Central Fair Circuit to Bedford Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Wednesday afternoon, Lucky Irish Horan's daredevils will present their thrill show, climaxed when a car is catapulted 70 feet through space from the mouth of a giant cannon.

Saturday afternoon, Sam Nunis will bring some of the nation's leading racers to the fair, to scorch the half-mile oval in AAA Auto Races in regulation stock cars.

On the midway will be Prell's Broadway Shows, recently featured in Look Magazine.

Livestock exhibits featuring the finest cattle of the area are always a top attraction at the Bedford Fair, and competition is keen among the cattle breeders for top honors.

Former Amcelle Engineer Helps Open New Plant

Family Now Resides In British Columbia

A Celanese research engineer who worked at the Amcelle plant for 25 years played an important role in the opening last month of the new modern Columbia Celulose wood pulp plant in British Columbia, Canada.

Mervin E. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Martin, 321 Avirett Avenue, is now technical director in charge of laboratory and research work at the new plant located on Watson Island, about 12 miles from Prince Rupert, British Columbia. He was assigned to the new plant last November.

Martin's wife, the former Elinor Deetz, and their three children, joined him in January and the former Cumberland family now resides in Prince Rupert.

Visiting Family Here

Mrs. Martin and the children are presently visiting Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Deetz and her sister, Olga Deetz, Hazen Road, and were accompanied here from Prince Rupert by Miss Elizabeth Jones, 12-year-old daughter of W. C. R. Jones, manager of the new plant. The Jones family formerly resided in Montreal, Canada, Mrs. Martin said.

The Martins made the trip from Prince Rupert by auto, traveling approximately 3,900 miles in 12 days through Yellowstone Park, Grand Coulee Dam and across the United States.

The little Jones girl left Tuesday to return home to her family and Mrs. Martin said she took her to Washington, D. C. where the girl boarded a plane for Montreal. When asked how she felt about flying for the first time, Elizabeth replied "I have butterflies in my stomach." Although a bit nervous the 12-year-old girl looked forward to making the trip, Mrs. Martin declared.

Explaining the excitement of living in a new, as yet not fully developed country, Mrs. Martin admitted the experience was thrilling. "The country is wild but very beautiful," she noted, "and we all had a wonderful trip returning to Cumberland."

Near Alaska Coast

Mrs. Martin's three children, Patricia, 16, Sue, 12, and Tommy, 6, have had a little difficulty adjusting themselves to the new country and different customs of the people there, she added.

"Prince Rupert is located on the west coast of British Columbia about 80 miles from Alaska," she went on, "and it has a natural harbor which is the third largest on the American continent.

"The Skeena River, which is about 30 miles from Prince Rupert, is the river down which the logs used by the Columbia Celulose plant for wood pulp are floated," Mrs. Martin explained. "When we return home in August," Mrs. Martin said, "we will drive to Washington state and then to Vancouver, B. C., where we will take a boat to Prince Rupert. Vancouver is about 600 miles from Prince Rupert," she added.

The Cumberland family has taken a liking to their new surroundings and the new customs there which are different from those in America.

"Most of the people living in Prince Rupert are from the old countries," she noted, "and are of English, Scotch, Japanese, Chinese, Norwegian, Swedish and Indian descent."

Noted For Totem Poles

The country there is noted for its totem poles which you can find in almost every village and the Northwestern Indians which live there are descendants of the Heidi Indians from the Queen Charlotte Islands in the Pacific Ocean," Mrs. Martin revealed.

The colorful Canadian Northwest Mounted Police have a detachment in Prince Rupert "and are the only police there," Mrs. Martin said. "They look almost like our Maryland State Police in uniform," she added, "and only wear their noted red coats for dress parades and social functions."

The children seem to experience their most difficulty in the schools which are taught by mostly Canadian and English teachers. "The system is a bit different from ours," Mrs. Martin explained," and they combine related subjects such as math, trigonometry, algebra into one class." Otherwise the family seems to be adjusting itself to its new surroundings without too much concern.

"We're very anxious to get back," Mrs. Martin continued, "and I hope my husband will be able to come here to visit next year."

Weather

Cumberlanders saw a hot uncomfortable day, yesterday as temperatures climbed to within one degree of the year's record high. The sky was clear, and the summer sun was visible all day. A slight breeze in the morning began to fade in the afternoon, and humidity was at a low percentage. Constitution Park's weather station reported the high temperature as 95 degrees, the low as 63, and at 8:45 p. m., mercury was recorded as 82 degrees. Humidity was 42 per cent at 7 p. m. Forecast for today is some cloudiness and continued warm with scattered afternoon or evening thundershowers likely.

Two Men Held In County Jail In Auto Theft

Two out-of-town men are being held in county jail pending a charge of violation of the Dyer Act, a federal law on stolen cars.

Ralph Poindexter, 19, Wallace, Idaho, and James C. Spurlock, 31, Rawlings Creek, Ky., were taken into custody in Frostburg Tuesday, interrogated, and an investigation revealed the two had in their possession a stolen pickup truck from Iowa.

Criminal Investigator William F. Baker of the State Police reported Sgt. Lloyd Truly, of the Frostburg Police Department, informed the LaVale Barracks Tuesday he had spotted the 1950 pickup truck parked on a vacant lot in Frostburg.

Routine Check Up

Baker said the two occupants of the motor vehicle were taken in for routine interrogation, and subsequent investigation revealed the machine had been stolen from Nevada, Iowa, on July 18.

Baker said Poindexter was the driver of the stolen vehicle. He added that his companion, Spurlock, said Poindexter picked him up along the way east several days after the alleged theft.

Jeep Unsighted

Locally, J. E. Hare, operator of Hare Motor Sales, 219 South Mechanic Street, reports that a 1949 Willys Jeep one-half ton pickup truck was stolen from his lot the night of July 16.

The red machine has a canopy over the bed and had no tags when taken between 9 p. m. and 11 p. m. Hare said no keys were in the truck and the doors were locked when last seen.

The vehicle was probably started by crossing ignition wires, he added. State and City police have been alerted, but the machine has not been spotted.

Four Prisoners Flee Jail At Annapolis

The sheriff said one of the men, Ray Weber, about 32, being held on a charge of violating parole in Utah, was "dangerous."

He identified the other three as James Peter Estep, 30, Anne Arundel County, awaiting trial on a robbery charge; Charles Connell, 21, Baltimore, charged with rape; and Henry Drury, about 30, Millersville, Anne Arundel County, awaiting trial on a burglary charge.

Yellow Spring, police said, is located about 40 miles from Romney on Route 50 toward Winchester. The extent of the blaze and damage was not known last night.

New Hospital Set For Washington Co.

HAGERSTOWN, July 27 (AP) — Senator D. Kenneth McLaughlin (R-Washington) said today construction of a new chronic disease hospital for Western Maryland may be started in the not too distant future.

McLaughlin said he was "finally getting some action" on the project. State Engineer Nathan Smith is to meet with Washington County Commissioners next Monday, he said, to inspect several proposed sites.

Plans call for the new hospital being constructed in Washington County. A start on the actual building has been held up by lack of funds.

The new hospital will replace the one at Camp Ritchie, which has been sold to the federal government. Some 200 patients are being moved elsewhere.

Richardson Wood Boosts Cumberland In Harpers Magazine

Cumberland, as a labor surplus area, would be an ideal site for one of the country's new war plants, says the current issue of Harper's Magazine.

In an article titled "The Shambles Around the War Plant," industrial consultant Richardson Wood discusses the disastrous impact upon workers and surrounding communities which the erection of war plants can have in unplanned and unprepared areas.

One of the simplest measures to help reduce the size of the problem now thrust upon the nation by our present defense effort, he writes, is to take the job to the people rather than to require the people to move to the jobs.

And Cumberland, the article goes on to say, with its classic transportation site and where recently 20 percent of those registered for employment were jobless, is an excellent example of where a liability could overnight become an asset.

From the point of view of national policy, it concludes, the case for the labor surplus area is even more telling. "There is no other way in which government can save the taxpayers so much money and speed up production at the same time," the article says. "Savings can well run to hundreds of millions of dollars."

NEGOTIATORS DISCUSS TRUCE LINE

Senate Adopts Controls Compromise

Bill Permits Price Boosts If Costs Rise

House Probably Will Act Monday

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate shouted approval of a new economic controls bill tonight, permitting some price rollbacks but assuring retailers and wholesalers of their "customary percentage margins over costs."

The voice vote stamped approval on the work of a Senate-House conference committee which has been laboring since Wednesday to adjust Senate and House bills. The House probably will act Monday, since the present controls law expires Tuesday at midnight.

The compromise would extend controls, although sometimes in limited form, over wages, prices, credit, rent and materials. It would run through next June, as compared with the two years President Truman asked.

Most important of today's decisions by the conferees was agreement on a plan to permit rollbacks on non-farm commodities to pre-Korea levels — provided increased costs since then are taken into account in setting price ceilings.

Some "Roll Forwards"

Some price "roll forwards" would also be permitted under the requirement that new costs be considered. One Office of Price Stabilization observer predicted informally it could mean a boost of 10 per cent in the price of automobiles.

If a manufacturer can prove his case, he can get his ceiling lifted, Sen. Robertson (D-Va) commented. "Why shouldn't he?" he asked.

Sens. Maybank (D-SC) and Capehart (R-Ind) both saw the plan as one that would protect those who have held their prices down to reflect no more than their new costs. They said it would punish "gougers" and "chiselers" who have shoved up prices unduly, and under the plan would have to pull them back.

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala), said he thought President Truman would sign the compromise even though it falls far short of what he said he needed to combat inflation.

No Slaughtering Quotas

The bill would continue the President's general stabilization and mobilization powers, including priority and allocation control over scarce materials, although denying him many of the new powers he asked.

While the administration had sought a free hand on rollbacks, and had opposed the plan of assuring the customary retail and wholesale markups, there was no immediate comment from stabilization officials on the conference agreement.

400,000 Yanks Due In Europe, Marshall Says

Increased Figure Causes Confusion

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall threw top Pentagon officials into considerable confusion tonight with his testimony on Capitol Hill that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

The figure given by Marshall was nearly twice as great as previous official estimates.

Highest defense authorities at the Pentagon told newsmen after hours of frantic checking and double-checking that they were unable to explain or clarify the basis for Marshall's statement.

Marshall himself could not be reached. Aides said he left immediately after attending the funeral of Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, who died of a heart seizure in Italy last weekend.

Slip Of The Tongue?

There was some belief that Marshall may have made a slip of the tongue. Top aides said as far as they knew there was no change in present plans to limit the size of U. S. forces in Europe to six combat divisions totalling approximately 200,000 troops.

Newsmen pressed the top brass for an explanation shortly after Marshall came up with his surprise figure in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this forenoon.

Hours passed. From time to time, reporters were told that the matter was being "checked" and "investigated."

Finally, the answer came: There just wasn't any explanation of what Marshall meant.

Marshall also disclosed that U. S. allies in Europe have promised they will have 2,500,000 men under arms next year and will be able to throw 5,000,000 men into the field within 90 days after the outbreak of any new war.

Pleads Against Letdown

Marshall made the disclosure in voicing a plea against any letdown in American defensive spirit resulting from the Korean armistice talks and against any congressional cuts in U. S. military aid to Western Europe.

The five-star General said he was deeply shocked at what he termed the "tragic" reaction of the American people now that peace appears in prospect in Korea.

Declaring that Korea is "only an incident" in the world struggle against Communism, Marshall told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"I am more shocked by what has happened in recent days that I have been at any time since I have been in Washington."

Pentagon Snafu?

Defense Dept. Washes Its Hands Of Officer's Report Of Enemy Buildup In Korea

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — The high command of U. S. armed forces publicly washed its hands tonight of a Pentagon officer's statement that while U. N. forces have halted their offensive in Korea the Communists have taken advantage of the cease-fire talks to make a "tremendous buildup" of their strength.

Clayton Fritchey, information director for the Defense Department, told reporters that the statement given out earlier by a briefing officer does not reflect official policy or views.

The whole affair assumed the proportions of a snafu of large-scale proportions.

Up to tonight the earlier statement had been regarded as an official one inasmuch as the briefing officer, departing from custom, had told newsmen they were at liberty to quote his remarks directly.

The timing of his statement was surprising. It came shortly before U. N. and Communist negotiators as Kaesong resumed talks on the touchy question of setting up a buffer zone between the opposing forces in Korea.

The briefing officer pointed to what he termed the "tremendous buildup" of Communist strength since preliminary truce talks started, and expressed hope this was not evidence of "bad faith."

Proof of the "good faith" of the U. S. and its United Nations partners, he said, was presented when they let the truce talks halt their advance at a time when the Reds were "hanging on the ropes."

The officer drew a sharp contrast between the increase of Communist troops, weapons and supplies and the U. N. reaction to the truce talks. He let it be known that the U. N. command, instead of building up, has pulled one sizeable unit out of the battle line since the talks started and has sent it to Japan.

This was the first indication that any U. N. forces had been withdrawn. Up to now high officers had been giving the impression that everything was being kept ready for a hard-hitting campaign if the peace talks should collapse.

Predictions were heard that today's developments here would lead to reverberations in Congress. Apparently with this in mind, among other things, Fritchey declared that the unusual on-the-record statement "should not be construed as a defense policy or a change of policy, or a policy by the Army Chief of Staff" (Gen. J. Lawton Collins).

SAYS HE'LL FIGHT — Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) announces at the Capitol that he will fight two federal judge appointments made by President Truman. He and the President are at odds over two nominations for Illinois judgeships. (AP Wirephoto)

Douglas To Fight Truman Choices For Judgeships

Senator Invokes "Obnoxious" Rule

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A battle royal which may become historic is in prospect as the result of a decision today by Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) to oppose confirmation of two of President Truman's nominees to the federal bench.

Douglas invoked the unwritten "personality obnoxious" rule in a statement saying he would fight the nominations of two men for district judgeships in Northern Illinois.

Under the law, the President nominates, but his selections must be with the "advice and consent" of the Senate. And when a senator from a nominee's home state declares the nomination personally obnoxious, the Senate rarely votes for confirmation.

Douglas' decision underscored an apparent coolness that has developed lately between the President and the freshman legislator, who himself is sometimes mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee.

But in his statement the Senator said he was "loathe to become engaged in a struggle with the President, for whom I have a genuine respect and who, in most major matters is, in my judgment, doing well."

Douglas said his opposition to the nominations of Joseph J. Drucker and Cornelius J. Harrington had been strengthened by bar association polls.

He took the unusual course of asking the Chicago and Cook County bar groups to poll their members on the relative qualifications of Drucker and Benjamin P. Epstein, and upon Harrington and William H. King, Jr.

Douglas had recommended Epstein and King about six months before the other nominations went to the Senate July 13.

Reds Probably Favor Buffer Zone Along 38

Allied Views Are Outlined By Joy

U. N. ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Saturday, July 28 (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators resumed talks today on the touchy problem of a cease-fire buffer zone in Korea—with the Reds probably arguing for a line centered on parallel 38.

Today's session—the twelfth—began promptly at 10 a. m. (7 p. m., EST Friday).

An Army announcement said the conference recessed 45 minutes later until 1:30 p. m. (10:30 p. m. EST Friday).

The announcement gave no details of what transpired at the opening session.

It was believed that the establishment of a three-mile naval neutral zone offshore also was tied to the agenda item as a U. N. proposal.

The Allies regard the present battle line—based on ridges—as a good defensive one in case the armistice talks break down and serious fighting is renewed.

Desultory Fighting

Fighting Friday was of a desultory nature. Intense Red artillery and mortar fire blocked Allied patrols seeking to seize hills on the eastern front near Yanggu. Allied planes continued to attack North Korean supply lines.

The Red view on a buffer zone was released in a broadcast Red statement at the outset of the Kaesong talks. It called for a cease-fire zone 12½ miles wide, centered along the 38th parallel.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. delegate, Friday gave the Reds a 52-minute outline of the Allied view on a line of demarcation.

He handed two colored maps, illustrating these views, to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, senior Red negotiator. Nam acepted the maps and acknowledged the Allied view without comment.

The present frontline dips south of the 38th parallel only in the extreme west. There it is below Kaesong, the conference site, which is three miles south of 38. The line is 20 miles north of the old political boundary on the central front and 35 miles north on the eastern front.

Old Defense Line Below 38

While Allied military men prefer the ridgeline defensive system they now generally hold north of 38, there is an old defense line south of the parallel. Its positions were originally laid out in 1945, shortly after the Japanese surrender, when U. S. troops occupied south Korea and the Russians occupied the north.

Yesterday's talks lasted only 72 minutes. The first 18 minutes were utilized in settling procedural matters—the mechanics of how to take up the four major points on the agenda.

The four are, in order: The buffer zone; mutual inspection behind the lines; exchange of prisoners; and "recommendations to the governments of the countries concerned on both sides"—a broad issue presumably embracing Reds demands for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Nationalist Army Strikes 65 Miles Inside Red China

Refugees Operate From Burma Base

RANGOON, Burma, July 27 (AP)—A Chinese Nationalist army force has struck 65 miles into Red China from its refugee base in Burma and seized a 100-mile-long frontier strip in Yunnan province.

The Nationalists have captured one airfield and are reported trying to build another.

Fighting South Of Kunming

The fighting is about 200 miles west and slightly south of Kunming, the Red-held Yunnan capital.

Although the Nationalist penetration is relatively small-scale it is regarded as the most effective action on the mainland this year by forces linked with President Chiang Kai-Shek's Formosa island regime.

The Nationalist force was authoritatively said to number about 15,000 regular troops in three columns. They are commanded by Li Mi, displaced Nationalist governor of Yunnan and one of Western China's best known generals.

Going On Three Months

Li's sortie has been going on quietly for three months.

He and his troops had come to Burma as refugees fleeing from the Red Chinese.

His three columns fanned out northeast of Lashio, a big transfer point inside Burma on the old Burma Road to China.

The north column took the Reds' Kengma airfield. The southern columns ranged about 100 miles south and seized Menghai. First resistance was reported light.

$50,000 Bail Set For Reds Nabbed In San Francisco

Bond Cut For Men, Raised For Women

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (AP) — Bail of $50,000 each was set today for seven persons arrested here in the government's three-city roundup of 12 secondary leaders of the Communist Party.

The 12, arrested yesterday here, at Los Angeles, and New York, comprise the newest batch of Communist leaders charged with teaching and advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman set the bail of the seven defendants here at $50,000. The bail of four male defendants originally had been $75,000. The $50,000 was a drastic increase in the bail of three women, two of whom had been released under $2,500 bail and one under $7,500. Defense counsel said the $50,000 was 10 times what any of them could raise.

Government Objects

Over the government's strenuous objection, Judge Goodman ruled the women could remain at liberty under the original bail until tomorrow noon.

Judge Goodman held up ordering the three women to the U. S. marshal's custody after a fervent plea by their attorney.

Richard Gladstein, the attorney, asked Judge Goodman to hold up the matter until he could see whether the circuit court judge would overrule Judge Goodman.

In arguing for the legal maneuver, Gladstein stressed that the three women defendants had come to court voluntarily today.

Judge Goodman, in making the unusual withholding order, noted this fact. Then he said he had "ample precedent" for his delay because the women had appeared.

"Doors Always Open"

Judge Goodman also remarked that "the doors are always open" for an attorney to go to a higher court and ask for a lower bail.

During the hearing, Chauncey Tramutolo, U. S. attorney for the Northern California district, read a telegram from Ernest Tolin, U. S. attorney for Southern California.

The telegram said that Mrs. Loretta Starvus Stack, one of the three women allowed to remain at liberty, was "considered the second most influential Communist in California."

Chauffeur Is Willed $250,000 In Stocks

CINCINNATI, July 27 (AP)—Mrs. Louise A. Slimer, who died July 19, left Norman F. Bearhs, her chauffeur, more than $250,000 in stocks, it was disclosed today when the will was filed for probate.

Mrs. Slimer, 86, left the 62-year-old driver the money for "faithful and unfailing service to me for many years."

Bearhs was left 600 shares of A. T. & T. stock; 2,500 of Proctor and Gamble stock, a motorboat and a high priced automobile.

Senate Confirms Navy Secretary

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed Dan A. Kimball as secretary of the Navy.

The chamber also approved promotion for more than 100 generals and admirals in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Kimball has been undersecretary of the Navy and was appointed to succeed Francis P. Matthews who stepped out to become U. S. ambassador to Ireland.

The Senate also confirmed Walter G. Whitman of Massachusetts as chairman of the Research and Development Board, succeeding William Webster, resigned.

Five Army generals won four-star rank on the military promotion list, including Wade Hampton Haislip, recently retired as vice chief of staff.

Senate Approves Farm Fund Bill

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) —The annual Agriculture Department supply bill carrying more than a billion dollars for farm programs won Senate approval today by a vote of 65 to 6.

Several efforts to cut large items failed. In the end more than $120,000,000 was added to the total approved by the House.

Differences between the two versions will be composed by a conference committee unless the House accepts the Senate changes.

The six opposing Senate votes were cast by Republican Sens. Bennett (Utah), Dirksen (Ill.), Ferguson (Mich.), Hendrickson (N. J.), Ives (N. Y.), and Williams (Del.)

Senators disagreed as to the exact amount voted in the bill, which is for department operations in the fiscal year that started July 1.

There was no question that the Senate had approved $727,000,000 of new cash, or about $110,000,000 more than the House. It also was agreed that $262,000,000 of loan funds were voted, an increase of $10,750,000 above the House total.

Bt senators disagreed on whether such items as permanent appropriations, administrative expense limitation, and note cancellations should be counted in the new total.

State Of War Ended

BONN, Germany, July 27. (AP)—The state of war between Turkey and Germany was ended July 24, the German government announced today.

Steel For Cars Is Slashed Again

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Steel for passenger car output was cut another five per cent by the government today, effective Oct. 1, to meet heavy demands for the defense program.

Other consumer items such as refrigerators, washing machines and household electrical appliances also will get about five per cent less than now.

The additional cut for passenger cars came as something of a surprise to car makers, many of whom had believed an easing in the Korean tension would permit more steel for auto production. Some forecast a hastening of an eventual new car shortage.

Under today's order by the Defense Production Administration, auto output in the October-through-December quarter will be reduced to 60 per cent of the level before the Korean war started.

This will mean a production of a little more than 1,100,000 cars, or about 100,000 less than in the present quarter and 400,000 under the April-June quarter.

Steel for household appliances in the final quarter will be about 65 per cent of their pre-Korea tonnage, compared with 70 per cent now.

Hopefuls Brave Choppy Channel

DOVER, Eng., July 27 (AP) —The English Channel was as popular today as the old swimming hole, despite choppy seas.

A young British girl failed by five miles in her attempt to make it across from France. A Swede was still in the water in a similar attempt and three other persons were poised on the English coast waiting to take the plunge.

In addition, six Egyptians set off for France in a motorboat, determined to swim back across to Folkestone, Eng. And two English swimmers, Doris Fell, 17, and Phil Rising, 41, a Yorkshireman, said they would have a try at the chilly channel the same time as the Egyptians.

Kathleen Mayoh, 18, British factory worker, was pulled from the water by her parents after she had swum about 16 miles in 15 hours and 20 minutes from Cap Gris Nez, France. Her parents said she was too tired and the seas too rough. Kathleen herself insisted on continuing, pulling away from her parents' small boat. However, they caught up with her and pulled her in.

Lars Warle, 31, a bank clerk from Karlskrona, Sweden, was unreported somewhere in the channel tonight. He had left Cap Gris Nez several minutes before the Mayoh girl.

President Leads Nation In Last Salute To Shermar

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Adm. Forrest P. Sherman was buried today in Arlington Cemetery with President there to say goodbye for the nation.

For the Admiral who also was a statesman and airman, there gathered in the sun-lit marble amphitheater the ambassadors and ministers of Washington's embassies. Overhead, as the cortege made its slow march across the Potomac to the cemetery, was the high thunder of warplanes flying their salute.

In the long column of men from all the armed forces which followed the casket, borne on a gun caisson, were two platoons from the Naval Academy. Sherman was a midshipman there a little more than 30 years ago.

Mr. Truman sat in the hot sun of the amphitheater, flanked by Secretary of State Acheson and by Secretary of Defense Marshall. They joined in the responses in the Episcopal service. The President looked across at the bronze casket, draped by the flag, glanced occasionally out over the audience.

In Sherman's passing the President lost not only a friend but also his chief of naval operations and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Sherman, 54 years old, died last Sunday after a heart attack in Naples Italy.

House Votes To End War With Germany

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The House today voted 376 to 0 to end the formal state of war with Germany more than six years after the shooting stopped in May, 1945. The war began Dec. 11, 1941.

The resolution, requested by President Truman, now goes to the Senate.

Although there was no opposition, Rep. Sabath (D-Ill) told the House he hopes that now the war is about over, the Germans won't start preparing for a new war of conquest of their own.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) also commented that Western German business firms are helping Communists by sending them strategic materials.

Malik Tells Quakers USSR Ready To Negotiate Issues

MOSCOW, July 27. (AP)—A delegation of British Quakers said here today that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik had told them Russia is ready for "business-like" negotiations on world issues and is not interested or engaged in exporting revolutions.

The Quakers had their interview with Malik, just returned from his United Nations post in New York, last night. All information on the interview thus far has come from the Britons. Western diplomats here are waiting with interest to see whether Malik's statement will be published in the Soviet press.

The substance of what he told the delegation was made available to American newsmen in the form of full notes taken by one of the Quakers present.

Before coming to Moscow the Quakers said they conferred with British Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison and received his assurances the British government aims at peace with all governments, including the Soviet Union.

A seven-point program outlined by the Quakers to Malik included the dropping of anti-Western propaganda in the Soviet press, non-interference in the affairs of non-Communist countries, planning for drastic world disarmament and a meeting of chiefs of state.

Westernport Man Appointed Savage River Dam Caretaker

The Upper Potomac River Commission has appointed Francis D. Glass, Westernport water system superintendent, as operator and caretaker of the Savage River Dam.

Glass, who has headed the Westernport water system for six and one-half years, will take over his duties August 1. The salary for the position is $4,000 annually.

He and his wife will reside at the neat two story brick home at the dam.

Veteran Of War

Prior to taking over the Westernport position, Glass was employed by the C. and A. Gas Company for 14 years as supervisor of transmission and distribution lines.

He is a veteran of World War 2 and is a charter member of Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, and a charter member of Voiture No. 1212, Forty and Eight.

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners has appropriated funds to the Upper Potomac group for the operation of the dam which was constructed for the regulation of the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The commission will also hire two assistants for Glass. The group has also informed the county commissioners that from time to time it will be necessary to employ a graduate engineer for supervisory work. The engineer for these duties has not been appointed.

Telephonic Control

Operation of the dam will be governed by telephonic devices placed at Kitzmiller, Luke and below the spillway of the dam.

The U. S. Geological Survey office here states that this system has been set up to maintain a flow of 93 cubic feet per second in the river.

This will be sufficient to properly take care of sewage disposal from the various industrial plants along the river.

In the event of high water, the dam will be used to check the river. Geological Survey officials said the dam can, by holding back Savage River, keep the river level down two feet at Cumberland.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

PARIS (INS) — This may give you an inkling of the manner in which the Reds have concentrated on Gen. Ike Eisenhower, in an effort to break the devoted confidence of Atlantic pact nations in him.

On the wintry night when the General and his pleasant wife arrived in their frigid hotel suite in Versailles, Mamie turned on her radio — while the General settled down to read. The French radio wrangled on in what seems to be its perpetually angry way, then, after a station break, lapsed into English. The General heard his name, put down his book and moved closer to the radio with his wife.

The program was announced as a "reenactment" of their arrival earlier that day at Cherbourg. The radio actor who took Eisenhower's part in the phony drama made several preposterous speeches, interrupted now and then by the voice of a girl who was identified as his "blonde secretary." The "blonde secretary" was drunk and kept repeating "lesh have another li'l drink, General."

It was, of course, a Communist-sponsored program. For a wavering moment or two the Eisenhowers wondered whether it was worth giving up the comfort and security of Columbia.

• — • — •

The day before S H A P E moved into its permanent headquarters at Marcy, ten miles west of Paris, a member of the French delegation concerned with the ceremony of presenting the site to Eisenhower, inquired of Col. Jock Lawrence, Ike's deputy P. I. O., whether there would be good weather for the event.

"You seem to forget," Jock reminded him, "that there is a S U P R E M E Supreme Commander. He will decide that."

• — • — •

The Eisenhowers haven't had much chance to get "out on the town" in the six months they've been in the Paris area. But they had their fill of it 20 years ago, when Ike was assigned here. On one occasion, then, the couple took a girl friend of Mrs. Eisenhower to the Folies-Bergere. During the intermission the girls excused themselves, warned Ike to watch their wraps, and left him sitting alone in the raucous lobby.

It is not easy to sit very long, almost anywhere in Paris, without an offer of feminine companionship. Especially in the foyer of the Folies. In something less than four seconds, flat, the captain was the uncomfortable hub of a wheel of faded beauties, doing his best to explain why he did not want to buy them a drink.

At last he got up and tried to get away, only to discover that Mamie and her girl friend had been watching the whole scene and getting a great laugh out of it.

The General was recalling the episode the other day at his suite in the Trianon Palace hotel. He grinned and added:

"I guess I wouldn't have the same trouble today."

• — • — •

There isn't much doubt that Gen. Eisenhower is the most important man in Western Europe today. He commands a potential armed force of millions, is the target of a perpetual (and, to him, stimulating) attack by the Russian propaganda mill, is the confidant of a dozen assorted heads of state, is the rallying point of ancient nations which less than a year ago had renounced all claim to virility and swore that in the event of a war between East and West they would remain neutral.

But he is just a fixture around the house to his grandson, three-year-old David Eisenhower, who has been visiting the supreme commander.

The General was driving home a fine point on the enormous task of melding 12 nations into a united fighting force, late the other afternoon, when his grandson entered the room. David, who has no interest in ground fighting, was making noises like an airplane. He went around the room on all fours, keeping one foot ("rudder") cocked up at an angle.

At last he noticed the supreme commander, who at that moment was pounding a fist against his open hand, to emphasize a serious assertion.

"Oh, hi, Ike," the child said. Then he returned to making noises like a plane and padded out of the room.

Va. Trucking Firm Subject To $1,038 Overloading Fine

A Winchester (Va.) trucking firm is subject to the largest fine for overloading ever paid in Allegany county.

Charged with being overloaded by 17,300 pounds, Charles Clarence Spitler, Stephens City, Va., was released yesterday under $2,000 bond by Magistrate J. Milton Dick pending trial August 18 in Trial Magistrate Court. Under state law, Spitler is subject to a fine of $1,038, Dick said.

Spitler, operating a tractor-type truck belonging to the Elliott Motor Lines of Winchester, was arrested by John J. Devlin and Richard F. Boyle, of the State Roads Commission weighing crew.

Devlin and Boyle charged Spitler with having his truck overloaded for the bridge spanning the Potomac River between Wiley Ford and Cumberland. Spitler was within a half mile of releasing part of his load when stopped.

Spitler's truck was overloaded for the bridge only, being under the weight limit for the highway, officials said. It was his first alleged violation in this county.

In another case yesterday morning, James Albert Wolfe was found guilty of overloading and fined $65.45 by Magistrate Dick.

Wolfe, of Augustus, W. Va., was driving the truck of Edward V. Alkire, leased from the Cumberland Contracting Company, when apprehended by Devlin on Route 40, near Red Hill, Wednesday.

The case was appealed to Circuit Court, with Earl C. Robertson of the Cumberland Contracting Company, furnishing the necessary $250 bond.

Overloading violations in other parts of the state found James Bachtell of Hancock fined $86.75, and Richard Coddington, Friendsville $391.45. It was Bachtell's first conviction of the year and Coddington's fourth.

RFC 'Pressured' By Merle Young, Official Reveals

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — A Reconstruction Finance Corporation officer said today that E. Merle Young had telephoned RFC's St. Louis office in 1948 saying the Democratic National Committee was interested in a loan application by a St. Louis firm.

James Allen, press officer and special assistant to RFC Administrator W. Stuart Symington, said Charles G. Alexander, St. Louis RFC manager, reported this in a memo dated Dec. 9, 1948.

About the same time Allen made this information available, Sen. Williams (R-Del) was giving the same report to the Senate, naming Allen as the source. He said Allen had talked to him by telephone.

Allen said that in another memo to the RFC here, Alexander reported that James P. Finnegan, former St. Louis internal revenue collector, contacted the St. Louis RFC office 11 times between July and December, 1949, about the loan application.

Merle Young is a former RFC examiner. His name figured prominently in a recent investigation by the Fulbright Senate committee into alleged influences in obtaining government loans.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today added Young to the list of figures it says exerted influence in obtaining a $565,000 loan for the American Lithofold Corp. of St. Louis. Previously it had named Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., of the Democratic National Committee, and Finnegan as having "pressured" the RFC in connection with the application.

"Hanging Boy" Mystery Solved

MOUNT VERNON, O., July 27 (AP) — A small boy climbed a roadside tree near his farm home near here today and touched an electric power line.

He wound up hanging by one foot from a crotch in the tree and touched off a first-class mystery for the few hours he was unconscious.

The victim, John Popham, 9, suffered a number of burns, but he was expected to recover.

An attending physician, noting the burns when the boy's clothing was peeled off at a hospital, said the burns might have been by a cigaret lighter.

Knox County authorities, coupling that possible theory with the fact a strange car drove near the tree during the 10 to 15 minutes John probably was dangling there, started a search for a sadist.

Then, Sheriff's Deputy M. Vernon found a power line dangling in the tree. That dampened the sadism theory and John, himself, quelched it entirely when he woke up.

Pakistan Calls Troops; Premier Warns India

KARACHI, Pakistan, July 27. (AP) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan vowed with a clenched fist today that Pakistan would not bow before "any aggression."

He made the fist his symbol in an impromptu speech to defense day paraders demonstrating against India.

His government earlier had disclosed a call-up of four more guard battalions in the midst of the war of hot words with India over Kashmir.

"Our symbol now is our fist," he told 50,000 men and women demonstrators who shouted anti-India slogans before his residence.

Toll Cut Seen If Md. Takes Over Bridge

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 27 (AP) — The state could cut tolls by third if it took over a toll bridge crossing the Potomac River at Williamsport, a commission reported today.

Morris Bassford of Hagerstown, chairman of commission named by Gov. McKeldin to study whether the state should acquire the bridge, reported today on findings of a preliminary study.

Threat Of Ford Shutdown Eases

DETROIT, July 27 (AP)—Threat of a nationwide Ford Motor Company shutdown was eased at least temporarily late today as UAW-CIO workers at the company's small but important supplier plant at Monroe, Mich., voted to end a wildcat walkout.

The 1,700 Monroe employes agreed to return after international UAW representatives met with the membership of Local 723 at Monroe.

Ken Bannon, national director of the UAW's Ford department advised the workers to "follow contract procedure." Bannon said the men would return at midnight Sunday. They walked out yesterday after the company disciplined a worker.

A Local 723 spokesman said a meeting would be held Sunday to poll the membership on whether a strike should be called a week later.

Earlier, Ford said continued interruption of operations at the Monroe plant, key supplier of wheels, would force a shutdown of the company's plants across the nation. The company said there were five earlier walkouts there.

Doctor Chooses Private's Position To Commission

INDIANAPOLIS, July 27. (AP)—A 27-year-old physician, drafted for Army service, chose a $75 a month private's position to a lieutenant's commission paying about $400 a month.

The physician, Dr. Robert Beconovich, Hammond, Ind., was an infantryman in World War II. He later completed his medical education and has been a practicing physician for two years. He has a wife and two children.

Indiana State Selective Service officials who talked with him yesterday said he was "very reasonable" about going into service again, but he gave no explanation to them or to newsmen about why he preferred a private's job.

Burglary Suspect Slain By Policeman

BALTIMORE, July 27 (AP) — A Baltimore policeman early today shot and killed a burglary suspect who tried to fight his way free with a soldiering iron.

Sergeant William Clayton reported that he and two other officers found three negroes inside a Harlem Avenue tavern where the back door had been smashed in.

Clayton said one of the men hurled a whiskey bottle at him and then attacked with a soldiering iron. Clayton dropped him with one shot.

The dead man was identified as 23-year-old Herbert Porter.

Dunked Quartet To Salvage Raft

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., July 27 (AP)—Four young experimenters in social conduct fished their belongings from the Ohio River today, still bent on floating down to New Orleans.

They want to learn what happens to mind and manners when two bachelors and two women have to live cooped up together for several weeks on a 12-by 20-foot raft.

"It was sad when the great ship went down," they sang, from a ballad about the sinking of the "Titanic."

Their great ship, called "Lethargia," was upside down near the West Virginia shore at Round Bottom, just downstream from Moundsville.

"Lethargia" capsized yesterday after hitching a two with a big river tug. The tug was too fast. It swamped the raft, built on oil drums with a canvas covered cabin about eight feet square.

Mary Ellen McGrady, a 24-year-old sociology student at the University of Michigan, and Geraldine Garcia, 23-year-old artist from Boston, managed to scramble aboard the tug.

Milton Borden, 30, from New Bedford, Mass., swam to the tug. Don Brown, 24-year-old Michigan student from Detroit, went down for a long time. But he came up, grabbed an oar and swam to the West Virginia shore.

Borden said the cabin will have to be unbolted before the "Lethargia" can be turned right side up again.

He thinks he and Brown can do it.

Truman Assails Hungarian Purge

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — President Truman today condemned mass evictions in Hungary, and said the United States will take appropriate steps to hold that Communist government "accountable before the world for its infamous conduct."

In a statement, he said the forced removal of thousands of persons from their homes "must be regarded as a flagrant violation" of the human rights provisions of Hungary's peace treaty, and that detailed evidence will be submitted to the United Nations.

The State Department radio has been hitting for some time at a reported Hungarian purge of "undesirables." It said two weeks ago that 30,000 persons had been evicted from their homes in Budapest as a part of the program.

One deportee was quoted as saying in a smuggled letter:

"There are 30 of us living in a stable. We are bedded down on straw. We are whipped and—upon orders of our guards—are forbidden to talk. We are mute the whole day long. Are we, then, men or animals? I would say we have become animals. The Soviets have completed the evolutionary cycle."

The President's statement was handed to reporters by his secretary, Joseph Short, without comment.

Main Tower Of Bay Bridge Is Completed

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 27 (AP)—One of the main towers stands completed, 354 feet above the water, and workmen next week will pour the largest single chunk of concrete in Maryland's $45,000,000 Chesapeake Bay bridge.

A progress report on the big span today showed that the steel framework reaches out 6,000 feet from the western shore at Sandy Point.

When completed, the bridge will cross a little more than four miles of water. The state hopes to have it open to traffic about the Fourth of July next year.

Half the fun of having a garden is being able to save the fruits and vegetables you grow. And the best way to do this is to put them in a frozen food locker.

It's especially wise in these days of war tension to save all the products of your garden and enjoy them throughout the year.

Many families are renting an extra locker this year just to store fruits and vegetables. It's a wise precaution.

"HEY MISTER! QUIT SHOVING!" — Eric Smith, sitting in his car, was minding his own business while waiting for a traffic signal to turn into the Hollywood Freeway at Los Angeles yesterday when something really gave him a nudge from behind. The nudger was a big trailer truck which had gotten out of control and careened over on top of Smith's car. The rear half was flattened but neither Smith nor the driver of the truck was injured.

"Slain Man" Found Alive Faces Charge Of Murder

NEW ORLEANS, July 27 (AP) — Sam Jones, a "murder victim" found alive in Denver, Colo., faced a charge of murder when he arrived here by plane tonight.

Accompanied by officers, he was taken immediately to the Jefferson Parish jail at Gretna, La., across the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Jefferson Parish (county) District Attorney Frank Langridge said he had accepted a "John Doe" murder charge against Jones in connection with the unidentified body found in a swamp near here in 1949.

The district attorney said Donald Easterwood, 26-year-old welding student who was acquitted of slaying Jones, was arrested as a material witness. He was released under $2,500 bond.

Until Wednesday night when he was found in Denver by an acquaintance, Jones was believed to be the dead man found in the Jefferson Parish swamp.

The Jones murder case was closed when Donald Easterwood was acquitted and Ernest Howard, a 51-year-old carpenter, also charged with murder in Jones' death, died of a heart attack awaiting trial.

But Jones' discovery in Denver brought to light a weird tangle of errors in the case and officers have started investigating anew.

Deputy Sheriff John Faulkner was working today on a theory that the murder victim — whose body showed knife wounds in the heart and lungs—was a man named Freddie Dickerson.

That was the name used in Denver by Jones after he left his filling station job here in 1949 and vanished for a two-year period until recognized by John C. Painter.

Extra Leave Voted For Postal Workers

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Senate late today voted to increase annual leave for 475,000 Post Office Department workers from 15 to 20 days, at an estimated cost of $30,000,000 to $35,000,000.

Then senators passed by voice vote a bill providing nearly $3,000,000,000 in operating funds for the Post Office and Treasury Departments for the current fiscal year, which began July 1.

Boy Places Obstacle On B. And O. Tracks

FREDERICK, Md., July 27 (AP)—A 14-year-old Washington, D. C., boy was taken into custody by juvenile authorities here today after admitting he placed iron spikes and rails on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks near Monrovia.

A power-operated track maintenance car hit the obstacle, but was going so slow at the time it did not overturn and the two men aboard were unhurt.

Police Lt. M. C. McGaha said however, that if the car had been going fast, or if a freight train had hit the obstacle, a derailment would have occurred.

Election In Israel

The general election in Israel—scheduled for July 30—brings to the foreground bitter controversies over economic controls, East-West proclivities, the place of religion in civil life. On the eve of the election the Mapai Socialist party of Prime Minister Ben-Gurion was expected to stay in power without winning a majority in the Knesset (parliament).

In any event the new government, like the outgoing one, will be a coalition. Ben-Gurion's group, to form a cabinet, would combine with one or more of the more conservative parties.

Communism looms as no threat in the election. The Communist party—legal in the young republic—polled only 3.6 per cent of the vote and captured only four of 120 seats in February, 1949, when the first parliament was elected.

A more powerful left-wing party, Mapam, polled 14.8 per cent of the vote in 1949 and held 19 seats in the outgoing Knesset. Although pro-Soviet in orientation, even the "extremists" in Mapam are discomfitted by the Kremlin's anti-Zionist policy. With Ben-Gurion's Mapai and the other center parties openly seeking cooperation with the West, Mapam proposes a position of guarded neutralism for Israel.

Ben-Gurion's party won 35.7 per cent of the vote in 1949 and held 46 seats in the outgoing Knesset. After Mapai and Mapam rank the United Religious Front (Orthodox), with 16 seats; the Herut (right-wing descendant of the extremist Irgun organization), with 14 seats; the General Zionists (center), with seven seats; the Progressives, with five seats.

Prime Minister Ben-Gurion and his cabinet resigned on February 14, after losing a parliamentary test on secular education in immigrant camps. Previously, in October, 1950, Ben-Gurion had solved a cabinet crisis by making concessions to the Orthodox bloc.

Ben-Gurion stayed on in February, however, after political leaders decided on February 25 to retain his coalition cabinet in a caretaker status. July 30 was set as the date for the new election by a law passed in April, which also set up standards for voting. All persons born before 1933 who registered as residents of Israel prior to April 1 are eligible to vote.

Ben-Gurion's government has been, of necessity, a product of compromise. When the Orthodox groups insisted that Kosher food be made available to Orthodox soldiers, he agreed to serve only Kosher food to the whole army. At the same time he insisted that rations be served on the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), though to the Orthodox the sight of any Jew eating on that day is distasteful.

Ben-Gurion's quarrel on economic controls is with the General Zionists, who demand fewer curbs on imports and distribution. Israel suffers severely from inflation and black-market activities.

Israel has as yet no constitution. The Knesset in June, 1950, voted against adopting a full written constitution for the next few years. Ben-Gurion wants to "wait until we all are here." Since the 1949 election, the population has grown more than 57 per cent, the number of eligible voters almost 58 per cent.

New Lands For Old

It is easy to accept the statement by Dr. G. J. Van Heuven Goedhart, UN high commissioner for refugees, that the refugee problem in Europe is not yet solved. How could it be?

During and immediately after World War II literally millions of persons were forced to leave their native lands and seek safety in whatever nations would open their doors to them. To imagine that all of these men, women, and children have been permanently relocated by this time is to be blind to the difficulties which the commission has had to overcome.

Today there are still tens and tens of thousands living in refugee camps and wondering what fate has in store for them. While there are countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Italy, which are willing to receive a certain number of displaced persons, the UN commissioner is of the opinion that many refugees will be better off if they can be resettled in the states where the camps are situated.

They have been where they are for so long a period that removal to still another nation will subject them to unnecessary hardships. These refugees have been tragic figures in post-war life. Most of them will never see their old homes again. They deserve the kindness and humane treatment they are getting under the auspices of the United Nations.

Corn Prospects

As the wheat crop moves out of the agricultural picture corn prospects will become the center of attraction, with all eyes centered on the nation's major livestock-producing grain, at a time when meat is needed for both peace and the possibility of war. As of this date the corn prospects are most pleasing, indeed, with forecasts of the year's yield placed at three and one-quarter billion bushels. This approximates the defense-program goal set up by the Department of Agriculture.

That is a lot of corn even for this nation to produce. It is 100,000,000 bushels more than was produced last year, one of the best corn years in history. It is considerably more than the ten-year average of 2,930,777,000 bushels. Corn has a way of surpassing early forecasts, given good weather.

As for wheat, the nation will produce something over a billion bushels this year. This compares with the crop of last year, and also with the ten-year average, by which crop yields are generally judged.

The Kansas crop has finally been pegged at around 140,000,000 bushels, previous estimates having been discounted by unfavorable harvest weather. And corn prospects in Kansas were never better.

Irresponsible Driving

Among the increasing nation-wide efforts to bring safety to the streets and highways through regulation of motor car traffic, none is more unusual or drastic than action recently taken in the state of Michigan, where a wild driver, with a long history of traffic violations, has been committed to a mental institution.

The sanity commission did not rule that the man was insane, but said he was a psychopathic personality of an unstable type—that he was "irresponsible and emotionally immature."

Practically every state is moving in the direction of traffic safety. Many have declared war on drivers who have been drinking. But safety officials say these constitute a small percentage of dangerous drivers. They declare the irresponsible, the showoffs, the "emotionally immature" combine to form the real menace to traffic safety.

It is not necessary to go far in everyday traffic to discover there are scores of persons operating motor cars who do not have the faintest idea of how to control the power created by the modern internal combustion engine.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Cat Scratches May Lead To Disease

The cat is on the medical carpet again. It is an established fact that this animal carries disease and, as pets go, its bite is more serious to humans that of a dog. Now we are confronted with a new disease, cat scratch fever, which is not as innocent as the term sounds.

In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine Doctors Greer and Keefer told of a middle-aged man who awakened one morning to find the house cat licking the left side of his neck. He was scratched on the right hand at the same time, presumably while reaching, in his semi-conscious condition to find what was going on.

The incident was forgotten until four days later when he noticed a swollen gland on the left side of his neck. Swelling increased until the lesion reached the size of a hen's egg. Neither pain nor tenderness was present. By the end of a week the man began to feel weak, tired, and somewhat chilly. Penicillin was administered and warm moist dressings were applied to the glandular area. At the end of two weeks he failed to improve and was admitted to the hospital. His temperature was 100 degrees F. and weakness was becoming more marked. In addition a large raised red spot appeared on the shin of the right leg and a rash was making progress on his arms.

A thorough study and special blood tests were made. A vial of cat fever antigen was procured from Cincinnati for testing against this possibility. The result was a positive reaction. All the other tests were negative and, to make doubly certain, the cat fever antigen was injected into the skin of six healthy persons, who showed no reaction. The patient's temperature continued to rise and for the next three days remained at 102 degrees F. Then the neck glands began to drain and from that point on he made a dramatic recovery.

Cat scratch fever resembles rabbit fever (tularemia), except that it is milder and is always associated with the scratch of a cat. Weakness, fever, and rash usually occur. A virus is thought to be responsible. Most cases to date have been observed among children in France and Switzerland. The animals that did the scratching rarely were sick and it has been concluded that the disease was passed on mechanically from the cat's mouth.

Cats are capable of transmitting several diseases to man. Rabies is one of the most severe and a rabid feline is a serious menace to humans. In a series of 588 rabid animals, 34 were cats. At the Illinois state department of public health, 18 out of 416 positive animal heads over a four year period were those of cats. The percentage is not as high as in dogs but these statistics indicate that cats do suffer from the malady. They sometimes hide in dark areas and come forth for vicious attacks. They die like dogs whenever they become affected.

Cats also spread tularemia, virus pneumonia, diphtheria, brucellosis, tuberculosis, typhus, ringworm, creeping eruption, and various other disorders. A Boston staff physician was overheard to say that last winter his family kitten developed an upper respiratory infection. It sneezed in a child's face several times and subsequently several members of the household came down with a cold. Human beings are just as bad. They transmit many of their diseases to cats.

ARRESTED TB

Mrs. D. writes: Is it safe for a mother with arrested tuberculosis to nurse her baby?

REPLY

Tuberculosis and pregnancy do not go well together but if the disease did not flare up before or after the birth of the baby there is no reason why breast feeding should be prohibited.

WEAK LIMBS

N. M. writes: Could vitamin deficiency cause weakness of the left arm and leg?

REPLY

Yes. Peripheral neuritis caused by a vitamin B deficiency can produce such symptoms. However, there are other origins of weakness of the extremities on one side.

Taxpayers To Subsidize Almost Two-Thirds Of Greek Food Ration At Cheaper Prices Than Americans Pay; OPS Demoralized While Awaiting Congress' Action

WASHINGTON—No announcement has been made to the American people, but, while their own food prices skyrocket, they will foot the bill to keep Greek food prices down. For the United States has agreed to subsidize over half of the Greek diet at cut-rate prices.

What happened in Greece is that a timid government permitted inflation to push prices out of reach of the average Greek. The Greek government refused to pass high taxes or inflation controls, so, to combat a sure breeder of communism, the U.S.A. has promised to underwrite a three-year rationing program.

Thus we will subsidize approximately 65 per cent of the Greek ration, or 1,500 calories out of a total daily ration of 2,400 calories. But what's more, the United States will not only guarantee the food, but will supply it at below-market prices. In other words, the American taxpayers will guarantee all Greeks two out of three meals a day—at cheaper prices than the Americans are paying for their own food.

This is on top of $2,000,000,000 in aid that has already been poured into Greece since the end of the war.

NOTE—Real profiteers are the Greek shipowners, who have grown fabulously wealthy overnight shipping ECA cargo. They bought their ships at bargain-basement prices from the United States, and are now charging scandalously high rates for use of these ships. In return, they are paying no taxes to the United States and almost none in Greece.

Price Stalemate

While Congress has been haggling over price controls, the Office of Price Stabilization has come to a virtual standstill. This is revealed in a confidential memo from price headquarters to all branch chiefs and section heads.

Marked "for internal use only," the memo shows how the price agency has bogged down and become demoralized while waiting for Congress to make up it mind about controls.

"Naturally we regret the present situation since it has brought to a halt the development of five months of carefully considered and hard work," the memo declares. "However, neither recrimination nor looking for an easy way out will resolve our problems, and we ask that the agency continue to stand together as a team until such time as its immediate course can be more clearly charted."

The memo instructs price chiefs throughout the country that price boss Mike Di Salle "desires to maintain the status quo . . . In connection with our manufacturer regulations as well as with most other price actions."

"As just one example," the confidential memo points out, "Mr. Di Salle felt that if we issued only price-increase actions during this period, Congress could take the position that we were showing pique and petulance and trying to place it in the worst light. . . . Accordingly, our job is to make the best of a bad situation until such time as it is resolved by Congress."

Headaches And Humor

The most unpopular agency in the government, as everybody knows, is the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which collects our taxes. Actually however, the BIR is made up of human beings who, despite their unpleasant job, manage to get a few chuckles out of their relations with John Q. Public.

For instance, a disgruntled taxpayer recently wrote the Bureau:

"'—And from him that hath not . . . shall be taken away even that which he hath.'

"That's from the Bible, you lugs, and I think it's the only part you believe in."

Another taxpayer attached this note to his income return: "Only two things in life are certain—death and taxes. What I resent is that they don't come in that order."

The BIR has heard about every alibi in the book for the filing of delinquent returns, but the most unusual came from a man who confessed: "I would have paid this sooner only I was laid up with a fractured uncle." Another taxpayer, explaining why he listed his mother-in-law as a dependent, added: "She eats like a horse."

Bureau officials get a lot of poetry in the mail, some of it anonymous and unprintable. A frustrated citizen attached the following to his return:

A man stood at the Pearly Gate,
His face was worn and old;
He merely asked of the Man of Fate
Admission to the fold.

"What have you done?" St. Peter asked,
"To seek admission here?"
"Why, I tried," said the man, "to figure
"My tax till the end of the year."

The gates swung open sharply,
As St. Peter touched the bell;
"Come in," he said, "and take a harp,
"You've had enough of hell."

The Bureau received an anonymous letter from a taxpayer who felt that his obligation to the government was greater than his tax. Enclosed was a substantial check, with an attached note: "Inasmuch as I wish to remain anonymous, you will please pardon me for not signing this check."

Another taxpayer being interviewed by a deputy collector was trying to get away with a whopping list of dependency claims. The deputy, knowing that the man was lying, turned to another collector and jokingly inquired:

"John, what time does that bus load of people who have gypped the government leave today for the federal penitentiary?"

"Man, I just remembered," interrupted the startled taxpayer. "Scratch all those names off, I don't support nobody but myself."

Running Battle Ahead

By MARK SULLIVAN

Wage and price controls exist. They are in the statute Congress passed last September, and in directives issued by the President. The agencies for carrying them out are functioning. These controls are not likely to be terminated by any last minute development in the Conference Committee of the two branches of Congress which at this writing is formulating the final form of the new bill dealing with controls generally. In neither House during the debate on the new legislation was any serious proposal made to terminate wage and price controls.

What remains to be seen is the effect that new price and wage controls will have. As to prices, the most important ones are those of food, which compose the largest factor in cost of living. And about prices of food the effect of the new control law is severely limited. For the principal influence in prices of food is the prices pair farmers for their crops. And in this field the strongest statutory force remains where it has been, in the law providing for price support of farm crops, administered by the Department of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture has much more power over prices of food than Price Stabilizer DiSalle has under the new controls law.

Floors, Not Ceilings

What price support of farm crops does, far from putting ceilings over prices is to put floors under them. The floors are established by fixing "support prices" at which the Department of Agriculture stands ready to buy immense portions of farm crops, in order to take them off the market, or by other methods prevent prices from going down. The support prices becomes floors. Once these are fixed, the authority of Price Stabilizer DiSalle is confined to actions on levels above the farmer, actions about prices charged by retailers, wholesalers and processors of food.

The new controls law itself specifically forbids Price Stabilizer DiSalle to do anything about prices of most farm crops, limits him to only such farm crops as are above the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. One of the few such crops is beef, and thus Price Stabilizer DiSalle had opportunity to decree a rollback in prices paid farmers and other producers for cattle. As of today, price support of farm crops remains as it has been, if anything it is broader. The firm tendency of it is to prevent any fall in prices of farm crops, hence of food.

As respects wages, the new controls bill confers a large power and sets up an agency to administer the power. As to what this agency can or may do, there is light in what has already taken place. Last January, when the whole set-up of control agencies was established, there was included a Wage Stabilization Board, made up of three representatives of labor, three of industry, and three of the public. Early in its existence the board ordered a broad ceiling on wages, 10 per cent above what had been the level more than a year before, in January 1950.

Technical Orders

This order was immediately and vigorously protested by organized labor. The three labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board withdrew. The protest from organized labor went farther. Representatives of labor organizations, including CIO and AFL, organized what was called the United Labor Policy Committee. The Committee attacked the whole board mobilization program, demanded larger representation for labor on the top levels of it; 13 important labor leaders on various mobilization agencies withdrew. After some weeks of tension between the Truman Administration and organized labor, and some yielding by the Administration, a new Wage Stabilization Board was set up.

The new Wage Stabilization Board exists and functions. So does organized labor exist and function, in its way. It has made demands for wage raises in industry after industry, in some cases has struck to get them, in most cases has won the demands. However new wage rates demanded by labor and conceded by employers, are subject to approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

What the Wage Stabilization Board does or will do about advances in wages, is embodied in orders and statements issued by the board. The present writer, having gone through some 25 pages of these, finds it difficult to understand them. They teem with technicalities including such terms as "base pay period abnormalities," "tandem salary increases." One gathers that the board in passing on a wage raise, judges by whether it conforms to the standard ceiling, 10 per cent above January, 1950. One judges too that the board makes many exceptions to the standard.

Apparently what lies ahead is a long running battle between organized labor demanding wage raises, and the Wage Stabilization Board resisting them or making exceptions of them. Whether there is to be a standard ceiling over wages, firm enough to be a dependable check to the rising wage-price spiral and inflation, is decidedly not yet decided.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—When the Secretary of State makes an address, a good deal of deliberate planning lies behind his words. From his staff of policy-makers come memoranda that lay down the points that must be emphasized to fit changing situations.

But the speech which Secretary Acheson made at Detroit is baffling in its ambiguity. The words at times are those of a MacArthur but the acts which are contemporaneously recorded in the news dispatches are those of a Chamberlain.

What Dean Acheson says is important because, for all practical purposes, he is president of the United States. He is virtually commander-in-chief of the army, navy, and air force. He defines their scope of action. For Mr. Truman does what Mr. Acheson tells him to do. No man in the office of Secretary of State heretofore has had the opportunity to wield such power, first, because no president ever delegated as much authority to him and, second, because no comparable issues fell to a secretary of state to decide. Mr. Acheson told a Senate committee recently that a cease-fire in Korea around the 38th Parallel would be a "victorious" conclusion of the war there, and he emphasized that this would mean that aggression had been repelled.

Aggressor Not Tamed

Yet now, in his Detroit speech, the Secretary says the aggressor hasn't been tamed at all. He adds:

"We are in great danger, greater perhaps than many Americans now appreciate. This danger is not less than it was a month ago, although some of us seem to think so. . . . Whether or not an armistice results from the talks in Korea, the fundamental job ahead of us will not change . . . Whether or not there is peace in Korea, whether our adversaries are cooing like doves or growling like bears, our job remains the same. The threat we face remains the same."

This would seem to imply that the sacrifices made by the UN forces, including casualties of 80,000 Americans, have not swerved the aggressor from his course. Then comes this curious paragraph:

"Neither war nor weakness is the way to meet the Soviet challenge. We will counter force with force, if necessary, but war does not solve problems—it multiplies them. Weakness, on the other hand, would lead to defeat, with or without war."

The foregoing—countering force with maximum force—was the main theme of General MacArthur's frequent messages to his superiors in Washington and of his Boston speech, too. It was because of his exposition of this very doctrine in his message to the enemy commander that he was summarily removed from all his command.

But, while it is sound doctrine whether Mr. Acheson or General MacArthur expresses it, the Secretary of State qualifies it almost immediately when he says:

"Between these two extremes lies a middle course, which seeks to block Soviet expansionism without war, by building an effective system of collective security, and by making it strong. This is the course we are following."

Explains "Middle Course"

Then comes the explanation of what that "middle course" is:

"We do not have to match the Soviet armies man for man, or gun for gun, since our mission is to deter, not to attack, but we have a long way to go before we reach a safe deterrent level."

What kind of gobbledygook is this for our military chiefs to digest? Is a military force built solely to be strong on the defensive? Is there no thought given to offensive strength sufficient to win a war when the enemy has begun it? Mr. Acheson amplifies his thinking thus:

"What we are building is an adequate deterrent force against military attack. We already have the means to guarantee that a general military attack against us would be so costly to the aggressors. We must now achieve a force of sufficient size to make it plain that such an attack could not succeed."

Does this mean that America has adopted a policy of being willing to accept stalemates in future wars? Has "victory" been deleted from our vocabulary as well as the plans of our military forces?- Is the enemy to be given to understand that if an attack is made and he succeeds to penetrate our lines, we will agree to "cease fires" and compromises like the 38th Parallel sort of stalemate? Is Korea to be a pattern for future military policy?

Plainly the Detroit speech by Secretary Acheson is a revelation of the new concept of American military policy—not to fight to win but just to keep the enemy from winning. If that is all our army, navy and air force are to be permitted to do in the next war, then the Soviets may some day accept this realistic though unwitting description of the morale of UN countries what Mr. Acheson says: "It must be understood that weakness not only invites attack; what is even more menacing, it paralyzes the will to resist and makes for political disintegration."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Tidelands Cases

I became interested in the tidelands cases for two reasons, perhaps somewhat different from those which immediately trouble the people of the states of California, Texas and Louisiana.

The first reason is the constant encroachment of the federal government on the revenues of state governments. In some states, in which the federal government has established vast national parks and reservations, state revenues are in such a dismal condition that the states turn to Washington for a hand-out. This is bad practice. It was part of the theory of the New Dealers that states should be abolished and that the United States should be divided into administrative provinces—nine, if my memory serves me.

Such a procedure would have destroyed the soverignty of the states and would have established an administrative system that could have been a basis for a totalitarian government. The scheme failed and has been forgotten, but federal encroachment on the rights of the states and of the people thereof has continued, often in such small respects that it amounts to a whittling process that can, in time, completely alter our form of government.

The second reason for my interest in the tidelands question is that in the case of the United States V. Texas, the Supreme Court deciding against the state 4 to 3, Mr. Justice Hugo Black and Mr. Justice William O. Douglas employed startling language, as in the California case, which ought not to be permitted to stand as precedents in American law.

The theory that what, at a particular moment, an administration of government believes to be necessary is ipso facto right is not American but Nazi law. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, throughout his long career as an Hegelian philosopher, essayist and jurist did believe that law as a function of the power of the state involved no moral criteria, but both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States conceived of law in this country as a limited procedure which, in the case of the individual must not breach his inalienable rights and, in the case of states, must not invade their jurisdiction beyond specific provisions of the Constitution.

Whereas the Democratic party pays lip service to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, the tendency both the Roosevelt and Truman administration has been to ignore all limitations on the assumption that the necessities of the government are paramount. In the California and Texas cases, the Supreme Court upheld this doctrine without giving ever a very clear definition of the necessities of the government.

Moreover when such phrases are employed as "bare legal title" and "mere property ownership," the peril is far beyond these particular cases.

Our social and economic life is organized around "legal titles." A man has a legal title to his home, his automobile, his furniture, his television set, etc., and that is all that he has. That legal title is his sole right to possess whatever he has, even the suit on his back.

There are countries where a "legal title" does not exist for the individual but is vested in the government. In such countries the government can, in pursuit of so-called necessities, divest the individual of his possessions, because the title to the means of production, distribution and exchange is socially vested in the state. This is Marxiam socialism, now practiced in Soviet Russia and other Communist countries.

When, therefore, a Justice of the United States Supreme Court denounces "legal titles" by using such an adjective as "bare" to describe them, he is moving a step toward the concept that a legal title is not important per se. Ignoring for the moment all other considerations in these tidelands cases, such a concept as this held by Mr. Justice Douglas must not be permitted to stand:

"Property rights must then be subordinated to political rights to the end in substance to coalesce and unify in the national sovereign . . .

The American conception of property rights is that they exist by right of law and not by the fiat of the administration in power. Were it otherwise, it would be possible for the Republicans, when they achieved power, to deny property rights to Democrats and vice versa. As a matter of fact, this process is actually employed today in countries where nationalization is incomplete, such as China and Czechoslovakia and it was used by Soviet Russia to deprive land-owning farmers, Kulaks, of their property.

In a word, here we have an issue that transcends oil and goes to the heart of the American philosophy of life.

Frostburg Cops First Game In Little League Series, 5-3

Turns Back Dappers, Jimmy Harden Stars, Tangle Here Monday

Frostburg's Little Leaguers, managed by Roger Day and George Hawkins, knocked off the Dapper Division All-Stars of Cumberland in the opening game of their best-of-three series yesterday at the Frostburg Ball Park by the score of 5-3.

It was Frostburg's second triumph over a team from the Cumberland Little League, the Mountain City tossers having whipped the all-stars from the Whiz Kids Division on Wednesday by the score of 5-4.

Jimmy Harden was the batting star in yesterday's game as he came through in the clutch twice in drive in four of Frostburg's five tallies.

Win Game Early

Frostburg scored all of its runs in the first and third frames. "Pete" Wilson's single sent over the first tally after "Buzz" Patterson beat out a bunt, was forced at second by Ray Miller, Jack Fisher hit safely and both runners advanced on an outfield error. Then Jim Harden doubled in two markers to give Frostburg a 3-0 lead in the initial frame. Harden knocked in two more tallies in the third after Miller and Fisher singled and Wilson forced Fisher at second.

Cumberland scored its three runs in the 5th. With one away Washington and Campbell hit safely and Robinson was hit by pitcher, loading the hassocks. Mullaney hit two short and Washington came home. Two more runs came in when Wheeler got a life on an error. The rally died, however, when Reliefer Jack Fisher whiffed Stinson and Diehl.

Arthur Washington who pitched the first three innings for Cumberland was the loser. "Pete" Wilson was the winner. Fisher collected three of Frostburg's nine hits and Harden turned in a nice running catch of Rice's drive in right field in the 9th frame. The losers were limited to four hits. Wilson and Fisher struck out seven.

Clash Here Monday

Announcement was made last night that the second game of the series will be staged on Monday at 6:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field and not today as originally planned. A third game, if necessary, will be played Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. on the same field. The box:

Earl Nonnenmann's Optimist Club tossers pulled to within one full game of first place in the Hot Stove Baseball League's torrid race when they raillied for six runs in the last two frames and defeated the Lions Club yesterday at Penn Avenue Field by the score of 6-0.

It marked the first meeting of the teams and the game was highlighted by the masterful twirling of Bobby Lewis who yielded one hit, a blooper over third base by Shaffer in the fourth inning, and fanned 14 batsmen. Lewis fanned every player in the Lions' lineup at least once, got five of them twice and issued one pass. He faced only 19 batsmen.

Every Optimist player got at least one hit. Bobby Lewis led the attack with a homer and single while Tommy Reed rapped a pair of singles. Donnie Irons turned in a nice running catch in centerfield of a drive from the bat of Rhoe in the fourth inning.

The same teams clash again Monday.

Another win for the Optimists would tie up the race. The current standings are: Lions 13-3 and Optimists 12-4.

Mike Robinson's Jaycees provided an upset last night at Penn Avenue Field when they knocked off B'nai B'rith, 1 to 0.

The only hit yielded by Clarence "Pooch" Lewis was Yankelevitz's double in the first inning. The batter was thrown out at third when he tried to stretch the hit into a triple.

The Jaycees scored the lone run in the first inning when Barley walked, was sacrificed to third by C. Lewis and R. Rhodes and came home on Breedlove's high infield bounder.

Lewis, B'nai B'rith's third sacker, turned in a nifty diving catch of Barley's line drive and Ted Shipways, keystone sacker of the Jaycees made a nice catch of a liner from the bat of Yankelevitz.

Lewis fanned nine and Kline whiffed six. Scores:

Bubba Church Beats Chicago Cubs, 2-0

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies bunched three of their five hits off Frank Hiller in one inning for a 2 to 0 victory over the Chicago Cubs today.

Righthander Emory (Bubba) Church kept five Cub hits—all singles—well scattered to help the champion Phillies to their third successive shutout. It was the Cubs' fourth straight defeat since their return from the road.

Church now has defeated the Cubs eight straight times in two seasons: Box:

Arnone Wins Over Raines In 3-0 Duel

Midland Hurler Fans 10; Grantsville Nine Forfeits 12 Games

Bobby Raines and "Moose" Arnone hooked up in an American Legion Junior Baseball League pitching duel for the fourth time yesterday at Midland and the latter was returned the winner as Midland Post registered a 3-0 triumph over Victory Post of Westernport.

The two twirlers figured in three 1-0 contests since the league season began and they're now all square at two wins each.

Manager Hugh Coleman's aggregation put the game on ice in the third by scoring twice. Tommy Richards singled. Andrews flied out. Thompson hit to right, sending Richards to third. Rafferty singled scoring Richards. On the first pitch Rafferty dashed for second, returned to first and as the play was being made for him, Thompson raced home. In the fourth Arnone doubled to deep center, moved to third on Winters' single and crossed the platter when Tommy Richards bounced a two-bagger off the right field fence.

Arnone Whiffs Ten

Arnone yielded five hits and struck out 10 batsmen. Three of Westernport's blows were credited to Raines. The Westernport hurler gave up six hits and struck out two. Tommy Richards had two of the safeties.

Edward Wegman, Mountain District American Legion, baseball chairman, last night announced that Grantsville has forfeited all of its 12 games due to using ineligible players. Several changes in the standings were made as a result of this ruling.

Only three games remain on the schedule, all between Westernport and Fort Cumberland Post. The first contest between these clubs is set for Monday at 5:30 at Community Park and the second at Westernport on Wednesday at 5:30.

Playoffs Start Next Week

Wegman said that playoffs will get under way next Saturday with Frederick, Area B winner, meeting the Mountain District League champion on the latter's field. The series will be concluded Sunday, August 5 with a doubleheader at Frederick. The box:

Dutch Harrison Ties Ed Oliver In St. Paul Open

St. Paul, Minn., July 27 (AP)—A seven-under-par 65, one of two such scores turned in today, boosted the veteran professional golfer, E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, into a tie at 133 with Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., for the lead in the St. Paul Open's second round.

Harrison scored five birdies on the outgoing nine, and three on the back nine. A topped drive that travelled only 40 yards cost him an extra stroke on the 397-yard second hole, giving him a one-over-par 5. He had a 68 in yesterday's first round.

Oliver continued his sub-par golf today, scoring a 67 to go with his 66 of yesterday.

The other seven-under-par round was turned in by Jim Deal, former rice shotput champion who, in his own words, "never has made a nickel out of golf tournaments."

He wound up however, with a 138 total for the 36 holes of play, having a 73 in yesterday's first round.

Trailing Harrison and Oliver by one stroke was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif. Both of them shot consistent 67s today to go with their first-day 67s.

Tied behind Demaret and Mangrum at 135 were Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Jack Burke of Houston, Texas, Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Texas, Julius Boros of Mine Pines, N. C., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and George Fazio of Pine Valley, N. J. Boros and Fazio each had 66s today, matching Ferrier's total.

Hawkins had a 67 and Middlecoff and Burke each had 68s.

Lover's Leap Upset By Carver Girls, 6-5

Carver's girls upset Lover's Leap in a Queens Softball League game yesterday at East Side Field by the score of 6 to 5.

The game was transferred from Community Park to East Side Field.

Each team obtained 10 hits.

Anna Washington and Nancy Beckward led the winners at the plate with three hits in three trips each. The latter slammed a pair of three-baggers. DeAngelo accounted for two of Lover's Leap's 10 hits. Score:

INGERFIRE bore out leaving the gate but was quickly straightened and sent to the front, held on tenaciously in the drive and just lasted. DUFF lugged in badly at the start, bothering ROYAL RHYMER and CABIN CREEK, raced forwardly placed but came slightly wide into the stretch and could not get up. ROYAL RHYMER, shuffled back at the start, was blocked momentarily turning into the stretch, then finished willingly. SWING HIGH gradually weakened from a swift beginning. CABIN CREEK, forced back sharply from between INGERFIRE and DUFF at the start, made up distance through the backstretch but tired. BUCKIE'S LAD was outrun.

WINNER—Owned and trained by R. D. Scott.
ADELE G. was gradually brought forward between horses into contention after a poor beginning, quickly wrested command on the far turn and then won easily. SEA LEVEL raced along evenly close to the pace, assumed command when THUMBS KNIGHT bolted but offered no resistance to the winner. SALOME, under choking restraint for a half-mile, saved ground and finished well. LIEGE LORD began poorly, reached a contending position but lacked a rally. AMERICAN CROSS raced wide. THUMBS KNIGHT set the early pace evenly, bolted after a half-mile and had to be eased up.

CLAIMED—Dutch King $1,750, J. Nechamkin—same.
GUNNER was briskly handled to outsprint ELLEN'S PICK, closely followed the inner railing and was drawing away at the finish. MR. FIXIT loomed boldly moving to the pace under urging at the half-mile, could not reach the winner and weakened slightly at the end. ELLEN'S PICK, unable to stay with GUNNER after a half-mile, saved ground and held on fairly well. RABBIT POINT was not a threat. WRINKLES was shuffled back leaving the gate.

POWDER PASS repulsed challengers setting the pace under steady rating, held on determinedly and held the opposition safe. BUCKO saved ground throughout, was forced to ease back slightly on the far turn, then closed with good courage in the final drive. LUCKY ANDY lost ground pressing the pace from the outside and hung. SIR JINX finished well but was not a serious menace. THRILLER had speed under urging and quit. LOVING ROBERT was outrun. MORNING CHIMES was sore.

MARY ANN was unable to match the early speed of the winner and faltered. CARAWAY raced well placed but lacked a rally. MUTUEL PRICES—Bunk, $8.40, $4.20, $2.60; Imacinch, $4.40, $2.80; Partition, $3.00.
BUNK saved ground and went to the front early, was put to pressure when challenged by HAZEL GOLD at the half-mile, disposed of that one and lasted to best IMACINCH. The latter steadily improved position and finished determinedly under strong urging. PARTITION lacked early speed, circled wide for the final run and closed with a belated rush. HAZEL GOLD was a keen factor for six furlongs and faltered. GOLDEN BUCKLE had a rough trip racing on the outside and tired. BLUNDERBUSS and LEITERSBURG quit.

ESTIMATED ATTENDANCE—5,200.
TOTAL MUTUEL POOL—$212,304.

Racing World's Richest Event Set For Today

Arlington Park Holds $143,750 Handicap

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—Arlington Park's $143,750 handicap, richest of its kind in the racing world, will be decided tomorrow with ten outstanding thoroughbreds scrambling for the guaranteed $100,000 first prize.

The horse finishing second will draw down $25,000, as much as 85 percent of America's stakes events are worth to the winner. Third place will net $12,500 and fourth $6,250.

The race at a mile and a quarter will climax Arlington's 36-day meeting.

The probable favorite will be Rokeby Stables Country Delight, owned by Paul Mellon, a steel industrialist of Upperville, Virginia. The four-year-old son of Count Fleet has won the Dixie and Gallant Fox Handicaps this season and finished abong the first three in five other stakes events.

Country Delight will be ridden by Jockey Eric Guerin and will carry top weight of 124 pounds.

Another favored easterner is the Brandywine Stables Cochise, which has triumphed this season in the Brandywine, Sussex and Grey Lag Handicaps.

Greentree Stable will start One Hitter, which won the mile and a quarter Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs on June 13, his only triumph of the year.

Volcanic from the Walmac Farms stable of R. W. Mc Ilvain will carry second high weight of 122 pounds and will race as an entry with M. A. and Toy Saffir's Dr. Ole Nelson, winner of the Hawthorne Gold Cup last year.

One of the lightly weighted starters, which could threaten, is Oil Capitol, owned by Tom Grey, Tulsa, Okla., oil man. The horse, running as an entry with Inseparable, will carry only 107 pounds.

King Ranch's Curandero, winner of the Equipoise Mile this season, is another horse which will get support. Jockey Jackie Westrope will be in the saddle. Like One Hitter, Curandero will carry only 114 pounds.

The Argentine-bred Miche, owned by Mrs. John Payson Adams, Carmel, Calif., is one of the few horses to defeat Citation. However, he has been unable to triumph in seven starts this season. Finishing second three times and third three times.

The only filly in the field is Aegina, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. She will carry only 100 pounds.

Sweden's Net Team Leads Germany, 2-0

BASTAD, Sweden, July 27. (AP)—Sweden's tennis team virtually clinched the European Zone Davis Cup final series with Germany today by sweeping the first two singles matches without the loss of a set.

Lennart Bergelin, Sweden's No. 1 player, routed 42-year old Gottfried Von Cramm, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4, to just about end Germany's hopes of winning the Zone championship in its first Davis

Purinton, Nelson Horses Score In Johnstown Show

Raymond Purinton, of Cumberland; and K. O. Nelson, Pinto; won prize money and ribbons with their horses on Sunday at the Johnstown, Pa., Horse Show.

Purinton and Nelson have had exceptional success with their horses at Southern Pennsylvania shows this summer. They have shown at Somerset, Waynesburg, Uniontown, Chambersburg and Johnstown; placed in every show they entered and have won a considerable amount of prize money.

"Rainbow's Color Parade," owned by Purinton, was judged reserve champion at Chambersburg, Pa., last week and has been consistently near the top.

Nelson, who started showing this year, has been winning with his Tennessee walking horse, "Rhoda Allen's Romeo."

Being amateurs and considering the large number of professional horsemen entered in these shows Purinton and Nelson feel they have accomplished more than might be expected.

Horses owned by Purinton and Nelson will vie in the Cumberland Show to be held September 14, 15 and 16 at Fairgo.

More Toledo Players Involved In Scandal

TOLEDO, July 27 (INS) — The president of Toledo University announced today that two more Toledo basketball players are involved in the big cage scandal.

President Asa S. Knowles said the two involved are sophomore star Jack Feeman and Joe Massa, of New York City, a member of last year's freshman squad who was slated to replace Bill Walker on next year's varsity team.

Knowles also said a "fix" was involved in two additional games during last season, both of which Toledo lost.

It's hard to believe that nine days of the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting have elapsed and Ralph "Buddy" Root has failed to ride a winner.

We mention this because of the fact that Root and Sammy Palumbo hold the distinction of having topped the riders at Fairgo three times each in past years.

"Buddy" was first in 1937, 1939 and 1942, Palumbo led 'em in 1936, 1944 and 1948.

Root had 14 winners in 1937, 11 in 1939 and 17 in 1942.

"Buddy" has had 26 mounts at the current meeting and he has ridden five place and four show horses.

Nick Shinkoff, scout for the New York Giants, was a visitor at Fairgo yesterday.

Lt. Col. Flook was executive officer of the army unit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War and Nick says Harry is a "great guy."

Shinkoff has been scouting for the Giants for 12 years. Eleven years ago he signed "Buddy" Kerr, shortstop, to a New York contract.

Nick stopped over here en route to Pittsburgh to interview several young baseball prospects.

Dutch King, owned by R. E. Dutcher, was claimed by J. Nechamkin for $1,700 in yesterday's fourth race. The three-year-old bay gelding finished 7th.

●—●—●

Racing Secretary J. Fred Colwill was forced to call off the two miles and a sixteenth race originally planned for today because it didn't fill. The program will windup with three 1 1/16 mile contests.

●—●—●

A person called last night to say that Fast Feather, winner of the first race last Friday is owned by one F. R. Boone, of Cumberland.

This makes us feel like Walter Haight.

After he had called off a lot of automobile numbers over the P. A. system at Fairgo the other day, he remarked:

"If your number has not been called today, please complain."

If we've missed any other Cumberland-owned horses that have won at Fairgo, please complain.

Harriman Acts To Get Oil Talks Restarted

TEHRAN, Iran, July 27 (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, U. S. roving ambassador, left by plane tonight for London to urge Britain to speed her reply to the Iranian proposal for renewed oil talks. He was accompanied by Sir Francis Shepherd, Britain's ambassador to Tehran.

In London, a spokesman said President Truman's personal trouble-shooter will see Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and possibly Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

A SELDOM-SEEN incident occurred in a Cleveland-Boston Red Sox ball game the other day.

Dom DiMaggio, batting for the Red Sox, beefed about a called strike and appeared to be taking his time getting back into the batter's box.

Umpire Charlie Berry, at the plate, ordered DiMag in and when DiMag didn't respond at once, Berry ordered the pitcher to throw the ball. The pitcher, Early Wynn of the Indians, tossed one right over the plate—without a batter standing there—and Umpire Berry called it a strike and DiMaggio was out.

The rule is covered under "6.06" in the official rules book under "A batter is out for illegal action when."

It reads:

". . If, after entering the batter's box, a batter persists in unwarranted delay in taking his proper position, the umpire shall direct the pitcher to deliver the ball to the bat and every pitch shall be called a 'strike' by the umpire."

SO CITATION has retired. The million-dollar baby of the turf has earned his spot in the record books but the old argument of "stars of yesterday and today" will continue. . . . Was Citation better than Man o' War?. . . It's the same difficult question that is asked about Dempsey and Louis, about Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan, about the baseball heroes of yesterday and the stars of today. . . . It never will be answered, of course, for actually there is no way to factually compare the standouts because of the continued change in equipment, the type of competition, the hours of practice, and particularly because each did not oppose the other.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (INS)—you don't need to guess why Gregory Peck and Raoul Walsh sold themselves as a package to Universal-International. The boys made "Captain Horatio Hornblower" together in England, and then and there they decided if a good story came up they'd work together again.

Gregory Peck

The good story that sold both of them is one of Rex Beach's greatest adventure tales, "The World In His Arms." This, as most of the Beach stories, is set in Alaska and is an exciting tale laid in 1850. A gold prospector strikes it rich, comes back to San Francisco, meets a Russian countess—but you've got to see the picture to find out the end.

This will be one of U-I's big outdoor epics and will be filmed partly in California and partly in Alaska.

Gary Merrill, still vacationing with Bette Davis in Connecticut, returns to 20th by August 20, for "A Phone Call From A Stranger." That boy certainly doesn't have much time between pictures.

Nunnally Johnson, who both scripted and will produce the I.A.R. Wylie Yarn, and Jean Negulesco, the director, cabled Lauren Bacall to ask her if she will play opposite Gary. So far they've had no answer, but that's probably because Humphrey Bogart is still working on "African Queen" in London and she doesn't know where she can get back in time.

Bette Davis has announced no plans. She and Gary have certainly traveled since their marriage last year, making pictures all over the globe, and I bet Bette will be glad to light at home.

We may see Peter Ustinov's work as a director before we see him as "Negro" in "Quo Vadis." The British actor, who is a triple threat man in every sense of the word—he writes, directs and emotes—recently finished directing Ralph Richardson in "Secret Flight" in London.

Herbert Bregstein, who brought "Bicycle Thief" to this country, has just arranged to release "Secret Flight" here.

It is a thriller with many of the scenes released by permission of the English Ministry of Defense. No matter how well Ustinov clicks as a director, it will be pale to the stir he is sure to create as Negro. Mervyn Le Roy tells me he is one of the great actors of the world.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Sterling flies out from New York to attend Ann Sterling's opening in "Bittersweet." An understudy will take his place for one night in "Gramercy Square."

Robert Merrill and Paul Douglas arrive from Rome on Sunday. Paul has been there for his picture, "When In Rome."

Martha Raye, who looks very chic these days, I am told, surprised everybody at the Cafe Gala by getting up and singing in an entirely new style and she did it so well she was called back again and again.

Lee Bowman, who has been playing "Ellery Queen" on TV for a long time in New York, comes back here for eight weeks. He may do a movie while here.

Billy Eckstine makes his film debut in "Skirts Ahoy." He'll sing and do a hot dance routine.

Mala Powers and George Brand, Sybil's handsome son, were at the Band Box.

Harvey Stone, the comedian who won applause at the Cocoanut Grove, is headed next for the London Palladium where he'll star in his own show.

Could that have been Maria Reva, Marlene Dietrich's daughter, lunching at the Brown Derby?

Congratulations to Gail Patrick and Corney Jackson on their fourth wedding anniversary. They celebrated at the Mocambo.

Charlotte Rogers is really having a difficult time. She broke her hip when she ran to get away from a man who accosted her in the early morning when she was returning home from her job at the Mocambo, and it's not healing as well as her friends hoped.

Anthony and Katherine Quinn's three youngsters came to visit their dad on the "Viva Zapata" set. Elia Kazan, who was looking for some youngsters, picked on the Quinn children, but fast.

That's all today. See you Monday.

County Approves Road Contracts

Two contracts in the improvement program planned for county buildings over the next four years were approved yesterday by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

The George Construction Company of this city, for $875 will install 72 ventilation pipes at the County Infirmary to keep the concrete block structure from "sweating."

Glenn Wright, Park Heights electrical contractor, will install new lights in the office of the county commissioners and in the office of the clerk to the county commissioners at a cost of $415.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It doesn't take much to banish any charm detractor if you do something about it before it gets a chance to do something to you. You can even keep the heat from putting a dent in your morale.

There's many an offensive which you can plot that will prevent swamping heat and wearying doldrums from vanquishing your cool, crisp looks and spirits. To stimulate your imagination and efforts along this line, let me tell you about the favorite method of Powers Girl Bea Baily, who is also a model, housewife and mother.

Model Idea

Her slump-chaser is the frostiest of party desserts—an ice ring bouquet—which she serves to her family when the thermometer threatens to reach the breaking point, just to make sure that neither she nor her family does the same.

If you'd like to try this bit of drama this weekend, here's how: Start your dessert early in the morning. All you need is a bouquet of garden flowers that color blend or are of one hue (the common marigold is fine); a bunch of mint, fern fronds or any small leaves; fresh fruit such as berries, cherries or fruit melange of any variety; and a ring mold of the angel-food type, if you have a storage freezer or wide frozen-food compartment in your refrigerator. If not, use several individual-sized ring molds.

Half fill the mold or molds with cold water. Remove most of the flower heads and a few of the leaves from their stems. Reserve the leftovers for later use. Plunge the flower heads and a sprinkling of leaves into the mold until the water rises to the top. Place it into your freezing chamber for freezing as solid as ice cubes. Prepare your fruit and place it on a shelf in your refrigerator.

Like A Frosty Breeze

Just before serving your ice bouquet, line a gleaming platter with your leafy left-over flower sprays, mint and ferns. Then run hot water over your frozen flower container until the ice ring is released. Place it (or them if you made individuals) on your tray, fill with your fruits, and serve to the tune of refreshing compliments.

But don't restrict this sparkling effect to your dessert. As Bea declares, "To get the best results, make sure that your appearance is as crisp-looking as your dessert. Wear your slickest hair-do. Wear your most unflurried expression. The effect on everybody will be like a frosty breeze off a mint bed!"

Investigation Continues In Phoenix Flat Blaze

No new developments were reported yesterday by the sheriff's office in the investigation of the destruction by fire of an unoccupied two-story frame house at Phoenix Flat, near Franklin. The burning has been branded as "deliberate" by county officials.

Deputies William Chappell, Edgar M. Lewis and George Furstenberg, as well as State Trooper First Class Milton G. Hart, are continuing their investigation of the blaze. The house was slightly damaged by fire earlier this week and Thursday it was destroyed.

Although arson was discounted by the president of the Campbell Coal Company, Lonaconing, which owns the building, police, after making a complete investigation of the scene Thursday, said the fire had been set "by person or persons unknown." G. D. Campbell had expressed the belief that the blaze was of accidental origin and was probably caused by a group of boys playing there.

The Disenchanted

When Budd Schulberg's novel "The Disenchanted" was first published, it was both privately and publicly assaulted on what I consider unfair grounds. The book, as everyone knows, was inspired by a single unfortunate episode in F. Scott Fitzgerald's life in which Mr. Schulberg himself figured strongly. The pair collaborated on a movie centering around the Dartmouth winter carnival where Mr. Fitzgerald took to the waters a little too strongly. I happened to have seen the movie and it was—summing it up as judiciously as possible, picking my words with the utmost care—altogether lousy.

John Crosby

The criticisms of the book, both public and private, concentrated perhaps not unnaturally on the private lives and personal characteristics of Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald. Wasn't Mr. Schulberg a little one-sided in his appraisal of a very fine writer? Wasn't he being terribly unfair to Zelda Fitzgerald who was, I'm told, quite a girl? Did Mr. Schulberg, a much younger man than Fitzgerald, know him well enough to write about him? These questions are completely irrelevant. After all, Schulberg was writing fiction. His characters were based on real people but then, so, according to Somerset Maugham, are all characters in fiction, even in bad fiction.

•—•—•

Characters, in novels, no matter whom they are based on, acquire their own special aromas, move off in their own private directions. The question at issue is not whether Schulberg drew a rounded portrait of the Fitzgeralds but whether Manley and Jere Halliday were sufficiently real fictional characters to merit all the attention they attracted. I don't think they were. I found Mr. Halliday a little too querulous, far too self-absorbed for comfort, Jere Halliday a little asinine in her passion for self-destruction.

Still, the book had—as Stanley Walker once remarked of Fitzgerald's own books—bones in it. There are some wonderful scenes, each pregnant with imminent disaster—the Hollywood party scene, the script conference at Dartmouth, the final collapse. Mr. Schulberg—let's face it—had a hell of a good story to tell which stood up well last Sunday on NBC's "New Theater Series" (7:30 p. m. EDT)

If you can tear yourself away from the television set at that hour on Sunday, you may hear some very adult drama on this series which is narrated by Eva Le Gallienne, is generally excellently cast and is produced with a scrupulous and impressive attention to detail. After too much immersion in television drama, I'm always surprised by the polish and finish of radio drama, that ancient art form.

Schulberg's dialogue, especially that of the '20s "I feel pale green tonight, darling! Pale green!") which seemed a little sticky in print, sounded remarkably literate on the radio, conceivably because you don't expect any degree of literacy on radio or more probably because of the thoroughly expert performances of Staats Cotsworth as Manley Halliday and Joan Alexander as Jere. Mr. Cotsworth in particular deserves a low bow for managing somehow to play a drunk for almost a solid hour and at the same time remain both expressive and moving, a terrible task to ask of an actor. I was considerably less happy with Don Buka's performance as the Schulberg character, Shep Stearns, but I suspect it wasn't Mr. Buka's fault. He was badly miscast.

"The Disenchanted" is a very good title for a book but not a very apt one for this book. Schulberg, it is my guess, is hopelessly enchanted both with the '20s and the Fitzgeralds and so, it appears, is everyone else. "The '20s," said Miss Le Gallienne in her introduction, "for all their frivolty and wildness, produced fine writers." But the emphasis, both in this book and in others, is not on the fine writing but on the frivolity and wildness, on the waste, the despair and the self-destruction of only a few of the gifted writers of the '20s. Let's not kid ourselves, Miss Le Gallienne.

In case you're interested, a few of the other adaptations done on "New Theater" include Ernest Hemingway's "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," Dorothy Baker's "Young Man With a Horn," and Katherine Anne Porter's "Noon Wine." Coming up tomorrow night is Maritta Wolff's "Whistle Stop" and sometime in the future, "Camille," starring Miss Le Gallienne.

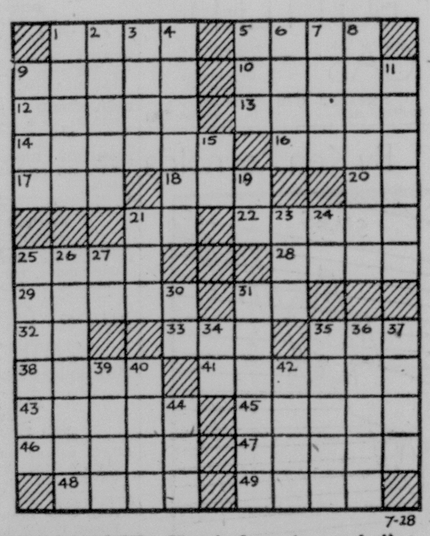
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

W R R C N W C J L H L L D G H L L Y V H X B C W T G L W Y J V C N V S W T G L W Y—Z D L.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: 'TIS FOR BENEVOLENCE AND VIRTUE AND HONEST FONDNESS ONE LOVES PEOPLE—PIOZZI.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May brothers and sisters be "too close"?

Answer: Yes, once they have grown up. On the whole, the motives which make adult sons and daughters unwilling to leave home, or unable to feel as close to "outsiders" as to one another must be recognized as backward -l ooking. Such behavior represents an effort to preserve the security and happiness of childhood at the cost of missing the more adult satisfaction of the ties a person makes for himself. To feel it is only your relatives that you can depend on is to lack enough self-confidence to believe that anyone will love you for yourself, or if it is not his "duty" to do so.

painful. But as we grow up we learn subtler ways of hurting ourselves (needless overwork, or worry, for example) so that the "pain barrier" is undermined and if we are neurotic enough, we may ruin our health, or even commit unconscious suicide.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Is losing your gloves neurotic?

Answer: If it gets to be a habit, it is a neurotic symptom, though not necessarily a serious one. For there is a purpose behind everything you do or leave undone, and only a purpose that is more or less neurotic will work to your disadvantage. The person who leaves a trail of gloves, rubbers and handkerchiefs behind him may have a childish resentment at being "encumbered," or what he unconsciously throws away may represent a sort of sacrifice, intended to avert ill fortune, like the wine the Greeks and Romans poured out on the ground at their feasts.

May pain save a baby's life?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. W. Hoffer in the International Journal of Psychoanalysis. A baby is kept from taking out his aggressive impulses on himself by the fact that it hurts him to do so, and this may save his life. Psychiatrists say, for instance, that a child in a temper tantrum rarely will bang his head on the floor hard enough to do serious damage because this would be too

Market Advance Featured By Stock Split Candidates

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP) — Wildfire enthusiasm for a few issues today in the stock market highlighted an advance, despite backward tendencies in a few major areas.

The advance ran as high as $11 in the case of Nickel Plate which closed at $217, $8.62 at $126.50 for American Cyanamid, and $6.25 at $115.12 for Cities Service.

All three of these issues, besides good earnings reports, are either candidates for splits or in the rumor classification.

Among major divisions showing good progress were rails, oils, motion pictures, copper mining, gold mining, chemicals, and a long list of miscellaneous manufacturers.

Steels and motors were notably backward, and there were a lot of minus signs in rubbers, aircrafts, and merchandising shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 80 cents at $95.60 with the industrial component up 50 cents, rails up $1.50 (largely as a result of the Nickel Plate showing), and utilities ended unchanged.

The steels were under the handicap of lower earnings reported late yesterday at Bethlehem, which closed off 1 at 51¼. Although that was a major depressant, some smaller companies soared off on their own when they reported sharply higher profits for the first half of this year. Lukens Steel—$10.66 a share as against $2.33—was up 2⅞ at 42¾. Follansbee Steel was up 1 at 22½, also on favorable earnings.

The volume of business came to 1,450,000 and compared with 1,480,000 shares yesterday.

The list of individual issues traded expanded to 1,103 as compared with 1,068 yesterday. There were 476 issues advancing and 340 declining, with 30 new highs and 15 new lows established for the year.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO TRICKS BY SQUEEZE

MOST bridge players have never seen the play which veterans call the "progressive squeeze." Indeed very few have the slightest understanding of just how it operates. There are plenty who don't even know there is such a play, whereby the squeezer builds two tricks for himself. Rare as it is, however, the fundamentals of it are not complex. In effect, it is two successive squeezes. The first obliges the victim to make a devastating discard from one of three suits. Then a card of the suit which he discarded is used for squeezing him again between the two remaining suits.

Area Swelters As Temperature Soars To 95

Is One Degree Lower Than Year's Highest

The temperature went up to 95 degrees yesterday, and record readings for the year were reported elsewhere in Maryland as the state sweltered in the middle of a heat wave.

Baltimore had a 96 degree high equalling Cumberland's 96 degree high last Sunday. Yesterday was the second time that the mercury soared to 95 degrees in Cumberland, the first being recorded on June 3. The weather station at Constitution Park reported the high temperature as 95 degrees, the low as 63, and at 8:45 p. m. yesterday, mercury stood at 82 degrees. Humidity was relatively low, however, and was recorded as 42 per cent at 7 o'clock last night.

Two cases of heat prostration were reported in Baltimore, none here.

Frederick had a high reading of 96, hottest this year. It was around 90 in Garrett County, in the mountainous western section of the state. Most inland areas reported readings in the mid-90's, those on the water generally around 90.

A bay breeze kept the mercury down to about 87 in Annapolis, where a fishing fair is in progress.

There is not much relief in sight. The weather bureau's five-day forecast predicted higher humidity today without much change in temperature, scattered thundershowers Sunday and Monday, more thundershowers again Wednesday.

Temperatures for the period are expected to average three or four degrees above seasonal normals.

Former Amcelle Engineer Helps Open New Plant

Family Now Resides In British Columbia

A Celanese research engineer who worked at the Amcelle plant for 25 years played an important role in the opening last month of the new modern Columbia Celulose wood pulp plant in British Columbia, Canada.

Mervin E. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Martin, 321 Avirett Avenue, is now technical director in charge of laboratory and research work at the new plant located on Watson Island, about 12 miles from Prince Rupert, British Columbia. He was assigned to the new plant last November.

Martin's wife, the former Elinor Deetz, and their three children, joined him in January and the former Cumberland family now resides in Prince Rupert.

Visiting Family Here

Mrs. Martin and the children are presently visiting Mrs. Martin's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Deetz and her sister, Olga Deetz, Hazen Road, and were accompanied here from Prince Rupert by Miss Elizabeth Jones, 12-year-old daughter of W. C. R. Jones, manager of the new plant. The Jones family formerly resided in Montreal, Canada, Mrs. Martin said.

The Martins made the trip from Prince Rupert by auto, traveling approximately 3,900 miles in 12 days through Yellowstone Park, Grand Coulee Dam and across the United States.

The little Jones girl left Tuesday to return home to her family and Mrs. Martin said she took her to Washington, D. C. where the girl boarded a plane for Montreal. When asked how she felt about flying for the first time, Elizabeth replied "I have butterflies in my stomach." Although a bit nervous the 12-year-old girl looked forward to making the trip, Mrs. Martin declared.

Explaining the excitement of living in a new, as yet not fully developed country, Mrs. Martin admitted the experience was thrilling. "The country is wild but very beautiful," she noted, "and we all had a wonderful trip returning to Cumberland."

Near Alaska Coast

Mrs. Martin's three children, Patricia, 16, Sue, 12, and Tommy, 6, have had a little difficulty adjusting themselves to the new country and different customs of the people there, she added.

"Prince Rupert is located on the west coast of British Columbia about 80 miles from Alaska," she went on, "and it has a natural harbor which is the third largest on the American continent.

"The Skeena River, which is about 30 miles from Prince Rupert, is the river down which the logs used by the Columbia Celulose plant for wood pulp are floated," Mrs. Martin explained. "When we return home in August," Mrs. Martin said, "we will drive to Washington state and then to Vancouver, B. C., where we will take a boat to Prince Rupert. Vancouver is about 600 miles from Prince Rupert," she added.

The Cumberland family has taken a liking to their new surroundings and the new customs there which are different from those in America.

"Most of the people living in Prince Rupert are from the old countries," she noted, "and are of English, Scotch, Japanese, Chinese, Norwegian, Swedish and Indian descent."

Noted For Totem Poles

The country there is noted for its totem poles which you can find in almost every village and the Northwestern Indians which live there are descendants of the Heidi Indians from the Queen Charlotte Islands in the Pacific Ocean," Mrs. Martin revealed.

The colorful Canadian Northwest Mounted Police have a detachment in Prince Rupert "and are the only police there," Mrs. Martin said. "They look almost like our Maryland State Police in uniform," she added, "and only wear their noted red coats for dress parades and social functions."

The children seem to experience their most difficulty in the schools which are taught by mostly Canadian and English teachers. "The system is a bit different from ours," Mrs. Martin explained," and they combine related subjects such as math, trigonometry, algebra into one class." Otherwise the family seems to be adjusting itself to its new surroundings without too much concern.

"We're very anxious to get back," Mrs. Martin continued, "and I hope my husband will be able to come here to visit next year."

Ridgedale Playground Square Dancers Winners In City Folk Dance Festival

Ridgedale Playground dancers square-danced their way to first place in the First Intracity Folk Dancing Festival last night at Gephart Playground.

The eight-girl team edged out teams from 10 other city playgrounds with their performance of the "Two Head Ladies Cross Over."

Second place honors went to the Johnson Heights team for an elaborate Sailor's Hornpipe.

Medals were awarded to all members of the winning team. They were Nancy Diehl, Carole Decker, Janis Twigg, Barbara Raupach, Norma Jean Twigg, Patty Lou Head, Kay Ort and Gail Campbell.

Gephart, the host playground, took third award with a square dance, and fourth and fifth places went to Columbia Street, with a Swedish Clap Dance, and Virginia Avenue, with a Csehbogar, a Hungarian folk dance.

The four runner-up playgrounds were awarded points toward the city playground banner, to be awarded at the end of the season to the playground which has earned the most points in city competitions.

Other contenders in last night's festival were West Side, with a square dance; Pine Avenue, a folk dance; East Side and Mount Royal square dances; North End, Hungarian folk dance, and Centre Street, a Virginia Reel.

Judges were Don Black, Jack Drummond and Dr. Rudy Steinberger, members of the Cumberland Quadrille Club, local square and folk dancing group.

The festival was the second intracity event to be staged at local playgrounds this season. The first was a talent show last Friday night at Constitution Park amphitheater.

Two Men Held In County Jail In Auto Theft

Two out-of-town men are being held in county jail pending a charge of violation of the Dyer Act, a federal law on stolen cars.

Ralph Poindexter, 19, Wallace, Idaho, and James C. Spurlock, 31, Rawlings Creek, Ky., were taken into custody in Frostburg Tuesday, interrogated, and an investigation revealed the two had in their possession a stolen pickup truck from Iowa.

Criminal Investigator William F. Baker of the State Police reported Sgt. Lloyd Truly, of the Frostburg Police Department, informed the LaVale Barracks Tuesday he had spotted the 1950 pickup truck parked on a vacant lot in Frostburg.

Routine Check Up

Baker said the two occupants of the motor vehicle were taken in for routine interrogation, and subsequent investigation revealed the machine had been stolen from Nevada, Iowa, on July 18.

Baker said Poindexter was the driver of the stolen vehicle. He added that his companion, Spurlock, said Poindexter picked him up along the way east several days after the alleged theft.

Jeep Unsighted

Locally, J. E. Hare, operator of Hare Motor Sales, 219 South Mechanic Street, reports that a 1949 Willys Jeep one-half ton pickup truck was stolen from his lot the night of July 16.

The red machine has a canopy over the bed and had no tags when taken between 9 p. m. and 11 p. m. Hare said no keys were in the truck and the doors were locked when last seen.

The vehicle was probably started by crossing ignition wires, he added. State and City police have been alerted, but the machine has not been spotted.

21 Local People Attend Summer Church School

Richardson Wood Boosts Cumberland In Harpers Magazine

Cumberland, as a labor surplus area, would be an ideal site for one of the country's new war plants, says the current issue of Harper's Magazine.

In an article titled "The Shambles Around the War Plant," industrial consultant Richardson Wood discusses the disastrous impact upon workers and surrounding communities which the erection of war plants can have in unplanned and unprepared areas.

One of the simplest measures to help reduce the size of the problem now thrust upon the nation by our present defense effort, he writes, is to take the job to the people rather than to require the people to move to the jobs.

And Cumberland, the article goes on to say, with its classic transportation site and where recently 20 percent of those registered for employment were jobless, is an excellent example of where a liability could overnight become an asset.

From the point of view of national policy, it concludes, the case for the labor surplus area is even more telling. "There is no other way in which government can save the taxpayers so much money and speed up production at the same time," the article says. "Savings can well run to hundreds of millions of dollars."

W. M. Railway Reports Loss In Operation

Elkins To Cumberland Trains Are "In Red"

Western Maryland Railway officials said yesterday at Charleston the road lost $55,000 operating passenger trains Nos. 1 and 4 between Elkins and Cumberland, Md. the first five months of this year.

The Public Service Commission began rehearing on the railway's application for permission to discontinue these trains. The request was denied by the commission on May 31, but the railroad's request that the case be reopened later was granted.

E. T. Steffy of Baltimore, general auditor for the Western Maryland, told the commission that the two trains produced $13,704.31 in operating revenues from January through May, this year.

He said the immediate out-of-pocket operating expense amounted to $23,312.20. In addition, Steffy said, the trains were assigned a proportionate share of divisional expenses amounting to $46,408.39.

Thus the total expense of the trains was $69,720.53, leaving an overall deficit of $55,016.22, Steffy said.

The commission said it permitted the railroad to reopen the case not because it felt it was in error in denying the application last May, but in order to give the railroad an opportunity to show, if it can, that conditions under which the trains operate have changed materially since the previous hearing in April, 1950.

The trains operate daily except Sunday, with Train No. 1 running from Cumberland to Elkins, and No. 4 from Elkins to Cumberland.

Actually covered in the hearing before the West Virginia Commission is only the portion of the runs which lies within this state. Left outside the state, however, is only the very short distance between Ridgeley, W. Va., and Cumberland.

The commission has received letters of protest from a number of towns, including Davis, Hambleton, Keyser, Thomas and Elkins.

Petitions of protest have been filed with the commission by groups of citizens in Thomas, Montrose, Albert, Mount Storm, Bismarck and Gormania.

Protests also have been received from various railway labor groups.

New Fireworks Display Planned At Bedford Fair

Bedford's "night fair," always a popular feature of the exposition which opens Monday, August 6, will be highlighted by a new feature this year—a display of spectacular fireworks encircling the half-mile track, climaxing the evening show.

Six circus and Vaudeville acts will be presented both day and night. Harness racing will attract leading horsemen of the Central Fair Circuit to Bedford Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Wednesday afternoon, Lucky Irish Horan's daredevils will present their thrill show, climaxed when a car is catapulted 70 feet through space from the mouth of a giant cannon.

Saturday afternoon, Sam Nunis will bring some of the nation's leading racers to the fair, to scorch the half-mile oval in AAA Auto Races in regulation stock cars.

On the midway will be Prell's Broadway Shows, recently featured in Look Magazine.

Livestock exhibits featuring the finest cattle of the area are always a top attraction at the Bedford Fair, and competition is keen among the cattle breeders for top honors.
